FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

SATURDAY'S MARKET

New York, June 2.—Prices sagged throughout the list at the opening of today's stock market in response to further forced liquidation arising from the recent failure of the largest curb house and unconfirmed rumors that other curb houses were under investigation. This decline, which resulted in losses of 1 to 5 points in a number of leading shares was aided by some bear selling of steels and low priced oils.

Substantial buying support was forthcoming at the lower levels and market turned upward toward the end of the first hour. Shorts lost little time in covering their commitments, closing prices being at or near the bigest figures of the day.

Week-end mercantile reviews reported little change in the general industrial situation, Bradstreets reported the general trend, as regards new buying, in the direction of "increased quiet" and Dun's reports that conservative tendencies predominate in most markets.

During the early reaction, United States Steels common, which sold ex-dividend earlier in the week, touched a new low for the year at 94 1-4, but rallied a point before the close. Bethlehem Steel also established a new low at 50 5-8 but crossed 53 later for a slight fractional gain on the day.

Motor and motor accessory shares were well bought on reports that production was running 2 -3 times that of a year ago. Willys-Overland preferred jumped 5 points to 64 and then eased to 62 1-4. Studebaker and Chandler each moved up about a point. Some of the other outstanding strong sports in the industrial list were Baldwin and American Locomotives, American Can, Crucible Steel, Pan-American and Phillips Petroleums, Underwood Typewriter and California Petroleum, all up 1 to 2 1-2 points. National Lead, American Sugar and Federal Mining & Smelting preferred were conspicuously weak.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. Demand sterling improved slightly to 4.63 and French francs dropped 2 points to 6.48 cents. German marks established a new low at .0012 1-2 cents or $8,000 to the dollar. Greek exchange jumped 70 points to 4.20 or just double the rate a week ago.

The weekly clearing house statement showed increases of $2,776,000 in loans, discounts and investments $28,701,000 in the reserve of member banks in the Federal Reserve bank, $42,775,000 in net demand deposits and $136,000 in circulation. Time deposits decreased $6,983,000. Aggregate reserve totaled $523,618,000, leaving excess reserve of $28,061,740, an increase of $17,995,970 over a week ago.

THREE YEAR OLD CHILD FATALLY HURT BY AUTO ON JEWETT CITY STREET

(Special to the Bulletin)

Jewett City, June 4.—Ella Morancy, a three year old child, died Saturday night as the result of an accident in the afternoon. An auto owned by Joseph Stubbs of Plainfield struck the child as she ran into the street. An older sister had been sent for ice cream, and no one noticed that the younger child had followed her. When the sister saw her she sent her back, and the little one fell in the road just as the auto came from Slater Ave. going towards Norwich. The car was going slowly, but could not stop before the front wheel ran over the child's body. Bystanders said that the car was stopped before the rear wheel touched the child. She was taken to Dr. McLaughlin's office, and as he was out, Dr. Jennings was called. She died from internal injuries at ten o'clock Saturday night.

Coroner Desmond was in Jewett City Sunday afternoon, and examined eye-witnesses to the accident. No blame was attached to the driver, as the accident was plainly unavoidable. The child was the daughter of Omer Slater Morancy. She was born in Jewett City March 17,1919.

PRESIDENT GREETS ALUMNAE OF CONNECTICUT COLLEGE

In a letter inviting the alumnae of Connecticut college to attend commencement, President Benjamin T. Marshall expresses the satisfaction that the college feels in the reports that come back to it from those who have stepped out from its walls in the graduating classes into the activities of home and business. His letter follows:

New London, Conn., June 2, 1923.

To the Alumnae of Connecticut College, Greeting:

In these closing days of the eighth year of the actual operation of Connecticut College, it is a joy and a pleasure to greet all the alumnae of every class, and to tell them how happy are we, who carry on the work from year to year, in the spirit of the alumnae, and in the reports that come concerning their various activities. It has been a particular satisfaction to me during the current year to be able to say that concerning no alumnae of the college, whom the college has specifically recommended for any position for gainful employment, has there been an adverse report.

The strength of a college after all lies in its alumnae. They are at once its product and its hope, and increasingly its affairs become a matter of vital importance to them; their judgment, their opinions, their desires, and their hopes come increasingly to affect its policy, and its character, and the contribution of their sustained interest and loyalty and devotion become its priceless attribute.

Colleges have come increasingly to depend upon their alumnae for the promotion of the ideals of the college, and the spread and effectiveness of its service. With such a rare and loyal group as the alumnae of Connecticut college have always proved themselves, the college looks forward with utmost confidence to its maturer years, grateful and happy in the full expectation of their undiminished zeal and service in its name.

The polls will be open for the city election today in the four city districts at 5.30 a. m., and close. at 5 p. m., standard time, or 6.30 a. m. and 6 p. m. daylight saving time.

AUTO CRASHED INTO POLE, DRIVER'S SKULL FRACTURED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 4.—James H. Eade, 34, residing at No. 22 Crystal avenue, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital and his death is momentarily expected as a result of a fractured skull he sustained this afternoon in a collision of the automobile in which he was riding and supposed to be driving, with a telephone pole near the Golden Spur in Waterford. Eade has become unconscious since he was picked up by a passing motorist and for that reason no accurate account of the accident is obtainable. Two young men, who were riding with Eade when the automobile crashed against the pole, hastened away from the scene of the accident and as their identity is only known to Eade the cause of the crash was not in possession of the authorities tonight. State Policeman Merliss R. Sterling was notified at the Groton barracks and conducted an investigation, but without finding out just what occurred to cause the automobile to hit the telephone pole.

Eade, who possessed an operator's license, had used the car of his stepfather, Homan F. Heinman, also of No. 22 Crystal avenue, the greater part of the day. This afternoon it is known that in company with two friends he started on a trip through the country. The car was returning to New London and it is supposed that Eade was doing the driving, when at a point close to the Golden Spur, the machine suddenly swerved to one side of the highway into the pole. Eade was thrown from the car with great force and witnesses, who heard the crash, saw the other occupants of the machine retreating through an intersecting highway. Eade was found unconscious in the highway a few minutes after the crash and bleeding from the ears by a man named Grandin, residing at Quaker Hill, who was on his way to New London. Grandin stopped his car and taking the young man in his arms, placed the victim in the automobile and made a hurried trip to the hospital. When Eade was admitted to the institution his condition was such as to be immediately recognized as critical. His identity was revealed by the finding of his operator's license in his clothing. The identity of the owner of the machine was discovered from the registration, bearing Heinman's name on it, found in the road, near the wrecked machine by Daniel S. Marsh, Jr., of Bellevue place, who delivered the registration at the police station.

What appears most mysterious about the accident is the disappearance of Eade's companions, who, instead of rendering such assistance to the victim as they could, made a hasty get-away from the scene of the accident.

The car, a Star, was badly wrecked and was towed to the home of Heinman this evening. One of the front wheels is minus the spokes and has the appearance that all of the spokes collapsed as there is evidence on the hub of the machine riding along the highway on the hub for that part of the wheel is full of grains of sand.

An automobile, owned and driven by Henry G. Mono of No. 23 Orchard street and an automobile owned by B. Aliano & Co., of Thompsonville and driven by Sebastian Bottaso of No. 86 Pleasant street, Thompsonville, were in collision this afternoon at the corner of Ocean, and Willetts avenues. The car operated by Bottaso and in which were several men and women, was overturned, but none of the occupants sustained injuries more serious than bruises. Bottaso was ordered to appear in the police court tomorrow morning for failing to have an operator's license. Both cars were damaged.

The accident occurred when Mono's car was entering Ocean avenue from Willetts and as it did so the automobile operated by Bottaso and en route to Ocean Beach came along at a fair rate of speed. Before neither Mono or Bottaso could reduce the speed of their cars, the two machines came together with considerable force, Mono's car hitting the Thompsonville car between the front and rear wheels and sufficiently hard to overturn the out of town machine. All of the occupants of the Thompsonville car were thrown into the street and fortunately escaped serious injury. Motorcycle Officer William Babcock, who was ordered to the scene of the collision ordered Bottaso into court for not having an operator's license.

The annual practice of young people bathing in the city's reserve reservoir, Lake Brandegee, has arrived for this afternoon bathers were observed in the lake. The attention of the practice was called to the attention of Supt. George Watters of the water and sewer department, and he requested the police to put a stop to the bathing. Motorcycle Officer John Cavanaugh was sent to the lake, but when the officer arrived there the bathers had dispersed.

The police were requested this evening to institute a search for a New London baker, who has absented himself from home since yesterday morning. The baker received his pay late yesterday, but did not go to his abode and this evening his wife became alarmed at his prolonged absence and requested aid in attempting to find her husband.

RUNS INTO HYDRANT LEARNING TO DRIVE

While taking instructions from Edward Peno in driving an automobile, Tony Colletti of 280 Franklin street hit a hydrant with the machine Sunday morning about 10.30 o'clock. The hydrant was so badly damaged that a new one will have to be put in.

In making his report to the police, Colletti stated that he was going along Talman street to go up Spruce street when a machine ahead of him kept in the middle of the road and didn't give him room enough to avoid hitting the hydrant.

THREE CHURCH SOCIETIES RECEIVE 114 CANDIDATES

The annual reception and profession of new members into the Young Ladies Sodality, Maidens of the Sacred Heart and Immaculate Conception societies of St. Mary's parish was held in the handsome memorial church on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock before a congregation of 300, who witnessed the ranks of the three societies increased by 114 new candidates.

The organizations met in the assembly rooms of the church and marched into the edifice to the music of a processional played by Organist Henry J. La Fontaine.

The Young Ladies' Sodality came first with the new candidates (38) following and occupied the front portion of the main aisle, with the new candidates on the right. Next came the new aspirants (33) who were seated Maidens of the Sacred Heart with their facing St. Joseph's altar and finally the Immaculate Conception Society with their class (43) whose sittings faced the altar of the Blessed Virgin Mary. The new candidates went to the altar railing in the order named to hear the conditions of membership announced by the rector, Rev. William A. Keefe, to which they all pledged allegiance and received from Father Keefe their books and medals of their new church affiliation.

For the new class of candidates for the Young Ladies' Sodality and Immaculate Conception societies, the art of consecration was read by Miss Elizabeth Agneta Portelance, who this year has won the merited honor of valedictorian of the graduating class of the Norwich Free Academy. Further worthy of mention was that in the class of 38 candidates for the Young Ladies' Sodality, seven of the members will this year graduate at Norwich Free Academy, also. For the Maidens of the Sacred Heart, the act of consecration was prepared by Miss Alice Leona White.

The sermon for the evening was preached by Father Keefe, who chose the Life of St. Teresa, known as the Little Flower and recently canonized as a saint by Pope Pius XI. as his theme for the evenings's discourse, in which he placed the life and piety of St. Teresa before all the candidates as a model for them to follow. Entering the religious life at the age of 15 she spent but nine short years before being called to her heavenly reward, though her brief life on this earth has attracted the attention of millions of people.

The reception is held on the last Sunday of May but was postponed a week owing to the recent Jesuit mission.

The program for the reception of the Young Ladies Sodality was carried out as follows: Hymn, Sweet Lady of the Isle; reception of the members into the society; hymn, My Child, Give Me Thy Heart; sermon; hymn, Hail, Heavenly Queen; benediction; O Salutaris Hostia was sung by Horace Corning in fine voice.

The officers of the Young Ladies' Sodality are: President, Miss Margaret C. Counihan; first vice president, Miss Mollie Driscoll; second vice president, Miss Mary Bresnan; treasurer, Miss Claire Coughlin; secretary, Miss Emma R. Portelance; organist, Miss Sadie A. Driscoll.

The officers of the Maidens of the Sacred Heart Sodality: President, Agnes Dennis; vice president, Frances Rinella; secretary, Marie White; sacristan, Margaret Fahey; prefects, Helen Williamson; Gertrude Sullivan, Frances Lavavera, Veronica Roberts.

Benediction was given by Father Keefe and the evening's services ending with the anthem, Holy God We Praise Thy Name.

Scouts Enjoyed Outing

Upon accepting the invitation of Grosvenor Ely a party consisting of 20 scouts of the Norwich Town Community troop, F. A. Benton, Jr., Scout Executive F. A. Benton and Dr. John C. Hinrichs, under the direction of Scout Master Frederic H. Wyant, hiked to Baltic Friday where supper was cooked in the spacious fireplace at Mr. Ely's cabin. Games, canoeing, swimming and the exploring of the surrounding woods were enjoyed by the party till bed time. The scouts returned in the trolley car from Baltic Saturday noon.

Automobile Smashed Wheel.

Dominic Pascolino of 26 Ore street reported to the police Sunday morning that the automobile he was driving on Golden street about 11 o'clock had one wheel broken and an axle bent when he got into the gutter in trying to pass a truck that was standing in the street.

HEALTH ON PROGRAMME AT Y. M. C. A. SUNDAY

Sunday at the local Young Men's Christian Association an audience that filled the parlors to capacity were greatly interested in the programme of the afternoon. After the singing of several well known hymns, the scripture was read and prayer offered. Miss Mary Gray delighted the audience with two vocal solos accompanied by Miss Green, who also played for the pictures. Several reels were shown under the topic of "The Priceless Gift of Health," and these proved very practical portraying as they did the rules of health from childhood, on through life; the many valuable suggestions thrown on the screen were certainly such as to lead those who saw the pictures to become deeply interested in the maintaining of good health.

Between the reels Secretary Hill gave a brief talk and said in part as follows: The subject of the pictures today is certainly suggestive. There are many things that are priceless, that is we cannot estimate the value of them. For instance, our great country is beyond our power to estimate, and yet we do not really consider its value as we should. Our forefathers laid the foundations deep and strong, and yet unless we are more interested in maintaining the great principles laid down by our founders we are liable as a nation to go the way of other nations that have perished. The gift of health is of course a great and priceless gift, and yet we so often throw it away, doing as we please without regard to consequences. Sin is the one great thing that destroys the health of body and of mind, and it certainly destroys the health of the soul. While the gift if health is priceless, the most priceless gift of all is salvation from our sins, and this is obtainable of course, only through Jesus Christ. Let us value our country; let us value our health, and let us ever value the greatest gift of God, His great Son for our salvation. Let us see to it that in our day and generation we do all possible to help those about us to maintain good health, to appreciate our America and to put the proper estimate on God's greatest gift.

Emery H. Davis operated the moving picture machine.

BEFORE JUSTICE'S COURT FOR THEFT OF WINDOWS

At a justice's court in Bozrah Saturday, at which A. J. Bailey presided, two men were presented and found guilty on the charge of theft of windows about Christmas time from James McGrath's at Lebanon. The accused were John Kosopoceski and a boarder at his house by the name of Sam. Kosoposki lives in New Jersey but owns a farm in Bozrah and the testimony was that the windows that disappeared from McGrath place were found built into a chicken coop on the accused man's farm.

Each of the accused was fined $5 and costs. An appeal to the common pleas court was taken and bonds of $500 were furnished. V. P. A. Quinn appeared for the accused.

TWO SHORT BUT VIOLENT THUNDER STORMS IN STATE

One Man Was Killed by Lightning in New Haven—Several Fires and a Large Amount of Property Damage Were Reported Throughout the State—Seven Trolley Cars Were Struck in New Haven—In Danbury the Storm Was Almost a Cloudburst.

New Haven, June 4.—One death by lightning, several fires and a large amount of property damage were reported tonight throughout the state as the result of two short but violent thunder storms late today.

Angelo Morrone, 38 years old, was struck by lightning while near his home in Hamden and was instantly killed. He leaves his widow and eight children. Morrone and his small daughter were riding in a carriage when the bolt struck them. The little girl escaped injury, while her father and the horse were killed.

In Westville, the memorial flagstaff was shattered by a bolt, while agarage owned by Dr. William Winne, also hit by lightning, was burned.

The home of Arthur S. Barnes in Bristol, editor of the Bristol Press, was struck during the first storm, the lightning running along electric wires from the cellar to the attic, setting fire to joists. About $1,000 damage was caused before the flames were extinguished.

In New Haven seven trolley cars were struck but no one was injured. Cities throughout the state reported traffic tie-ups ranging from fifteen minutes to half an hour, while the Southern New England Telephone company reported electrical interference with its wires. Telephone service, however, was kept almost at normal.

In Danbury the storm approached the intensity of a cloudburst, traffic being completely tied up for a short time and the roads being flooded.

SUPREME COURT DISMISSES APPEAL ON MATERNITY ACT

Washington, June 4.—The supreme court refused today to pass on the constitutionality of the Sheppard-Towner maternity act in cases brought by the state of Massachusetts and a Boston taxpayer. Both suits were dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

Unanimously the court held that an attack on the validity of the statute by a state did not present a judicial question. As to the suit instituted by Mrs. Harriet A. Frothingham, the court declared that her status as a taxpayer did not entitle her to challenge the law.

Discussing questions of jurisdiction, raised by the Massachusetts case, the court's opinion, delivered by Justice Sutherland, declared that "looking through forms of words to the substance of their complaint, it is merely that officials of the executive department of the government are executing, and will execute, an act of congress asserted to be unconstitutional and this we are asked to prevent.

"To do so," it was added, "would be not to decide a judicial controversy, but to assume a position of authority over the governmental acts of another and co-equal department, an authority which plainly we do not possess."

Massachusetts attacked the law on various grounds in the interests of its citizens. The court asserted, however, that "the citizens of Massachusetts are also citizens of the United States" and that "it cannot be conceded that a state may institute judicial proceedings to protect citizens of the United States from the operation of the statutes thereof."

In reference to the suit of Mrs. Frothingham Justice Sutherland said that the right of a taxpayer to enjoin the execution of a federal appropriation act, on the ground that it is invalid and will result in taxation for illegal purposes, has never been passed upon by this court.

Although the question has been frequently presented, he explained, it has either been permitted to pass in silence or the court has expressly refused to pass upon it. The administration of a law likely to impose taxation upon a number of taxpayers, the court declared, is essentially a matter of public and not of individual concern. If one taxpayer could champion and litigate such a case then every taxpayer could do so, it was pointed out, in respect to every appropriation act or statute which required the outlay of public money.

MORSE TRIAL ENTERS UNION ITS SEVENTH WEEK

Washington, June 4.—Further inquiry into the financial affairs of the Virginia Shipbuilding Corporation was made today by government counsel at the Morse trial, which entered upon its seventh week. Robert L. Lake, former purchasing agent at the plant, testified that in the middle of 1918, six months after the company got work started, its credit became bad, but on cross-examination he stated that he had been told by officials that failure to meet bills promptly was due to the failure of the Emergency Fleet Corporation to make progress payments on ships as they came due.

The government introduced a letter under date of September 3, 1918, from the auditor of the United States Steamship Company directing the Virginia Shipbuilding Corporation to "set up" on its books as of June 30, 1918, the sum of $2,904,769 representing the "enhanced value of the plant." This increased the book value to $5,000,000.

GLIDED 100 MILES ON TWO OR THREE GALLONS GAS

Garden City, N. Y., June 4.—Georges Barbot, French aviator, successfully completed a round trip gliding flight to West Point today, using but two of three gallons of gasoline in his fuel tank in negotiating the journey of more than 100 miles.

Arriving at West Point an hour after his take-off, he circled the United States Military academy from the height of 2,000 feet. At one time during the flight he reached 3,500 feet. He did not land, however, as the field appeared too small to permit safe landing. The return trip was made without incident.

Barbot recently crossed the English channel twice in one day with the same monoplane at a fuel cost of less than $2. He announced that he would attempt a flight to Washington tomorrow.

CANADIAN BEER HEADED TOWARD N. Y. BOUNDARY

Toronto, June 4.—Dispatches from Ottawa today declare that cargoes of Canadian beer and whiskey were moving toward the international boundary on their way to New York state, as a result of the repeal of the state prohibition enforcement law there.

Canadian officials stationed along the border reported that rum runners were actively engaged in plans to flood New York with Dominion "hard stuff."

HUGHES SEES VIRTUE IN PERMANENT WORLD COURT

New York, June 4.—Tranquility of the world depends upon the existence of a permanent world court just as the tranquility of the United States and its various states has depended and still depends upon the courts, Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes declared today at the Kent Centennial celebration at Columbia university.

"Our courts," he declared, "still remain the assurance of our domestic peace. This is true in international as well as in national affairs. If we have tranquil states, it is because the people believe in the reign of law and maintain the integrity of their courts.

"The American love of peace and sense of right," he said, "and the conviction born of our own experience, have made it a definite part of American policy that we should do all in our power to secure provision for the peaceful settlement of international disputes by the establishment of a permanent tribunal of international justice.

"Our peculiar interests as a nation require it, in order to give more adequate protection to our own rights; the interests of world peace demand it."

Secretary Hughes asserted that temporary tribunals were imperfect both in the choice of arbitrators and in the likelihood of the intrusion of political considerations.

"Those who say that we should perfect international law before we have a permanent court of international justice ignore the fact that in the meantime we must have arbitral tribunals to decide many controversies of a justiciable nature; we cannot in deference to our historic policy refuse to submit such cases to arbitration. These critics also ignore the enormous service that an international court may render with the materials now at its command in the development of international law."

Speaking at the centennial anniversary of Columbia's acquisition of James Kent as a permanent professor, Secretary Hughes eulogized the famous American judge and declared he was justly acclaimed as the Father of American Jurisprudence."

FRAUDLENT OFFER OF GIFT OF 75 POUNDS OF SUGAR

Boston, June 4.—Joseph E. Martin, who sent circulars to 200,000 New Englanders offering a gift of 75 pounds of granulated sugar to each purchaser of $20 worth of groceries, was arrested today on a charge of using the mails to defraud and was held in $5,000 bail for a hearing before a United States commissioner. Bail was not forthcoming and Martin was jailed.

The alleged scheme, according to postal inspectors who made the arrest, was discovered by one of the prospective purchasers who went to the Columbus avenue offices of Martin, who was doing business under the name of the Martin Grocery company and found no groceries or stock in the place.

An investigation resulted when the curious shopper called on the federal authorities. The inspectors said that they were unable to find any trace of bills of lading or goods on the premises or in transit. The inspectors pointed out that if one in every four of those offered the bargain in groceries sent in an order the returns would have totalled $1,000,000 in a short time.

Martin explained his position by saying that goods shipped to him had not arrived and said he had received only $1700 worth of orders.

BRIDEGROOM AND GUESTS HAD PTOMAINE POISONING

New York, June 4.—A bridegroom and five of his guests, who were taken to a hospital last night after having been stricken with ptomaine poisoning at the wedding feast, were able to return to their homes tonight.

The bride, who was one of thirty-two made ill, was attended by physicians at her home but did not go to the hospital.

GRANTED INTERLOCUTORY DECREE OF DIVORCE

White Plains, N. Y., June 4.—John Howard Cromwell, wealthy New York lawyer, was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from his wife, Mrs. Rose Barker Cromwell, by Supreme Court Justice Seeger in Newburg on Friday, it was learned today. The case was tried before the justice last winter but decision was reserved to permit investigation of evidence.

Cromwell is 63 years old and claims to be a direct descendant of Oliver Cromwell.

CONNECTICUT FEDERATION OF LABOR IN CONVENTION

New Haven, June 4.—The present labor situation in Connecticut is normal, with workers receiving a normal amount of employment and satisfactory wages, according to several reports submitted this afternoon at the session of the 38th annual convention of the Connecticut Federation of Labor.

During the morning session President Patrick F. O'Meara made his annual report in which he attacked the prohibition laws and adversely criticised the activities of the present general assembly.

At the afternoon session Secretary Ira Ornburn made a supplementary report in which he cited instances in which he maintained, the legislature had shown hostility to labor. He declared that the assembly had wasted time considering trivial matters and had refused to act favorably on such questions as old age pensions, shorter hours for labor, and kindred labor bills.

Mr. Ornburn recommended that a labor bank be established under the auspices of the state federation to help solve many of labor's difficulties in maintaining its place. He also suggested the need of labor attorneys and a labor paper.

Mr. Ornburn took occasion at the end of his report to defend his administration as secretary against hostile criticism which was reported to have been made at an executive session yesterday.

There were a number of women delegates present today. The nomination of officers will take place tomorrow while the election will be held Wednesday.

MRS. BULA CROKER STILL UNDER CROSS-EXAMINATION

Dublin, June 4.—(By The A. P.)—Today's proceedings in the contest over the will of Richard Croker, once chief of Tammany Hall, were occupied with the cross-examination of the widow, Mrs. Bula Croker, by Sergeant Sullivan, counsel for Richard Croker, Jr., the plaintiff.

Mrs. Croker denied instigating the charges that her husband brought against Richard, Jr., in 1917 in connection with financial matters. Her answers were clear and she never flustered. She admitted receiving about $1,000,000 from her husband but said he gave her less money than he did his first wife. He told her that at one time he was worth $15,000,000, but that he had been robbed by his family and desired that the remainder should go to her.

Counsel's references to Tammany Hall and its Indian nomenclature, she met by an eloquent eulogy of the Indian race and of the democratic organization. She said her friends called her "the Indian Princess" and that her husband had always liked this name.

CONFLICTS EXPECTED TODAY IN BOTH HOUSE AND SENATE

Hartford, June 4.—Almost on the eve of final adjournment of the legislature, lines were drawn today for sharp conflicts tomorrow in both senate and house. Tomorrow's session and Wednesday's will be the last of the year, and out of about eight matters that remain to be decided, four appeared likely to precipitate struggles.

Governor Templeton is almost certain to send to the senate tomorrow a veto of the compromise bill appropriating $100,000 for the erection of a dormitory for the state normal school at Danbury.

House Chairman Luther M. Keith, of the appropriations committee, said tonight nearly all the members of this committee expected to line up a gainst a proposed move to pass the Danbury dormitory appropriation over the veto.

FOREST FIRE DESTROYED VILLAGE IN QUEBEC

Saint Honore, Que., June 4.—The village of Whatworth, 16 miles from Riviere du Loup, was wiped out by forest fires today, the postoffice, telephone and telegraph buildings being destroyed and communication interrupted for some time. There was practically no insurance on the buildings, and the loss will be considerable.

DRIVEN FROM HOMES BY WOODLAND FIRES

Liverpool, N. S., June 4.—Flames are sweeping through Queens county, destroying homes, driving settlers from the timberlands and forcing villagers to make ready their boats, ready for flight to sea.

The greatest damage has been sustained at Granite Village, on the peninsula separating Port Joli Bay from Port Albert Bay. Five homes had been razed, a dozen smaller structures levelled and all escape blocked on three sides by a wall of fire, when the flames were checked at Sandy Bay.

FIRES ARE MENACING IN MANY PLACES IN HALIFAX

Halifax, N. S., June 4.—Fires, which threaten to become a grave menace, are raging at many places in Halifax and the western counties. Wide areas have been burned over in Queens county, while Dartmouth and, southwest, the St. Margaret's Bay district, is dotted with fires.

THREE FIRES RAGING AT MOOSEHEAD LAKE

Augusta, Me., June 4.—The state forestry department was informed tonight that three fires raging north of Seboomook at Moosehead Lake, were partially under control. The department estimated that 25,000 acres had been burned over in that district with a loss of $20,000. These fires started last Friday.

200 MEN HAVE BROUGHT FIRES UNDER CONTROL

Island Falls, Me., June 4.—Two extensive forest fires that had been raging for several days about Howe Brooks, seven miles from Smyrna Mills, were reported under control late today. Two hundred men were engaged in fighting the fires.

Six camps at Howe Brook owned by Dean and Milliken were destroyed on Saturday.

Shriners Assembling In National Capital

Washington, June 4.—The national capital became today the playground of nobles of the Mystic Shrine. Crowds already on hand for the annual convention of the imperial council, which will begin formally tomorrow, were augmented hourly by new arrivals from north, east and south and west, from Canada and even from such far away places as Hawaii and Panama.

All day and far into the night Pennsylvania avenue was a confusion of noise and color as each arriving delegation marched to its headquarters behind its band. Typical Washington summer weather greeted the visitors and the marchers found that the wide expanse of asphalt on the famous thoroughfare gave back a heat akin to that of the "burning sands" of a desert.

The day's arrivals included the automobile caravan from California. There were some 500 cars in the line, but there remained only a few of those that started from the Golden Gate a month ago. Western mud had halted many of the original starters, but as they came east the Californians were joined by nobles from many points in the middle west.

Beginning with that of Imperial Potentate George S. McCandless of Honolulu, early in the day, there were many pilgrimages to Mount Vernon. The imperial potentate and his divan were welcomed by Governor Trinkle of Virginia and his staff, and after a formal exchange of greetings, the Shriners laid a wreath on Washington's tomb.

Incident to the gathering of the Shriners, President Harding dedicated the zero milestone south of the White House and a repoduction of the boyhood home of John Howard Payne, author of Home Sweet Home which has been erected in Sherman Square, near the executive grounds in connection with Better Homes Week.

FIVE STOLEN AUTOMOBILES RECOVERED IN MERIDEN

Meriden, June 4.—A traffic in automobiles, alleged to have been stolen in nad about New York city and disposed of in this city, was disclosed here today in the arrest of two men and the recovery of five cars.

The two men, who give their identity as Harry Bradley, 21 of 9 East 107th street, New York, and Christian Tierl, 25, of Manhattan avenue, New York, are held in $50,000 bail on the charge of theft of automobiles.

Acting with the local detective bureau a state policeman found that a New York man was selling cars, almost new, at a very attractive price. Later, the officers obtained the name of the salesman and a trap was set to get him into the state and local jurisdiction.

His arrest followed. The police shortly after recovered four other autos. Authorities in New York were notified and an investigation is being made to find the original owners of the cars through the New York state motor vehicle department and the insurance companies.

PROMINENT MEN FIGURE IN BANK CONSPIRACY CASE

New York, June 4.—An indictment charging five men, two of them bank employes and one a Washington lawyer, with a conspiracy by which they fraudulently obtained $75,000 from the Chatham and Phenix National bank was handed up to day to Federal Judge A. N. Hand.

Charles Bernstein, a bookkeeper of the Chatham and Phenix, was described as the chief conspirator, the others named being Harry B. Bachrach, Washington attorney; William Perlman, formerly a paying teller in the Bank of United States; Leonard B. Provided for Children Born out of Wedlock

A Public Acknowledgment Made in the Will of George Jay Gould—Estate is Estimated at $36,000,000.

Toms River, N. J., June 4.—In the will of George Jay Gould filed for probate in the Ocean county court today, bequeathing a estate estimated at $36,000,000 to his widow and ten children, Mr. Gould made public acknowledgment for the first time that he was the father of George Sinclair Gould, Jane Sinclair Gould and Guinivere Gould, born out of wedlock before his marriage to his second wife, Mrs. Guinivere Sinclair Gould.

Mr. Gould married Guinivere Sinclair, an English actress, after the death of his first wife, Edith Kingdon Gould, also an actress and known as one of the most beautiful women in America, by whom he had seven children. Although the three children of his second wife, whose father Mr. Gould acknowledged himself to be in his will, are excluded from inheriting their father's share in the original Jay Gould trust, they are provided for in two trusts set up for their benefit. Their exclusion from sharing in the Jay Gould trust is brought about by the legal definition of the term "lawful issue."

A trust fund of $4,000,000 is created for the use of Mrs. Guinivere Gould during her lifetime and to be divided among her children in the event of her death without a will.

The residuary estate estimated at $16,000,000, is left to the executors to be divided in ten equal parts, a share going to each of the children by both marriages.

Mrs. Guinivere Gould and Mr. Rice are appointed guardians without security or bond of the person and property of Mrs. Gould's minor children.

Kingdon Gould and Mr. Rice are appointed executors of the estate, to act entirely at their discretion and relieved of the necessity of furnishing any security. Mr. Rice and the Commercial Trust company of New York are appointed trustees with full powers and also without bond.

FRENCH SEAMEN DECLINE TO SUBMIT TO DRY LAW OF U. S.

Members of the Union of Seafaring Workers of France Have Decided to Declare a General Strike Unless They Are Assured of the Wine They Are Entitled to Under the French Merchant Marine Law While They Are in New York Harbor—Shipping Interests in Paris Assert That the French Ships Will Sail from Havre With Their Regular Quota of Wine.

Paris, June 4 (By the A. P.)—A general strike of the stokers and firemen on the steamship Lafayette, sailing from Havre for New York on June 9, and on all other French ships scheduled to leave for the United States after that date is threatened unless the men receive assurances that the two litres of wine to which they are entitled under the French merchant marine law will be forthcoming while they are in New York harbor. This decision was reached at the headquarters of the union of seafaring workers today. A full meeting of the delegates to the firemen's and stokers' union will be held here on Wedesday, when ratification is expected of an ultimatum, drawn up by its executive committee, giving the French line the choice of filling the Lafayette's wine tanks as usual or suffering a strike.

The French line, aware of the movement, is withholding its final decision for the present, but it is stated that the Lafayette will sail Saturday with her full quota of "Vin Rouge Ordinaire" for the crew.

Meanwhile the ministry of merchant marine has been in constant conference with the ministry of commerce drawing up a plan of agreement governing the status of French merchantmen while in the port of New York, and this will be submitted to Premier Poincare for presentation to Washington. The spirit of the note is an attempt to reach an amicable agreement with the United States government, but the basic principle of the French demands is that the members of the crews shall have their two litres of wine daily.

"French ships in foreign ports are French soil, according to recognized international law, and therefore French laws must apply," the note will say in substance. It is understood that it will add that all French vessels will be held amenable to edicts by accredited government officials before entering American waters.

The shipping interests in Paris, awaiting the decisions of the government and their own employes, is silent, and, beyond saying that French ships will sail from Havre supplied with their regular quota of wine, officials today would vouch safe no other information.

There is, however, no intention of making reprisals.

Pursuant to certain difficulties that have arisen recently in regard to the power of the police committee of the board of aldermen Corporation Counsel William A. King has given an opinion as to the law controlling certain phases of the police department. According to some of the phases, no member of the police force can hold office after reaching the age of 65. After attaining the age of sixty any member of the force may be removed by the common council regardless of behavior or cause.

Subject to these two restrictions, every member of the force shall hold office during good behavior, unless removed or expelled by the council for cause of which the latter shall be sole judge. Another phase of interest is that after twenty years of service, any police officer may be retired from duty by the council, subject to the approval of the mayor. Certain provisions are then made as to the amount of pension to be received when a member of the force is placed on the veteran reserve list of the police force.

WESTERLY

The regular June meeting of the town council was held in the council chambers of the Westerly town hall on Broad street, beginning at 9.30 o'clock on Monday morning. There were present President Clifford W. Campbell, Thomas H. Morrison, George B. Utter, Louis Rosa, Charles S. Fowler, John D. Nichols and Farquhar Smith, the full council membership. Also present at the opening were Council Clerk Everett E. Whipple, Town Solicitor, John Ferguson, Jr., and Health officer, Dr. S. C. Webster.

Following the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, Dr. Samuel C. Webster addressed the council relative to the conditions existing at the rear of 81 Canal street and also at the rear of 81 Pierce street from Pleasant street up. At the latter named place a canal or waterway had become filthy so that it could be likened to an open sewer. As it was a growing menace to health, it should be cleaned, but the cleaning was only a temporary relief as it soon became corrupt again. The doctor told of a brook that ran through the location and the sewage pipe from three or four houses on Pierce street ran into it. Dr. Webster said that he appreciated knew what he should do. Councilman Rossie stated that the lower end of the canal bed had been cleaned by Mr. Cappuccio and that the cost had been $200. It appeared that this was more of a proposition and on motion of Councilman Fowler, seconded by Mr. Utter, it was voted that Councilman Rossie with Dr. Webster constitute a committee to consider the matter, which should be held over, and that this committee come before the council with a proposition which could be taken up intelligently. With admonition by health officer and promise of early consideration by Councilman Rossie, Dr. Webster retired.

Council President Campbell then called on James W. Burke who was in the chamber to know if he had anything to bring before the council, saying that he supposed that he represented parties present. Mr. Burke stated that he appeared to represent Mrs. Mary E. McCarty of Rockville, Conn., who was present with her husband. That on December 29 last parties had, after obtaining possession of the Bishop studio bock on the East Side of Bay street, Watch Hill, begun the sale of hot dogs, etc., and due to his neglect they had not been directed to take out a license, for the lack of which Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown had visited the store and directed the sale to cease, which had been complied with. He now appeared, to ask that a victualizing license be issued them. Mrs. McCarty said that she desired to sell frankfurters and do a business along that line including soda water dispensing on a small scale and that she had no intention of serving dinners as "she did no tlike to serve dinners". As her millinery store in Rockville, Conn., had been burned she would engage in this business until the block in Rockville was rebuilt at which time she planned to return to the millinery trade. Councilman Rossi asked if the property at Watch Hill had not been taken over with the representation that it was to be used as a millinery store and Mrs. McCarty said she had not made any such representation. It appeared from the discussion of other council members that there was considerable opposition, to granting this license and it was voted to take up the matter when the rest of the applications were considered later in the meeting.

President Campbell then said: "It looks like a fireworks committee, we have present." From the "fireworks committee," E. Howard Clark, Clarence A. Vars, Arthur N. Nash and John W. Brophy, present in the chamber, E. Howard Clark arose to ask the council that the fireworks ordinance be not changed from what it had been in previous years, with the exception of the sale on 26th which he stated would be satisfactory to the other dealers.

After the "fireworks display" which took up nearly an hour, clerk read the reply received from Receiver Perkins of the Shore Line electric road relative to highway conditions and the proposed changes along Main and Beach streets. This matter was left for the engineer of the highway department and Receiver Perkins to get together and make a sketch of the changes to be made that a thorough understanding might be had by both parties.

The report of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown showed 9 arrests had been made for the month of May as follows: intoxication 4, reckless driving 1, neglect of child 1, revalling and quarreling 1, likely to become public charges 2.

At this point the bills as present were voted paid.

The issuing of victualizing licenses was taken up. The application of C. R. Johnson of Atlantic Beach for one as well as for ra shooting gallery was read. There seemed to be a sentiment that public safety at Atlantic Beach required a life boat, life preservers and rope as well as a telephone. The application was laid on the table and there appeared to be no desire to take up the application by the council members or police committee until the above conditions had been met.

The similar petition of Joe Serio for the house at the corner of Canal and Pleasant streets, asking the chief's O. K., was laid on the table. A similar fate met the petition of Mary E. McCarty of Rockville, Conn. for the location at the east side of Ray street, Watch Hill. Properly O. K.'d, the following petitions were granted: E. B. Langworthy, James Collins, New York hotel, Elmer E. Briggs, Thomas L. Fontana, W. Ward Sherman, J. Frank Champlin, Isabelle T. Moore (bonded and recommended by C. O. Murphy of Norwich for a location north of the Pleasant View house.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Strand.

Maurice Tourneur's latest production, The Isle of Lost Ships, a First National attraction produced by M. C. Levee, came to the Strand theatre and scored a big success. It is a worthy successor to the magnificent productions which this directorial genius has to his credit.

Fantastic, weird, unusual and fraught with the mystery of the sea, The Isle of Lost Ships is the strangest story that has yet been presented on the screen, in the opinion of this eviewer. It tells the tale of a mysterious region where the derelict ships of the ocean drift together, and where, upheld by the tendrils of the floating kelp and seaweed, they float down through the centuries to a doom infinitely remote.

In this welter of hulks there are to be found the lost caravels of Columbus and modern liners; Spanish ships of the times of Cortez and the lost boats of Raleigh's ill-fated cruises. And thither the author, Crittenden Marriott, brings his hero, his heroine and his villain to work out their strange destinies in a local utterly ne wand novel.

Milton Sills plays the role of the hero, a condemned man sentenced to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing. Anne O. Nilsson plays the role of the heroine, a daughter of a New York millionaire. Frank Campeau gives perhaps the best performance of his career in the role of Jackson, a New York detective. Walter Long is cast as the villain of the tale.

Shipwrecked on this strange island of dead ships, the girl, the convict and the detective find themselves in a weird colony of those who have been shipwrecked before them—newly-arrived castaways and descendants of those wrecked in ancient days.

How the refugees escape from the "island" and return to civilization is told with a sweep of imagination that stamps Tourneur as one of the greatest producers of the age and The Isle of Lost Ships as a distinct addition to the number of master works of the screen.

The Isle of Lost Ships grips the emotions in a vise-like manner, kindles the blood as the story of adventure and romance is unfolded, and gives new life to jaded imaginations. In a word it is supreme entertainment, and we take pleasure in recommending it to all readers of this newspaper.

A Mermaid comedy, Cold Chills, and a News added entertainment to this fine program.

The Village Blacksmith at the Breed.

When Henry Wadsworth Longfellow wrote a sentimental poem of eight stanzas called The Village Blacksmith, he probably thought that he had said all there was to say about the smithy and the smith. But since then movies have been invented and Mr. Longfellow, if he is aware of what is going on here today, must be spiritistically startled to realize that his little piece, like the chestnut tree, has a remarkable spreading capacity. For with certain additions and interpolations, it now covers some seven reels of film and is shown at the Breed theatre today.

The picture tells a story of a morally and physically sturdy blacksmith, with two sons and a daughter, whose family is opposed in the plot to a mean-spirited village squire and his rascally son. Trials and tribulations are heaped upon the smithy and his family, but they bear up bravely and in the end are triumphant.

Most of the story, however, is told in the second half of the firm. The first part is, in the main a series of illustrations fitting lines in the poem, and they have a genuine, simple quality that is pleasing. William Walling, as the smithy, is upstanding and rugged, looking well at a forge, and the children used are spantaneously expressive, especially Gordon Griffith and Pat Moore as his sons. There are schoolroom, swimming and other scenes which are natural and amusing.

In the latter half of the picture, when the heavy melodrama comes in, there isn't much to suggest Longfellow's poem, but Mr. Walling, Virginia Valli, George Hackathorne, Tully Marshall, Caroline Rankin and several others make the scenes intense and interesting. And Mack Sennett's Eddie Gribbon is there as a village gossip and quite the most refreshing person present.

Shuffle Along.

Shuffle Along, the liveliest and most melodious of musical shows by colored folks, was brought back to Boston recently for a two weeks' engagement at the Arlington theatre.

When this farce comedy, the joint work of Miller & Lyle, Slesle & Blake, was first produced in Boston it made an emphatic apeal to theatregoers and was praised as a highly amusing picture of colored American life. It has been playing to a succession of crowded houses ever since it left here. The present excellent cast has for leading players Russell Smith, Louise Schooler, Bessie Allston, Pauline Payton, Paul Bass, George Myrick, Joe Purcell, Lisa Campbell, Dink Stewart, John Alexander, George Duke, Chick Fisher, Jennie Day, Ira Green, Amy Bates, Marie Rich, Bessie Simms, Beatrice Cole and a clever singing and dancing chorus ranging in hue from dusk to midnight.

The women of the chorus are attractive and an incredibly energetic band, who sing well and dance like demons. They are at their wildest in an abandoned number called Bandanna Days, wherein each gamatines as seems to her most fitting the fabled choreography of the old south.

Other high spots of the doings are some wonderful soft shoe dancing by a pair programed as Dink Stewart and George Duke; sundry spirituals and other songs by a capable quartet, and the rendering of the spirited song from which the show wears its title.

This same attraction will be seen at the Broadway theatre tomorrow night. Seats are now on sale at the box office.

Broadway Theatre.

What kind of women do men like was a tea-cup conversation between Bebe Daniels, Leatrice Joy and Rubye de Remer the other day at luncheon in Miss Joy's dressing room at the Paramount picture studio on Lasky Island during the filming of "Don't Fool Your Wife, which is an attraction at the Broadway theatre this week. It so happened that a studio press agent dropped in just in time to hear what the young ladies thought on the subject. Many people like to know what the stars talk about when they are not working, so the p. a. invited himself to have a cup of tea and here is what he heard:

"I don't believe men like these beautiful dumb women any more," said Miss de Remer. "A pretty face with nothing under the hair does not appeal to men, in my opinion."

"Yes, but they do not like women to be too intellectual," broke in Miss Daniels. "No man likes to sit around and hear some girl prattle all about Freud and his theory of psychoanalysis. He likes the woman who is pretty, vivacious, understanding and responsive—and not without some brains. But too many brains scare the average man. He doesn't want a woman who knows more than he does. Most men like to be masters of the situation and if they think the woman is too smart they would never marry her. It's the girl who strikes the happy medium between beauty and brains that pleases the men."

And then Miss Joy who is featured in You Can't Fool Your Wife spoke: "It is the brainy woman who plays the part of the dumbbell that men like. This sort of woman always knows what to do and say at the right time. She is just one jump ahead of her husband, yet he never knows it. She has her own way, but at the same time makes it appear to be her mate's way."

All three then turned on the poor p. a. with their question: "What kind of women do men like?" Well, what kind do they like anyway?

A serious, scientific explanation of Prof. Albert Einstein's Theory of Relativity, a theory which has been the center of wide study and controversy, would seem to be unsuitable material for a motion picture program. The management of the Broadway theatre takes the opposite view—he having announced that he will show the film as part of his regular program today.

The great interest in the Einstein Theory induced six of the scientist's associates to supervise the production of a film which would not only instruct the uninitiated in he fundamentals of the theory, but to interest them as well. When the film was given its showing in Berlin, Prof. Kornblum, one of the sponsors of the picture, lectured. In Paris it was given a similar presentation.

A Christie comedy was also included in the program.

YALE AND HARVARD CREWS HAVE FIRST WORKOUT ON THE THAMES

Gales Ferry, Conn., June 4—Yale's varsity crew tried out the new shell built by Dick Pocock on the Thames today and found difficulty in becoming accustomed to the swivels. It is hoped, however, that the crew will master the new points in the shell without any adjustments being necessary. All four crews had practice spins in the morning while the varsity and junior varsity each had two short sprints in the afternoon. Ives, Freeman and Richards, were timed at stroke on the finish crew.

A new survey of the course on the Thames has been completed, several slight changes having been made. The race will be rowed downstream this year. A four mile practice course has been staked out, while 10 days before the regatta, June 22, the racing course will be opened for practice by both Yale and Harvard.

Howard Chappell, chairman of the regatta committee, and the coaches, managers and captains of the crews will meet Wednesday to discuss final arrangements.

ACADEMY SECONDS SWAMP WHEELER HIGH, 15 TO 5

In a slow and loose game played at North Stonington Monday afternoon the Academy Second team won over the Wheeler High team, 15 to 5. Although the game was for the part uninteresting, several times flashes of speed appeared on the part of the Academy team.

Norwich drew first blood by scoring in the first inning. Brewer got on because of an error by the short stop. Pitt sacrificed and Brewer scored on a single by Fellows. Again in the second inning Norwich scored twice on a combination of errors by Thorp, Brown and G. Whitlaw, Haslam and McGowan scored for Norwich. Wheeler also scored two in this frame.

The game went on up to the fifth inning in this manner out in this frame the Academy boys more than batted around and overwhelmed the lads from Wheeler. In the fifth Wheeler threatened when B. Whitlaw was hit by a pitched ball. However on the hit and run play a fast double play, Pitt to Sullivan, stopped the opposing attack. Haslam with two doubles to his credit led the Academy attack while McGibney, Brewer and McGowan also hit well. The score by innings:

TODD GETS DECISION OVER AUGIE RATNER

London, June 4—(By the A. P.)—Roland Todd tonight defeated Augie Ratner of New York on points in a twenty round boxing contest for the middleweight championship of England.

The referee's decision came as a surprise to many of the spectators, who greeted it with shouts of disapproval. Todd landed the greater number of blows, but those of Ratner seemed much the harder. Ratner showed great surprise when the verdict of the referee was given against him.

Todd floored Ratner for an instant in the second round. This was the only knockdown in the fight. The Englishman had a slight advantage over the American in the first half of the round. In the thirteenth round Ratner opened a cut on Todd's right eyebrow, and during the remainder of the fight was always playing for the damaged spot. There was good milling in the seventeenth and eighteenth rounds with honors even. In the nineteenth Ratner landed three hard rights and lefts to Todd's head without a return from the Englishman. Both men finished strong.

JACK SANK MAKING GOOD WITH BLUE RIDGE TEAM

John Sank who played with the Kacey team here last season and who played at the Norwich State Hospital with the Riverview club [illegible] season is apparently making good with the Frederick, Maryland team in the Blue Ridge league according to the Daily News of Frederick. The following are from a recent issue of the paper after an important game:

"Sank's homer with three on was one of the longest hits ever made in the local park. The ball cleared the sheds near the flagpole by three or four feet. It was a wicked crash. Incidentally Sank is a good third baseman."

"That drive of Sank's with the bases loaded was the drive that won the game for the locals."

"Every time we look at Sank, our hard hitting third sacker, we like him better."

Couillard who played first base for the Riverview club last season and early this season is also with the Frederick team but has not yet appeared in the lineup.

TAFTVILLE WINS FROM NEW LONDON IN NINTH

In one of the snappiest games that ever graced the Providence street diamond, the speedy New London Independents went down to defeat before the Taftville A. A. Saturday. Great excitement reigned from the moment the game got under way, and at times the best baseball judges were kept guessing as to who was to be the winner. The visitors scored first, rolling up two runs on two errors, a walk and a hit. Taftville tied the score in the seventh when Jarvis tripled to deep center. Bus Murphy walked and Cardie got a clever hit, scoring the two runs. In the eighth Taftville got two more, making the score 4 to 2. New London, after two out, scored two, tieing the score. The crowd went wild and things looked as though extra innings would have to be played, when Jarvis, the first Taftville man up, opened up with a three bagger, his second during the game. Things looked a little brighter at this point for Manager Troland and his supporters. Jim Murphy delivered the coup de grace to New London with a nice wallop that put the game in the icebox. Next Saturday Sterling is scheduled to appear on the Taftville ball grounds. Sterling has a wonderful bunch of ball tossers and a fast game is looked for. The score:

DEMPSEY RESUMES HIS TRAINING GRIND

Great Falls, Mont., June 4—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, resumed his training grind today after a week's lay-off, the greater part of which was spent fishing. Dempsey has gained nearly ten pounds during his layoff. He says he is in "top notch" condition, with need for only two weeks in heavy training to put him in shape for his bout with Tommy Gibbons in Shelby, July 4.

It was a cold drizzle day but the eight mile run was made by Dempsey and his sparring partners. This was followed by shadow boxing, bag punching and a little rope skipping. Very light workouts will be the order of the week, it was said, and not until next week will b the heavy boxing be resumed.

IRELAND ELIMINATES INDIA IN DAVIS CUP PLAY

Fysee, representing India in straight sets, 6-4, 7-5, 6-2, and Dr. McCrea won even more decisively from S. M. Jacob, at 6-4, 8-6, 6-4. Campbell played an almost faultless game, timing his shot nicely and placing them accurately. In the afternoon match McCrea also gave a fine exhibition. His service was powerful, he covered court well and put plenty of variety into his game, leaving Jacob flatfooted time after time with drop shots. Jacob's service was good, but he failed to follow it up.

Tex Rickard has entered the field as a bidder for the Criqui-Dundee bout. Tom O'Rourke, Polo Grounds matchmaker who staged the championship bout Saturday has not made the Frenchman a definite offer as yet but it was understood he was ready to promote another featherweight title match on July 28 or August 4 at the Giants' ball park.

"O'Rourke gave Criqui his chance to win the championship and I feel obliged to sign for a Dundee match with him, and particularly to give him a chance to recoup financial losses on the Kilbane fight," declared Eudeline.

O'Rourke had not made public final figures on the title bout, but it was generally understood that his loss was around $50,000 with the receipts totalling $90,000.

Eudeline declared that before coming to the United States he and Criqui had promised to return to Paris immediately after meeting Kilbane to box at a benefit for the scientific laboratories in a bout substituted for a cancelled return match between Georges Carpentier and Battling Siki. When the New York state athletic commission, however, ruled that the winner of the Kilbane-Criqui fight must accept Dundee's challenge within 60 days, Eudeline postponed the benefit. He and Criqui, he said, will return to France after the Dundee match to fulfill their benefit obligation, after which they will be ready to come back here again.

The little New York Italian, he pointed out, has been fighting steadily and will be at his best, whereas Kilbane apparently had not recovered his former punch and stamina, due to nearly two years of inactivity.

THE ELECTION RESULT.

It was an off-year election. It was a time when a small vote was to be anticipated because of the lack of enthusiasm that surrounds the choice of the chief executive of the city, and it was a small vote that was polled. But out of the number who went to the polls it was quite evident that there had been carefully taken into consideration the fitness of the men for the offices nominated, and the result is one that cannot be ignored.

The voters of Norwich have had before them the stewardship of the past year's administration. They have given expression to their dissatisfaction with the manner in which certain matters have been handled. It was not within their power to take control away from the democrats but the result is one that must get consideration in the conduct of city affairs during the ensuing year if the voice of the people amounts to anything.

That there was likewise dissatisfaction within the democratic ranks is not to be overlooked. That accounted for the small vote to a certain extent, while the large majorities in certain instances reflected the wide open breach in that party. This break and the administration's mistakes made republican success easier.

For the ensuing year the common council will be equally divided with the deciding vote resting with the mayor. The intolerance by the voters upon the change from full democratic control cannot fail to make its impression. It calls for a change in policies quite as decided as the election result. The welfare of the public cannot be disregarded indefinitely and the outcome of Monday's election is only what should be regarded as that needed word to the wise.

The voters of Norwich have made an excellent selection for city officials and there is every reason to believe that they will, insofar as is possible, assume their full responsibilities and reflect the confidence that has been placed in them.

TRINITY'S FIRST HONORARIO.

From all corners of the state as well as all sections of the country there will be interest in the centennial observance at Trinity college. This is an institution that has gone about its work in a steady, persistent manner offering excellent educational advantages and turning out its graduates for the betterment of the nation. It is a college that has not experienced the great growth of others but it is nevertheless a highly valuable [illegible] asset. It is an institution into which no small amount of eastern Connecticut influence has gone during the years when it was under the guidance of Dr. [illegible] Luther and it is an institution that has been the stepping stone to greater things for many in this part of the state in spite of the older and larger colleges and universities.

Because its expansion has not been as great Trinity's graduating are not as numerous as those of other institutions, but they are nevertheless none the less loyal and none the less appreciative of the benefits that were gained therefrom. Trinity has served for a long term of years. It has been a service of a high order. It has also undergone changes quite the same as other colleges, but as it reaches the ten score mark and starts out on its second century with bright hopes and prospects, it is to be hoped that it will be fortunate in having quite as valuable guidance as it has had in the past. That being the case there can be no question of the still prouder record that it will display when the time comes around for the observance of the bicentennial in 2023. Connecticut depends on it more and more each year.

A FRIEND OF ANIMALS.

Today marks the centenary of the birth of George T. Angell, a leader in behalf of kindness to animals whose efforts and work were nationwide. Knowing what the Golden Rule meant to humanity he endeavored with marked success the extension of that principle to include animals and through his labors, publication and [illegible] accomplished a remarkable amount of good not only during his lifetime but set in motion activities and interest that will continue to carry on the good work indefinitely.

He was so thoroughly imbued with his movement that it steadily grew in scope and accomplishment. He set in motion new lines of thought which others have been eager to endorse and the soundness of the efforts in behalf of greater kindness for animals makes many friends each passing year. His record of achievement in that direction is a glorious one.

How thoroughly he was devoted to his cause is well indicated by his own words when he wrote: "Not until our laws shall have been pertected by further legislation and judicial [illegible] but will our courts shall be [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Declares Tanlac Benefited Her So Much She Would Recommend It To Anyone.

Mrs. W. A. Lee, 84 South St., is another highly esteemed Pawtucket, R. I., resident, who has realized the value of Tanlac as a powerful stomach corrective and system builder. Recently she said:

"I am just now on my third bottle of Tanlac and I am so well pleased with the results that I would recommend it to anyone. For months I was terribly nervous, had no appetite, and the lightest meal would leave me feeling stuffed up and uncomfortable for hours.

"I was so weak, run-down and sallow my friends noticed it, and I think it was my looks that prompted one of them to tell me of the remarkable benefits her mother had received from Tanlac and suggest I try it. She was a friend indeed, for now I am gaining strength every day, enjoy all my meals and the nervousness has left me entirely. Now my daughter is taking Tanlac and she, too, is getting splendid results."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

The republicans elected their entire ticket in the city election Monday, routing the democrats by majorities that ranged from 77 to 337.

The ballots elected E. Larue Bliven and Edward Crooks, aldermen; Martin Roszycki, Frank Russel Smith, Alfred G. Lillibridge and Lee Clegg, councilmen in the common council for the current year. This will leave the council standing two democratic and two republican aldermen, four democratic and four republican councilmen, with Mayor Milo R. Waters, a democrat, holding the deciding vote in case of a division along strict party lines.

On the straight party vote for water commissioner, the republican majority was 125, but there were wide differences on many of the candidates where the effect of the split in the democratic party was seen in the balloting, E. Larue Bliven, elected alderman, with a vote of 2300, had the largest majority on the ticket, 337 over John T. Gleason. Edward Crooks, who has been a councilman, was elected alderman, defeating his opponent, William H. Harrington, by 193 majority. Martin Rozycki was reelected a councilman, going in by a majority of 221 over Adam J. Gernhard, while Frank Russell Smith scored a majority of 249 over William W. O'Leary for councilman. Alfred G. Lillibridge, elected councilman, won by a majority of 224 over Edward T. Connelly, and Lee Clegg, elected councilman, had a majority of 77 over Frank M. Green, who polled the largest vote on the democratic ticket.

City Clerk Weston C. Pullen, demonstrated his popularity, by polling the largest vote on the republican ticket, 2314, which gave him a majority of 329 over Timothy F. Sullivan.

Stephen H. Reeves, who has previously been city treasurer, will return to that office, as he succeeded in beating out Senator Charles S. Avery, who has held the office for the past year, by a majority of 138.

Districts Were Divided

On the vote for water commissioner, where there is no contest but each man nominated, Reuben S. Bartlett, republican and Arthur E. Story, democrat, is elected, it was shown that the republicans won two of the city districts, the central and the East Side, while the West Side and Greeneville went to the democrats. In the central district the republican majority was 180, on the East Side N. in Greeneville, the democratic majority was 38 and on the West Side 4, but these majorities varied greatly on the vote for aldermen and councilmen.

Light Vote Cast.

A year ago when Mayor Waters swept into office with a majority of 638, one of the heaviest votes known in a city election was cast, 3,469 men and 2,826 women voting, but this year there was apparently little interest shown and only about 52 per cent. of the registered voters, men and women, cast ballots. Of the 4,626 men registered in the four city districts only 2,725 voted and of the 3,086 women registered only 1,744 voted, making a total vote cast of 4,469.

Men who have seen many elections come and go at the court house said Monday that they had never known such a quiet time in the building on election day. The steady tramp of people through the halls, which usually marks the day, was absent and the ordinary business of the offices was little ruffled by the battle of ballots that was being waged in the big town hall upstairs.

Both party town committees had provided automobiles for getting the voters to the polls, but at times there seemed to be little for them to do and the fleet of machines stood at attention in Union square, waiting for orders.

It was reported that the republican women's vote got out in fairly good shape during the morning, but that the democratic women seemed to be lagging in the morning and they did not make up for this by coming out strongly in the afternoon.

The republican town committee had headquarters, as usual, in the county commissioners room, while the democratic town committee worked from the assessors' room. At each place lunch was served for the workers.

When the polls for the Central district opened at 5.30 a. m. the first woman to vote was Bridget Crimmins and the first man was City Clerk Pullen.

Good arrangements for handling the voters expeditiously and comfortably in case there had been a rush were made by having the checkers for the men's vote and the women's vote occupy separate tables to which separate aisles were arranged. This plan worked well and there were no waits. Three voting machines were in use and all worked perfectly, as they did in all the districts.

In the first hour 75 had voted in the Central district. By noon 772 men and 404 women had voted and at 3 o'clock the total was 1,066 men and 680 women. When Moderator M. E. Jensen declared the polls closed at 5 o'clock, standard time, 1,305 men and 880 women had voted, according to the checkers' count.

LEE CLEGG
Elected City Councilman.

As soon as the polls had closed, Moderator Jensen took the vote from the machines with the assistance of Registrars Tyler D. Guy and Cornelius J. Downes. The public counters on the machines showed that 976 votes had been cast on the first, 823 on the second and 330 on the third.

Officials from the West Side arrived with the tally of their vote at 6.30, followed soon afterwards by the officials from the East Side and Greeneville. The entire vote was assembled, totalled and announced within about an hour after the polls had closed. Moderator Jensen read the official figures to a small group of men who had lingered to hear the final returns.

The following were the election officials:

First district—Moderator, M. E. Jensen; checkers, Frank I. Royce, James F. Sheridan; challengers, Harold S. Burt, William T. Sixth district—Moderator, Joseph Rainey; checkers, James Fraser, Elmer G. Haskell; challengers, Merton Ralisford, Alex Marriott; machine tenders, Ralph W. Patrick, George H. Lynch; door keepers, Emil A. Jahn, Brenton B. Allen.

During the day, assistance to voters who wanted last-minute instructions on operating the voting machines was given by Superintendent Joseph J. Fields who demonstrated on a spare machine that was located in the corridor at the court house.

The vote was as follows:

AUTOMOBILE DAMAGED IN CHURCH ST. COLLISION

A Buick touring car and an Oakland sedan, going opposite directions, collided on Church street on the hill in the rear of the Breed theatre on Monday night about 8.30 o'clock. Both cars were considerably damaged by the crash.

According to what could be learned of the accident, Michael Johns of School street was driving his Oakland sedan down Church street on the right hand side of the road. With him as passengers were his five-year-old son and John Scarvellis. When he got about half way down the hill he saw the Buick turn into Church street from Washington square and start up the hill. Johns, according to what he told the police, drew over to the right hand side of the road, stopped his car, and blew his horn. The Buick kept coming towards him and crashed into the left front of his car.

When the two machines crashed the five-year-old boy riding with his father in the Oakland was thrown forward and his head went through the windshield. Fortunately the child escaped with a few minor cuts and bruises about the head.

James Wilbur of West Main street who was driving the Buick, told the police that the Oakland was coming down the hill at a fast rate of speed when he turned into Church street and started up the hill. Wilbur had with him as passengers Russell Morgan, Clarence Sebastian and Howard Potter. None of the occupants of the Wilbur car was injured.

The left hand headlight and front mudguard on the Oakland were torn away from their fastenings and pushed back almost to the driver's seat. The left front wheel and axle were considerably damaged.

The left front wheel and axle of the Buick were damaged to some extent. Both machines were able to move under their own power after temporary repairs had been made to the damaged wheels.

Both Wilbur and Johns will be in court this (Tuesday) morning.

POLICE SEIZE "JAKEY" BOTTLES IN CLUB RAID

As the result of an unexpected visit by the police about 9 o'clock Monday night at the Polish club on Sachem street, Paul Bannish, treasurer of the club, and four of the club members will be in court this (Tuesday) morning, Bannish to answer to the charge of violation of the liquor law.

Sergt. Thomas Murphy and Officers Patrick Murphy and John O'Neil went to the club rooms about 9 o'clock. Sergt. Murphy and Officer O'Neil went up the stairs to the door leading into the club rooms. Sergt. Murphy knocked on the door and as he did, someone inside lifted the curtain of a nearby window and peered out. The door was locked. Sergt. Murphy ordered those inside the club room to open the door.

The door was unlocked and the officers stepped inside. They saw two empty bottles and an empty glass on a table. Four men were seated in the room. Inspecting what appeared to be a bar the officers pulled out a drawer and found beneath the top of the "bar" a cubby hole in which three bottles of "jakey" were concealed. The bottles were taken as evidence and Bannish and the four men were taken to police headquarters.

At police headquarters the men told Captain D. J. Twomey that Monday was the regular meeting night of the club and that the club just started to appear when the police arrived. Bannish told Captain Twomey that he is the treasurer of the club. The four men were seated around a table evidently completing reports to be submitted to the meeting.

Bonds of $500 were furnished by Bannish for his appearance in court this (Tuesday) morning. In the case of the other four men they were summoned to appear in court with Bannish. The quartette gave the following names: John Kubert, Chuck Larnahavich, Kasper Drone and Walter Kapelon.

FLAT FOOT IS SERIOUS

Robert Hutchison holds that there is perhaps no common conditions the symptoms of which are oftener misinterpreted than flat-foot, in discussing the subject in the Medical Record. Flat-foot presents itself in childhood, when it is the result of laxity of muscles and ligaments and produces difficulty in walking and deformities, but no pain; in early adult life, when it often develops quite acutely and may cause great pain, and about middle age when it comes on gradually as the re-result partly of diminished elasticity which advancing years bring and partly in consequence of the increased strain thrown upon the arch by the rise in body weight, which so often supervenes at this time.

It is these middle-aged cases which which are most apt to be overlooked. The pain associated with flat-foot in these cases may be attributed to gout, rheumatism, neuritis, the lightning pains of tabes, or even to "neurasthenia." The edema of the feet and ankles which flat-foot may cause is sometimes mistaken for cardiac dropsy, and pain in the right knee and hip which result from it may be regarded as due to sacroiliac disease. It is important to remember the possibility of such mistakes. If the true cause of the symptoms is recognised, treatment is as simple as it is satisfactory. All that is necessary as it is satisfactory. All that is necessary is to order a suitable pair of instep supports.

SHOCKS FOR SHIPS

Even in stormy weather the average height of waves in midocean does not as a rule exceed 30 or 40 feet. Sometimes however, one enormous wave makes it appearance among the rest.

Why this should happen no one can say. All we know is that a mighty mass of water rushes suddenly towards a ship at the appalling speed of over 100 miles an hour.

If the ship can meet such a wave with her bows she will ride over it, though thousands of tons of water may sweep the deck. But if the wave if following her from the stern, she may fail to rise. Many a good ship had gone to her doom in this way.

These vast mountains of water rise sometimes to a height of more than 100 feet—as high as the spire of a church. They have been known to extinguish the masthead lights of sailships.

Sometimes on a perfectly calm day there will be a sudden troubling of of the surface of the sea, and without the slightest warning a wave 150 feet high will appear.—Exchange.

THE BAT

The bat, whose wings are a mass of nerves which enable it to avoid objects in flight, is declared by scientists to be one of the most wonderful of all animals in its physical makeup. It is claimed for it that it has from one to three senses that no other animal has. So delicate are the nerves in its wings and so responsive to air vibrations that a bat can be blinded and turned loose in a room where several objects are hanging from the ceiling by cords, and it will fly about them without touching any object, the nerves catching the "feel" of the objects as the bat draws near them. Naturalists in experimenting with bats have whirled a cane over their head so rapidly that the cane appeared to be a misty funnel. On their heads they wore caps of vivid colors that bats dislike and would frequently fly at. The bats would rush at them until the whirling cane was reached, and then dard down, touch the cap and fly away, passing between the orbit of the cane without being touched, demonstrating a keenness of observation and deficancy of speed judgment unequaled by any other living animal.—Exchange.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Two grade crossings over which a great amount of traffic passes each week—at Attawaugan crossing, near Alexander's lake, are to be protected by flashing danger signals to be installed as soon as the work can be undertaken. Railroad officials were at the crossings Monday looking over the locality. At the present time these crossings, which are only about 300 feet apart, are without gates, signal bells or flagmen. Only the usual crossings signs are in place to war traffic of the danger of accidents. During the summer season particularly many machines go over the New Haven road tracks at these crossings every day and while there has not been an accident at either of them for many years there is always the danger of one occurring and motorists who are familiar with the locality use extreme care in getting over the tracks. It is understood that the signals to be installed will while operating automatically give due warning of the approach of a train, and a single signal may be set up to give warning that should be ample for both crossings, one on the route from the Lake road to Attawaugan, the other leading to Putnam via the Putnam Country club and Park street.

Orren Stone Arnold, who was in his 86th year, died shortly after 9 o'clock Sunday night at his home in Goodyear, where he had been a resident for a great many years. Mr. Arnold had been in poor health and a condition regarded as critical for nearly a month past, but the end came rather unexpectedly and as a surprise to his relatives and friends.

Mr. Arnold was born in Coventry, R. I., June 27, 1837, a son of Henry R. and Alvoda (Stone) Arnold. His early life was spent in and near that territory. Early in life he acquainted himself with the bobbin manufacturing business and it was in that line that he was successfully engaged for a great many years, having a factory in Goodyear in the days when it was known as Williamsville. The bobbins turned out by this mill were in use in textile plants in a great many mills throughout the manufacturing districts of the United States. Mr. Arnold, who was a veteran of the Civil war and a member of Mcregor post, has been retired for a number of years. He leaves the son, H. Denham Arnold of Elmeville and Providence. Mrs. Arnold died several years ago.

A heat wave that besieged Danielson Monday was the first of the year in which the mercury mounted steadily upward until it had touched the 90 mark on many thermometers in town and let the hot weather friends in on their first joy period of the season. For the ice men, the obese and the man who feels during most of the year as though his veins and arteries were carrying ice water instead of good red blood Monday's weather was an event. The average human being sweltered.

There were those who said that the gathering of Shriners from every part of the Union in Washington was pyramiding the mercury, but hot, stuff as the bearers of the fez are their brethren here said there was nothing to the rumor, and one cannot dispute with those who know.

A promise of relief came late in the afternoon when thunder began to roll and some rain fell—but it was only a promise, so June 4 goes on record as one of the hottest corresponding dates in a long term of years.

French-speaking resident here are interested in a motor tour that is being organized in several sections of New England for the early part of July and with points of interest in Canada on the itinerary that is being mapped out. Dr. T. LaMarche of Putnam said Monday that he expected that as many as 100 cars will be in line when the start for Canada is made on or about July 12. The cavalcade will go to Montreal and into the many little cities and towns that have contributed so many worthy citizens to the upbuilding of scores of towns and cities in southern New England. Those who make the trip will have every opportunity while in Canada to visit with relatives who have remained across the border and to see places and friends that were sources of happiness in earlier years. The trip will be made by easy stages and it is anticipated that it will not only be novel throughout but an unusual experience and pleasure for all who make it.

Cotton manufacturing concerns in this territory will not be driven into doing the impossible by textile organizations who may demand unreasonable wage scales or working conditions, it was said Monday by one who is familiar with the policy of manufacturers in this territory. The manufacturers are not inviting any controversy, but it is understood are a unit in agreement on a policy under which they will combat any individual or concerted attack upon their industries as now operating. The growth during the past year of union membership in the textile plants along the Quinebaug valley has not gone by the manufacturers unobserved. They, it is understood are willing to meet every reasonable demand of labor wherever possible, but strikes, without a doubt, will result in the mill men retaliating with lockouts until such time as the plants can be operated under amicable arrangements and without constant friction. Outside of Putnam there is no textile labor troubles along the Quinebaug valley at the present time, and the great majority of the population hope this will continue to be true for an indefinite period.

Commenting on the difference of names of towns in the states and across the border in Canada a recent arrival—an old friend, Pierre Petac—said Monday: "In Canada we got plenty town which she is name after the saint—lak St. George, St. Gregoire, St. Hyacinthe, St. Victor—but in this country a see only of town lak that—Saintral Falls."

F. E. Bitgood left Monday afternoon for Hartford to join up with members of Sphinx temple of the Mystic Shrine who are en route to Washington for what without doubt is the greatest event in Shrinedom for many, many years and which will bring thousands of wearers of the fez from every nook and corner of the United States.

Guarantors of Chautauqua met in the rooms of the Danielson Trust company Monday evening to make plans for this year's series of entertainments. The meeting was addressed by Miss Grace Hershey, representing the Chautauqua association.

Monday afternoon the funeral of Benoit Bouthillier, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Andre Bouthillier, was held from their home on Allen hill with a service conducted at the Sacred Heart church in Wauregan by Rev. J. C. Mathieu. Burial was in Sacred Heart cemetery. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

This section is in dire need of rain. Now rid of the unseasonably cold weather, a dry period is at hand that is delaying the development of crops.

Miss Kathleen Burns of Hartford has been a visitor with her mother, Mrs. Mary Burns, and other relatives in town.

At a session of the town court Monday morning a sentence of 30 days was imposed by Judge W. Fenner Woodward on a Goodyear man, charged with having been intoxicated. A non-support charge was not pressed when the man agreed to pay a stated sum each week for the support of his wife and children.

Mrs. J. H. Smith, Mrs. J. H. Barnett, Miss Roxie Bergstrom, Mrs. R. C. Spencer and Willard S. Danielson are a committe of the Westfield club making arrangements for a meeting of the organization to be held on Friday of this week.

Mrs. Walter Musgrave will have the members of the Woman's auxiliary of St. Alban's church at her home for a meeting Thursday afternoon. There will be a discussion on China.

Mrs. Albert Webb of Allen Hill will have the members of the Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church at her home for a meeting this Tuesday) afternoon.

There will be no special and elaborate celebration of the Fourth in Danielson. East Killingly will stage another big demonstration again this year, it is understood, with a fine shore dinner as a feature.

PUTNAM

There were various interesting features in the Manhasset strike situation Monday. The day brought forth that probably as many as 16 families will have their goods set outside mill company houses they are occupying if they do not vacate by today or tomorrow in the carrying out of the summary processes that were begun during the past month. It was announced by strike leaders that Secretary John J. O'Connell had gone on from New York to Washington to lay before the commissioner of immigration his allegation that help has been brought here from Canada in violation of the contract labor law. The strike leaders also gave out that they have learned that the mill company is seeking laborers in Manchester, N. H., and in other textile centers—that a couple who came here from Manchester to take work in the mill returned after they learned that there is labor trouble at the plant, a fact of which they were not aware when they arrived here. This couple—man and wife—reported to the strikers on their coming to Putnam and were given money to pay their railroad fares back to Manchester. Incidentally, the strike leaders here have caused advertisements to be inserted in a number of papers circulating in New England textile centers warning textile workers that labor trouble exists in Putnam.

The strikers were as confident as ever Monday as their holdout was reaching toward the end of the fourth week of the industrial strife. They are now getting liberal strike benefits each week and are prepared to hold out, as far as finances go, throughout the summer. The burden of strike benefits also is being lightened through the fact that some of those who left their work are finding employment elsewhere. Eight left Monday to take jobs they have obtained, it was said at strike headquarters.

Wide circulation is being given a printed statement which the strikers have issued and which is headed "The Truth About the Putnam Strike." The circular was read with keen interest by large numbers in Putnam and concludes with the following statement of demands:

"On the receipt of the answer from the management the operatives unanimously resolved they would not return to work unless the three following conditions were met:

(1) Advance of 7 per cent. in wages which would put them on a par with the general advance of 12 1-2 per cent.

(2) Reinstatement of all who came out on their own jobs.

(3) Withdrawal of all eviction notices.

The strike has now settled down to a test of endurance with the chances of winning greatly in favor of the operatives if adequate financial assistance is given them. They are fighting under great handicaps, a blanket injunction against them was obtained by the mill on the second day of the strike. Under this injunction nine of the operatives have been arrested, seven for intimidation and two for contempt of the injunction. The seven arrested for intimidation were given suspended sentences of ten days in jail, and were released under cash bonds subject to their good behavior for six months. This has tied up a considerable amount of the strike funds. The two operatives arrested for contempt of the injunction have had their cases continued to the next session of the court. If the court finds them guilty on this count it will mean a jail sentence without the option of either a fine or an appeal. On Monday, May 28th, eight families were evicted from the mill tenements; fifty more families have received eviction notices. Despite all that has happened the strikers remain solid and courageous. They are gallantly fighting a battle on behalf of all workers. Support them generously."

The following is a tentative list of pupils to be graduated from the Israel Putnam, East Putnam and Smith Street schools during the present month:

For the first time this season the mercury clambered up into the 90 section Monday and turned in a sample of real summer weather, not such a treat as even those who clamor for hot weather really relish and it wilted those who frankly confess their opposition of too much heat. Again such high temperature unhappily came at a time when this territory is badly in need of rain which need was partly met late in the afternoon when darkened skies foretold the approach of thunder storms that broke shortly after 4 o'clock, bringing some relief to this and neighboring towns. Incidentally the telephone service got its first hot of the season from an electrical storm and there will be plenty for the line crews to do today in clearing up storm trouble.

No accidents of serious nature were repoted here as having occurred over the week-end. There was one little accident at the corner of Main and Buck streets in which cars owned by Peter LaBonte of this city and Robert E. Lowe of Woodstock were in collision, but no one was injured and the cars only slightly damaged.

Monday before Justice Archibald Macdonald there was a hearing in summary process proceedings involving families of former workers of the Manhasset Manufacturing company. These were the final hearings in these particular cases and evictions are expected to follow promptly. Similar action in other pending cases is anticipated for later in the week.

This year class colors of Putnam High school are orange and black. Green and gold are the colors selected by the class of the eighth grade of the Israel Putnam school, and red and gold by the eighth grade class of the Smith street school.

The many Putnam motorists that use the route past the Putnam Country club to Alexander's lake and to points south will be pleased to know that an electric signal that will flash warnings of an approaching train at the pair of crossings of the New Haven road in the locality known as Attawaugan crossing is to be installed. At the present time these crossings, much used, are absolutely without protection other than the usual crossing signs.

MRS. BUTLER'S TERRIBLE PAINS

Vanished After Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

W. Philadelphia, Pa. — "When I cleaned house last April I must have overlifted, for after that I had pains and aches all the time and was so discouraged I could hardly do my own housework, and I could not carry a basket of groceries from the store nor walk even four or five squares without getting terrible pains in my back and abdomen and lower limbs. I went to visit a friend in Mt. Holly, N. J., and she said, 'Mrs. Butler, why don't you take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' My husband said that if it did her so much good for the same trouble, I should try it. So I have taken it and it is doing me good. Whenever I feel heavy or bad, it puts me right on my feet again. I am able to do my work with pleasure and am getting strong and stout."—Mrs. CHARLES BUTLER, 1238 S. Hanson St., W. Philadelphia, Pa.

NEW LONDON CITY COUNCIL PASSES JULY 4th FIREWORKS ORDINANCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 4—The city council this evening adopted a Fourth of July ordinance to restrict the sale of fireworks and explosives so that they may be sold on the four business days preceding the 4th and exploded on the 3d from 7 a. m. to 1 p. m. and on the 4th from 7 a. m. till midnight. The privilege to explode fireworks in the parks was allowed but they are not to be exploded within 200 feet of a public hospital nor of a private residence in which sickness prevails and which the city manager has issued a card restricting the explosion of the fireworks or explosives.

The special privilege given to the Yellow Cab company to park cars at the railroad station was given a jolt and the claim was made that the special privilege given to the company was illegal. The other cabmen of the city were represented by counsel and the claim was made that the cutting of rates by the Yellow Cab company was clearly a violation of ordinance which now exists and which has existed for several months. The petition of the remonstrants was referred to the director of law and the city manager for a report at the next meeting.

The ordinance which the city adopted last summer relating to bathing and which was known to many as the "bathing with umbrellas" ordinance, was repealed this evening, so that bathers in public places are not now restricted as to where they shall go nor as to who "they shall rub against," [illegible] at Ocean Beach. The condition of James Slade, aged 24 years of No. 28 Crystal avenue, who sustained a fractured skull yesterday afternoon when the automobile he was driving crashed against a telephone pole near the Golden Spur, remains unchanged tonight at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital. Slade has remained in an unconscious state ever since he was picked up by an autoist in the highway near his car and transferred to the hospital.

This afternoon Thomas Callahan of No. 147 Main street, appeared at the police station and informed Captain Charles A. Pinney that he was the sole companion of Slade's on the auto trip and further stated that the reason that he ran away leaving Slade helpless in the road was that he was intoxicated and did not remember anything about the accident, not even as to what caused the machine to crash against the telephone pole. Callahan declared that Slade was sober and had not taken a drink of any kind. State Policeman M. R. Sterling is investigating the case and will interrogate Callahan for the purpose of determining, if possible, just how the accident was brought about.

An automobile, owned and operated by Charles C. Townsell of No. 162 Franklin street, Norwich and a car, owned and driven by Santo Sammataro of No. 25 Ocean avenue, were in collision this afternoon at the corner of Willetts and Ocean avenues and at exactly the same place where a collision occurred yesterday in which a machine was overturned. Mrs. Sammataro, who was with her husband was severely cut about the face by flying glass from the broken windshield and was removed to Home Memorial hospital, where it was stated tonight that the woman's condition is not serious. Sammataro was ordered to appear in the police court tomorrow morning by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock for not having an operator's license in his possession.

The accident occurred when Sammataro's car was entering Ocean avenue from Willetts avenue. At the same time the car operated by Townsell and headed towards Ocean Beach came along at a fast rate of speed, according to witnesses. As Sammataro's car swung into Ocean avenue, Townsell applied his brakes, but both cars came together and proceeded to the opposite side of the highway where they crashed against a stone wall. Both cars were damaged and a section of the wall was felled. The impact of the collision caused the windshield of the Sammataro car to be smashed and the fragments of glass struck Mrs. Sammataro about the face. Residents in the vicinity of the accident heard the crash and believing that a much more serious collision had resulted communicated with Home Memorial hospital and the ambulance was rushed to the scene of the accident. Mrs. Sammataro was bleeding freely from her cuts and she was placed in it and conveyed to the institution.

Edward Hickey, a farm hand, was sent to jail for a stay of 20 days from the police court this forenoon. Hickey has a long record of offenses against the laws of the state, but it is usually his anti-Volstead ideas that makes his troubles for him. It was while he was liquor-laden Sunday that Hickey went against his latest trouble, for his argument docked John Moriarty overboard—the force of the argument that carries gestures with it. Moriarty is in the hospital threatened with pneumonia because of the cold bath that was forced upon him.

Paul Dubrow, a Hartford autoist, was fined $25 in the police court this forenoon for running down M. Elbert Geer three weeks ago. Paul and Abraham Chase started from Hartford, they said in a drizzling rain, late in the afternoon and made the run here in two hours or thereabouts. When they hit Broad street they hit a pace that Mr. Geer said was 50 to 60 miles an hour, and they came right along toward's the city's busiest streets. Geer was then driving a horse attached to a light wagon into Center street, and on the crossing the Dubrow auto crashed into him. He said his son Ray was thrown out of the wagon, the former was so shaken and bruised that he went to the hospital, and the son in much better shape. The Dubrow auto kept right on after the collision and didn't stop till it encountered a stone wall which it could not climb. Now Mr. Geer isn't taking that sort of treatment even by a well-disposed autoist, so he will ask the insurance company which has been carrying the risk on the auto to settle with him.

Minnie Kerrison, colored, was fined $40 in the police court today for maintaining what the law says is a disreputable house. Two sailors from the submarine base who evidently had been at the place on previous occasions were there Sunday night. Policeman Ray watched the patrons of Minnie's house come and go and then he raided the place and brought the evidence with him in the person of the sailors. The sailors were not prosecuted as they turned the case to a condition where conviction of the offending Minnie was certain. Judge Smith, who was on the bench, told the sailors they were a disgrace to the uniform they wore and gave them to understand that if they came before him again on a similar complaint that they will get "both barrels" of justice.

Peter Green, a barge master, was fined $50 for the theft of 500 pounds of copper wire from the Connecticut Power company. Peter had the chance to steal the wire for it was on the pier where the barge of which he is master was moored. Green set up a statement that he did not want to sell the wire. He said he just stole it. So Judge Smith attached a penalty to the offense and that will permit the owners of the barge to pay the fine if Green is wanted badly aboard the barge. He talked as if the owners could never do business without him, and that caused the imposition of the fine instead of a jail sentence.

NORWICH DENTIST TO APPEAR IN NEW LONDON COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 4—Dr. Owen W. Nappanay of No. 16 Broadway street, Norwich, today was ordered to appear before Justice of the Peace Thomas F. Morton in the Waterford town court tomorrow morning and answer the charges of breach of the peace, trespass and damage to private property. Happenay was ordered into court by State Policeman M. R. Sterling upon complaint of Edward C. Hazelwood of Waterford.

It is alleged that Dr. Happenay came to New London late yesterday with a woman friend and drove to Waterford. When near the Hammond property Happenay decided to leave the main highway and operated his auto to the driveway of the Hammond estate. There, it is understood, that the couple made so much noise that dogs started barking and the couple then drove through the yard and across cultivated land and came only to a stop when their car sank in the marshland abutting Alewife cove. The couple were forced to abandon the car and this morning it required a team of horses owned by Frederick Dimock to haul the automobile to solid land. The owner of the estate was enraged at the conduct of Happenay and complained to authorities with the result that Happenay was made the defendant of a trio of charges.

NEW LONDON PLUMBERS ARE OUT ON STRIKE

New London, June 4—The journeymen plumbers went on a strike this morning because the master plumbers objected to claims which included in the new working conditions that have been under consideration by both bodies some time. The masters refused to sign the agreement unless clause 6 was stricken out, and as a result there are about 10 plumbers idle. Clause 6 reads substantially as follows: Any journeyman going to work about removing their tools one half day's pay, unless discharged for just cause. The members of the journeymen may accept two a week pay, but it is believed that the [illegible] will be [illegible] of the [illegible] which a new [illegible] journeymen in New London has been 80 cents an hour, and the agreement which was to be binding at that time was really never signed owing to some minor objections affecting both the masters and the journeymen. This uncompleted agreement has been in force until today, when the objectionable clause in a new agreement caused the men to quit work when the masters objected to it. The matter of increasing the rate of wages from 80 cents to $1 an hour was acceded to.

In some of the large cities some journeymen plumbers are receiving $9 and $10 per day. The master plumbers say the withdrawal of clause 6 would simplify the entire situation as it is hardly necessary for the journeymen to try and coerce the masters into a practice that has always been in vogue without being incorporated in an agreement.

MYSTIC

Bids are already in for the work on Baptist hill. The specifications call for a concrete highway 2,625 feet in length and 18 feet in width. McGann Brothers of New Haven were the lowest bidders at $47,390.70 plus 2,700 barrels o cement at $2.75, adding $7,425, and totaling $74,715.70 as the contract. The state's estimate was $78,604.50. Engineers in the employ of the state highway department have been here working on the layout of the connecting link of the state highway as this piece, and stakes for the grade line and width of the road have been driven at nearly the whole distance. It is now expected that the contract will be let and the work begin this month. This hill and Dudley hill were the two worst hills in this section for autoists and more accidents have happened on these two hills during the summer months than on any other two hills in Connecticut. In winter these hills are so steep and icy that it is almost impossible to climb them with an auto, and coming down them is more dangerous as they are so steep cars slide over the road.

MARKET WAS UNSETTLED.

New York, June 4.—Prices pursued an uneven course in today's stock market with principal interest centered in a few individual issues subject to special influence. There was no disposition on the part of large operators to materially extend their committments, pending a more definite indication of the ultimate market trend, and the volume of sales was one of the smallest for any full day session in recent weks.

Initial quotations gave the market an appearance of strength but trading quieted down perceptibly when the week end buying orders had been absorbed. Expanding Crude Oil production was made the basis for rather extensive short selling of the oil shares around noon, General Asphalt breaking 4 points to the lowest figure in five years. Marland was sold freely on the announcement of a new stock offering, closing more than a point lower at 43. California Petroleum climbed more than 2 point above Saturday's closing quotation before profit taking set in and forced it down to 113 3-8 for a net loss of nearly 1 points. Standard Oil of New Jersey duplicated its previous low.

Davison Chemical was in good demand on reports that contracts for use of its silica gel process were under negotiation with the Pan-American and Royal Dutch Companies. Consolidated Gas lost ground in response to the signing of the 6 dollar gas bill by Governor Smith. Marine common and preferred each touched new lows on the passing of the preferred dividend and the poor 1922 report.

Just before the close a buying demonstration was staged in such low priced rails as Rock Island, Southern, Baltimore & Ohio, Pere Marquette, Pittsburgh & West Virginia and St. Louis & Southwestern common and preferred, a few of which closed at net gains of a point or more. Union Pacific, up 1 5-8, was one of the strong stocks of the investment list.

Call money held steady at 4 3-4 per cent. all day. There was no change in time money and commercial paper rates the volume of business being small.

Foreign exchanges were heavy. Demand sterling dropped half a cent to $4.62 1-2. French francs broke 6 points to 6.41 cents. Italian lire dropped 7 points to 4.61 cents, a new low for the year. German marks snapped back to .0011 cents from their recent low of .0012 1-2.

BOND MARKET.

New York, June 4.—Foreign bonds made moderate improvement in today's dull dealings on the New York Stock Exchange but changes in the rest of the list were decidedly irregular. U. S. government bonds moved within a radius of 1-8 of a point. Liberty 3 1-2's and the first 4 1-4's making the best showing.

Bordeaux 6's, Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean 6's, Serbian 8's and Brazilian 7's and 8's each closed about a point higher. In the railroad list New Haven franc 7's climbed a point despite the heaviness of French exchange. Louisville & Nashville refunding 5 1-2's dropped nearly 1 1-2, other issues showing only fractional changes on the day.

Montana Power 5's, up 1 1-4, led the advance in the active industrials in which a few of the steel and sugar company bonds took part. Colorado Industrial 5's were heavy.

Announcement was made today that the $22,000,000 Iowa soldier bonus issue had been awarded to a syndicate headed by Estabrook & Co. There were several small offerings.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Ill., June 4.—Persistent selling supposed to be largely from hedgers had a good deal to do with a material setback today in the value of wheat. Closing prices were heavy, 1 1-2 to 2 1-8 cents net lower with July 105 3-8 to 108 5-8 and September 103 3-8 to 106 1-2. Corn finished at 1-4 to 7-8 cent advance, oats unchanged to a shade lower, and provisions at a range varying from 12 cents decline to 7 cents gain.

Despite a transient rally due largely to a bulge in the corn market, wheat closed at the day's bottom prices, the lowest closing level in several months. Favorable weather and a prospect that harvesting of the 1923 crop would be under way in Texas before the end of the current week put bulls at a disadvantage from the outset. Besides uncertainty as to the effect of government regulations for administering the grain futures act continued also to exercise a depressing influence. On the other hand, liberal primary receipts neutralized the affect of a decrease in the visible supply total.

Estimates that the total crop of wheat in North America this season would be 125,000,000 bushels less than was the case last year were in part responsible for price upturns witnessed in the wheat market during the middle of the exchange session. However, with foreign demand on almost a hand to mouth basis, and with indications that hedging sales were in progress, buyers who had been influenced through sympathy with an advance in the corn market became discouraged near the end of the day, and general selling out led to a rapid drop in prices at the last.

Corn and oats derived their strength principally from a decided falling off in the amount of corn in Chicago and in the visible supply as a whole. Profit taking though, and the late weakness of wheat forced something of a reaction from the day's top prices.

In the provision market, the effect of lower quotations on hogs was somewhat counter-balanced by the largest May reduction in western stocks of meat since 1915.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

The remarkable increase in building activities in Norwich is shown by the fact that during the months of April and May there were 67 building permits issued by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton. During the month of April there were 28 permits granted for new buildings, additions and alterations the total value of the operations covered by these permits was $35,000. In May there were 39 permits granted by the firemarshal and the total value of the operations was placed at $75,000. During the past week 10 permits were granted the total valuation being approximately $15,000. The permits issued were as follows:

To Homer J. Monti to erect a frame bungalow on Burton avenue for Arthur Prodell. The bungalow is to be 24x30 feet and 1 1-2 stories high. The foundation will be of stone and cement and the exterior will be in clapboards and shingles. The interior will be finished in hardwood and plaster.

To Peck, McWilliams Co., to erect a brick building at 9 Thames street for Herman Goldberg. The size of the building is not given in the permit. The building will have a stone and concrete foundation with 12 inch brick side walls, a plate glass front slated coated roofing.

To Telley E. Babcock to build and construct a dwelling and garage on the so-called McKinley avenue extension. The house will be 24 1-2x39 feet and the garage will be 18x18 feet. The cellar of the house will be of stone and cement with a brick underpinning, the superstructure will be of frame. The exterior finish will be of clapboards with shingle roof. The interior will be in hardwood and plaster. The garage will be of frame construction.

To C. Dixon to build a frame bungalow for Robert Waddington on Hadley avenue and Bushnell street. The bungalow will be 24x28 feet with a cement foundation and spruce frame. The exterior will be shingled and the entire interior finish will be in hardwood and plaster.

To Moses J. Harvey to add a piazza to the present house on Hamilton avenue. The piazza will be of frame construction and will be 6x8 feet.

To W. S. Spencer, contractor, to add to and alter the present building for Raymond B. Case on Broad street. There will be two additions, one 8x12 feet and the other 10x28 feet. Both will have cement foundations with brick underpinning and the superstructure will conform to the present building.

To Thomas R. Cramsy to add a frame veranda to the house at 76 Summit street for John Shea. The veranda will be 5x22 feet.

To Julien Snyda to erect a piazza to his present building at 72 Roath street. The veranda will be of frame construction.

To John Griffith to build a frame garage on West Main street for A. W. Armstrong. The garage will be 10x16 feet and will have a concrete foundation.

To Hyde Bros. contractors, to add to the present house on Robbins Court for Asa Holland. The addition will be 12x16 feet and of frame construction.

There has been considerable progress made of the building projects now in hand in the city and several new buildings have been started. On Thames street the new garage for Herman Goldberg has been started and the work of tearing down the old building is well under way.

The work of remodeling the building of Joseph Bedard on Central Wharf is completed and the new store fronts have been installed. One of the stores is already occupied and the other is still vacant.

The Pasnik block is well along, all the exterior work having been completed. The plasterers are at work on the interior and this work will be completed within the next few days.

The New Palace theatre work is well along and shows a material advance over the past few weeks. The exterior work is fast nearing completion and work has been started on the finishing of the interior.

Several new buildings are being erected outside the city limits. There is a new building going up on West Main street near Maples' Corner, several buildings on Laurel Hill and some in Thamesville and Norwich Town.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 19 sales of real estate as compared to 15 sales for the corresponding week in 1922. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $55,075 and $17,015.

There were 11 sales of real estate in New London during the past week, exactly the same number as for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $75,050 and $32,945.

THE STATE RECORD.

Building permits for the week issued in the leading cities of the state reported in the Commercial Record numbered 853, as against 339 in the like week of last year and 236 in the same week of 1921. Cost of construction this week amounted to $1,401,695, which compares favorably with last year, when the total cost of new construction work was $1,108,493. The gain over the like week of 1921 is over 100 per cent., the cost of building in that year for the like week amounting to only $596,325.

NEW LONDON.

The plans for the memorial chapel to be erected in Cedar Grove cemetery for the New London Cemetery association have been completed. The building is to be of field stone, one story high, with basement. There will be a concrete foundation, concrete floors, and a slate roof. On the interior will be a chapel seating about 40 persons, a general office, a private office, rest rooms, etc. In the basement will be a vault, and the janitor's quarters will be provided in the upper story.

The contract has been awarded for the erection of the residence and garage for Mrs. George B. Lee on Hillside avenue. The dwelling will be of frame construction, 36x46 feet, of colonial design, containing nine rooms, tile baths and hot water heat. Contracts will be sublet for the plumbing, heating, wiring, tile and trim.

Estimates have been submitted for the proposed new pier at Ocean Beach. The figures received by City Manager Barlow give the approximate costs of various sizes of piers, the costs ranging from $30,000 to $80,000. It is expected that immediate action will be taken by the city council.

The contract has been taken for the erection at the corner of Dyke street and Ocean View place of a twin cottage for Mrs. N. Harris. Work is now under way. The dwelling will be of frame construction, 28x36 feet, with five rooms to each cottage.

Work has been started on the first of five bungalows to be erected on Catherine street. They will each be of frame construction, 24x36 feet, containing five rooms.

NORWICH TOWN

Troop No. 20, Boy Scouts of America, Frederic H. Wyant, scoutmaster, of Norwich Town, spent last Friday evening and a part of Saturday at the log cabin of Grosvenor Ely, which is situated on the Scotland road, near Baltic.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Ely, who had kindly donated the use of his cabin to this troop, the scouts enjoyed an overnight hike, having left Norwich Town green at 5 o'clock that afternoon, in two detachments.

The first, in charge of Semi Patrol Leader, John C. Hinrichs, Jr., consisting of 16 boys, followed out Scotland road direct to the camp. The other, a smaller company under Scoutmaster Wyant, accompanied by Scout Executive Frederick A. Benton, who was a guest of honor, struck out over Meeting House Rocks and by cross coutry came out at the Lillibridge farm on the Scotland road, and so proceeded on their journey until the cabin was reached.

The boys in charge of Senior Patrol Leader Hinrichs, were completing arrangements for cooking supper and making ready for the night, when the remainder of the troop arrived, so that before dark the camp took on the appearance of being a real military encampment.

Following supper which was cooked in the open, the boys played several games, retiring about 10.30, daylight time.

In the morning activities began and early with swimming, cooking breakfast, playing games, etc., until time to return home, which time was scheduled for 5 p. m. Saturday; but owing to the over exuberance of the youngsters, it was considered advisable to break camp so as to reach home by noon time.

The return hike was in to Baltic, thence by trolley to Norwich, arriving at the starting point about 12.30.

When leaving Friday afternoon, the scouts each carrying a blanket and provisions, attracted no little attention as they passed through the town.

Dr. J. E. Hinrichs and F. A. Benton, Sr., were also overnight guests at the camp.

Turkey, before the world war, controlled 1,710,224 square miles and 21,274,900 inhabitants.

Representatives of the chamber of commerce and prominent business men, it is expected, will gather at the above named hour to meet the rail officials. General Passenger Agent P. C. Corey and other prominent officials of the railroad will be present at the conference.

COMMUNITY PICNIC HAS CONSTANT ATTENDANCE GAIN

At the annual community picnic of the Norwich Rural Association in charge of President Grosvenor Ely, held last Friday evening in Lawthorpe Meadows, Norwich Town, there was at attendance of nearly 300.

The actual count given out was 196, which exceeded that of last year by 15 people, the gathering last year numbering 176.

That the people of Norwich show such interest in responding so generously with their presence and cooperation, is most pleasing to the association.

These pleasant gatherings are looked forward to each year by many who are interested in the beauties of nature, and a more ideal spot could not be found. The picnic in 1923, drew apparently the largest crowd up to that time; and the fact that the festivities this year brought together a large number is significant that the efforts of this association in making a success of a community picnic, are meeting with approval and appreciation.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATION FOR THE POSTMASTERSHIP

The United States civil service commission has issued announcements of examination on June 19 for postmasters, first class at Norwich and Bridgeport, where the terms of the present incumbents expire Sept. 10, 1923. The salary at Norwich is $3,600 and at Bridgeport $4,000.

While the Civil Service Commission is charged with the duty of testing applicants for positions of postmaster at offices of the first, second and third classes, such positions are not classified under the civil service law, being filled through nomination by the president and confirmation by the senate. However, the president is using the civil service machinery for the purpose of selecting the nominees.

Under the terms of the executive order any one of the highest three qualified eligibles for an office may be selected by the post office department for nomination by the president. The commission will determine who are the highest three qualified eligibles by carefully weighing the evidence it secures as to the qualifications of each of the entire number of applicants for the office. The highest three will be given percentage ratings.

A clause in the policy provides that in case of permanent disability the face of the policy will be paid. PROBABLY 100 AUTOS SOLD IN PAST MONTH

Norwich automobile dealers had a good business in sales during the past month, according to the bills of sale on machines recorded at the town clerk's office by dealers. There were 68 of these, which of course do not represent all the cars sold as there are cash sales which do not get recorded.

As automobile authorities figure that about 75 per cent. of new cars are bought on the installment plan, it is probable that the cash sales of cars in Norwich would run the month's total to over 100 machines.

PRESIDENT WAS PROMINENT IN SHRINERS' FESTIVITIES

Reviewed Parade of 20,000 Nobles, Delivered an Address on Fraternalism and Attended a Banquet—Intense Heat in Washington Made the Day Uncomfortable for Marchers and Spectators—Heat Prostrations Kept Ambulances Busy—More Than Sixty Persons, Including Shriners, Were Taken to Hospitals.

Washington, June 6. — President Harding had a prominent part today in the festivities incident to the opening here of the forty-ninth annual convention of the Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. He reviewed a parade of 20,000 nobles, the feature event of the day; delivered an address on Fraternalism at the first session of the imperial council, and attended a banquet tonight.

With Mrs. Harding and General Pershing, the executive, who is a noble of Aladdin temple of Columbus, O., remained for three and a half hours in his box in the reviewing stand in front of the White House as the long line of nobles passed through "The Garden of Allah" on their march over the "burning sands" of Pennsylvania avenue, from the capitol to Washington circle. Mr. Harding wore a white suit and fired fez, but General Pershing, also a noble, was in the uniform of his rank as general of the armies.

Both the executive and Mrs. Harding entered fully into the spirit of the occasion, vigorously applauding the marchers and finding amusement in the antics of some of the drum majors and the clowns accompanying several of the delegations. As each of the 118 temples passed the stand, the president and Mrs. Harding arose to salute the American flag, and so were kept on their feet much of the time the parade was under way. Apparently untired by this exertion, Mrs. Harding journeyed to Walter Reed hospital in the afternoon to attend a concert given for the wounded war veterans by the band and chanters of Aladdin temple.

The parade spectators included, besides the president and Mrs. Harding, members of the cabinet, the imperial potentate and his divan, ranking army and navy officers and foreign diplomats.

Clear skies greeted the Shriners, but long before the parade had ended the intense heat and great humidity made for keen discomfort for both the marchers and the thousands who packed the sidewalks and "circus" seats along the two miles of the pageant route. Heat prostrations were frequent and ambulances and temporary aid stations were kept busy. More than sixty persons, including Shriners, were taken to hospitals, while estimates were that equally as many were given first aid at the street stations. Those taken to hospitals were reported tonight to be out of danger.

Immediately after the parade ended, the imperial council was convened by Mr. McCandless and President Harding delivered the principal address. Declaring that sometimes "men band together for mischief, to exert misguided zeal," the executive said he liked the "highly purposed fraternity, because it is our assurance against menacing organization and conspiracy."

Daylight fireworks, an air "battle" between naval seaplanes and a "congress of the seas," in which appeared reproductions of vessels which have played a prominent part in the development of America, were other principal events of the day.

REDUCTION IN NUMBER OF MILLIONAIRE TAXPAYERS

Washington, June 5.—The ranks of America's millionaire taxpayers continue to grow thinner, according to statistics of income for 1921, made public tonight by the internal revenue bureau, which show that of the 6,865,176 firms and individuals filing returns for 1921 only twenty-one had incomes exceeding one million dollars. This represents a decrease of twelve from the number receiving million dollar incomes in 1920 and compares with 65 in 1919, 67 in 1918, 141 in 1917 and with 206 in 1916, the highest since income tax laws became operative.

There was a falling off also in the total number of returns filed for 1921 from the 7,259,944 filed for 1920, but the 1921 total was greater by nearly 1,330,000 than that for 1119. Indications already have been given that final computation of returns for 1922 will show another drop in the total as compared with the high mark of 1920.

Taxes aggregating $719,387,106 were collected on the more than six and a half million returns, an average of $107.98 per return. The income from which the taxes were drawn aggregated $19,677,212,528, the average net income per return amounting to $2,—

Padlock Penalty for "Dry" Law Violation

Knickerbocker Grill, New York, Closed for Six Months as a "Public Nuisance."

New York, June 5.—Federal prohibition forces today disclosed part of their future policy of controlling illicit liquor traffic without the aid of the Mullan-Gage state enforcement act when they closed, by court order, a popular Broadway cafe, the Knickerbocker Grill, for six months under the padlock section of the Volstead law.

At the same time police commissioners, sheriffs, the state troopers in various sections were notified by Palmer Canfield, state prohibition director, that they were still responsible for the enforcement of the federal laws in regard to prohibition.

Announcement of a surprise raid by federal prohibition agents on the Hotel Pontchartrain last night was coupled today with the statement that the raid was only the forerunner of others.

Federal Judge Hough, after hearing the government's evidence against the Knickerbocker Grill, in the heart of the theatrical district, declared it to be a public nuisance because of repeated violations of the prohibition laws. Some of the evidence was given by city policemen who told of finding a large wet party in progress in the Grill during the early hours of New Year's eve this year. Other testimony was given by a woman government agent who said she had been served with whiskey while unattended.

HISTORIC DELMONICO BAR BROUGHT ONLY $51 AT AUCTION

New York, June 5.—Cut glass goblets with which John D. Rockefeller invariably was served in the years when he dined almost daily at Delmonico's did not pass into his hands today when they were sold by an auctioneer among other relic of the famous hostelry. The absence at luncheon of two men, said to have been agents of Mr. Rockefeller, resulted in the glasses being sold to Mrs. C. G. Bourne, sister of Federal Judge Mayer, for $26.

Prohibition caused the restaurant to close, the management admitted, rental and taxation judgments hastening the end.

One woman, who refused to give her name, was so moved that she dashed off a poem in which she expressed the belief that "Delmonico's Can Never Die." She handed it to the auctioneer.

One of the highest bids was made by T. Mesker, who bought a set of cut crystal vase used at the banquet given the then future Edward V when he was Prince of Wales.

Donahue was at work with a gang of men on the west side of the quarry and left them to go to the east side which had not been used in a number of years.

Officials of the company expressed the belief tonight that the man had taken his own life by exploding a dynamite cap which he took with him. He had no business in the deserted tunnel, the officials said. Donahue was not very well known to workmen in the quary having worked only a few months for the company. A brother is believed to reside in Holyoke, Mass.

ARTIFICIAL LIGHTNING OF 2,000,000 VOLTS PRODUCED

Pittsfield, Mass., June 5.—From manufactured clouds over a miniature village artificial lightning of 2,000,000 volts was produced today in the high voltage engineering laboratory of the General Electric Company's plant here. In September, 1921, a demonstration of the workings of 1,000,000 volts was given, but today's feat was said to surpass any previous accomplishment in high voltage.

Lightning flashed from the make believe clouds, striking the village church steeple, the country store, and occasionally the both at once. The sound of the thunder was realistic. In some tests even rain was produced. The Pittsfield laboratory, said to be the most powerful in the world, has pioneered in the development of power transmission since the construction of the first 15,000 volt lines was supervised here in 1891.

Transformers of a standard design, built here, were used to "step up" current of about 2,000 volts one thousand times. In the million volt transformer more than 100 miles of wire was used. This was wound in such a way that enormous voltages were produced, experts said, without the turn of a wheel.

The laboratory in which today's tests were conducted is a large brick building lined with steel to prevent disturbances from reaching outside and causing possible damage to the factory. All windows can be closed and the room darkened. Apparatus is provided for producing artificial rain. In these tests it was determined, according to the experimenters, that a tubular transmission cable six and one-half inches in diameter would be of sufficient size to retain this enormous current and that transmission towers 160 feet high with wires 30 feet apart would be necessary to carry the current.

Despite the fact that lightning travels at the velocity of light, 186,000 miles per second, engineers at the Pittsfield plant have been able to measure the shape of the flash and determine its pressure. It was to reach a better understanding of these problems that the miniature village and artificial lightning were designed.

RUSSIA'S REPLY HAS BEEN FORWARDED TO LONDON

Moscow, June 5 (By the A. P.)—Russia's reply to Lord Curzon's latest memorandum on Anglo-Russian relations was forwarded to London today and will probably be delivered by Leonid Krassin Thursday. The document is understood to be a not unqualified acceptance of the British demands, though it is generally conciliatory.

In the Pravda, M. Probrashensky, a noted publicist, declares that Curzon is "playing the policy of New York" in minimizing the importance of Russian trade to England.

"If Europe economically is gradually becoming a province of America, then why," he asks, "should not English diplomacy little by little become the mouthpiece of the American people?"

AGREEMENT BY OPIUM ADVISORY COMMISSION

Geneva, June 5.—(By The A. U.)—The American delegation and the other members of the opium advisory commission of the League of Nations after lengthy consultations reached an arrangement tonight, which was accepted by all parties with minor reservations.

The resolution adopted by the commission says that the advisory commission on traffic in opium accepts and recommends to the league the proposals of the representatives of the United States as embodying general principles by which governments should be guided in dealing with the question of the abuse of dangerous drugs, and on which, in fact, the international convention of 1912 was based, subject to the following reservations by the representatives of France, Germany, Great Britain, Japan, The Netherlands, Portugal and Siam.

The use of prepared opium and the production, export and import of raw opium for that purpose is legitimate so long as that use is subject to and in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 2 of the convention.

The commission, appreciating the great value of the co-operation of the government of the United States in the efforts the league has been making for the last two years to deal with the question of the abuse of dangerous drugs, expresses the belief that all the governments concerned should be desirous of co-operating with that government in giving the fullest possible effect to the convention.

"Barbirshops" were the predominating modes of attire at the regular meeting and luncheon of the Rotary club Tuesday noon. Due to the extremely warm weather, the members voted to lay aside the conventional rules and consequently they removed their coats and wore more comfortable.

Dale Crosby of the Worcester, Mass., Rotary club and "Al" Bliven of the Norwich club were visitors of the day. "Rick" W. Downer was handed a warm welcome after his three weeks' confinement at the hospital.

The attendance contest which has been in progress for some time came to conclusion Tuesday and "Jim" Mustard's team was proclaimed the victory over a team headed by "Val" Murphy. The winners had an average of 90.4 and the defeated contestants had averaged 86.7. In other words, members of the winning team missed 32 meeting and the losers 54.

Secretary Charles W. Hill read a communication from the 21st Regiment, Connecticut Volunteers, for services rendered at the reunion held in this city on May 16th. Another communication was read from "Don" Adams, district governor in which he thanked the local members for their share of the donation for the handsome watch, chain and charm which was presented to him at the recent spring conference. A report on the Rotary field day which will be held at the Connecticut Agricultural college grounds on July 19 was given by Professor "Dick" Dodge. The Norwich club is the only one which has not been heard from in the matter of subcommittees for the affair.

Ellison B. Smith attended his first meeting as a member and received the right hand of fellowship, the code of ethics being given by "Val" Murphy. "Val" is the champion of the club in such matters and despite the extreme heat he brought out many hearty laughs from the members. F. W. Carey and "Tim" Weatherhead were also presented with copies of the code of ethics.

A vote was taken that "Val" Murphy appoint a committee of three to make arrangements for the supper which is to be given by the losing team in the attendance contest, to the winners. Frank H. Foss, James P. Bath and Harry A. Blanchette were those selected.

Adjournment was taken in the usual manner.

Columbia Lake, at Columbia, will be the scene of much activity this summer with the building of a number of new cottages and the repairing of old ones. The available supply of land along the shore is fast diminishing and is in constant demand. There are now about eighty homes along the lake shore and owners or lessees are already arriving there and preparing for the season.

Lake Wangaumbaug at South Coventry will also be thickly populated this coming season and the cottagers are busily engaged there in painting up their buildings and cleaning up the surrounding grounds. The new Lakeside Casino erected there is another means of attraction to visitors.

The bridesmaid wore a rose colored georgette dress with a black picture hat and she carried a bouquet of Columbia roses.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the brides parents on Carey Hill and was attended by relatives and friends from this city, Chicopee, Hartford and Springfield, Mass. A runaway horse, drawing a light buggy, caused an exciting scene Tuesday afternoon about two o'clock when the animal bolted from under the footbridge on Railroad street and plunged across the Central Vermont railway crossing in a wild run along the railroad tracks. William Chapman a resident of the Griggs farm in Hop River had just driven in under the bridge, when the horse started. Chapman had to drop his hold on the lines in order to avoid striking one of the steel supports of the bridge.

John Keirans, Arthur I. Warner and Dan Ives, all express handlers, chased the animal and when it reached the vicinity of the gas house of the Hockanum-Willimantic Lighting company, Keirans and Warner were successful in getting hold of the bridle and bringing the animal to a standstill.

The arrest followed. Madden did not believe that he was going fast enough to be called a speed. Judge Foss fined the young man $25 and costs, remitting $15 of the fine. Madden paid the total assessment of $15.15.

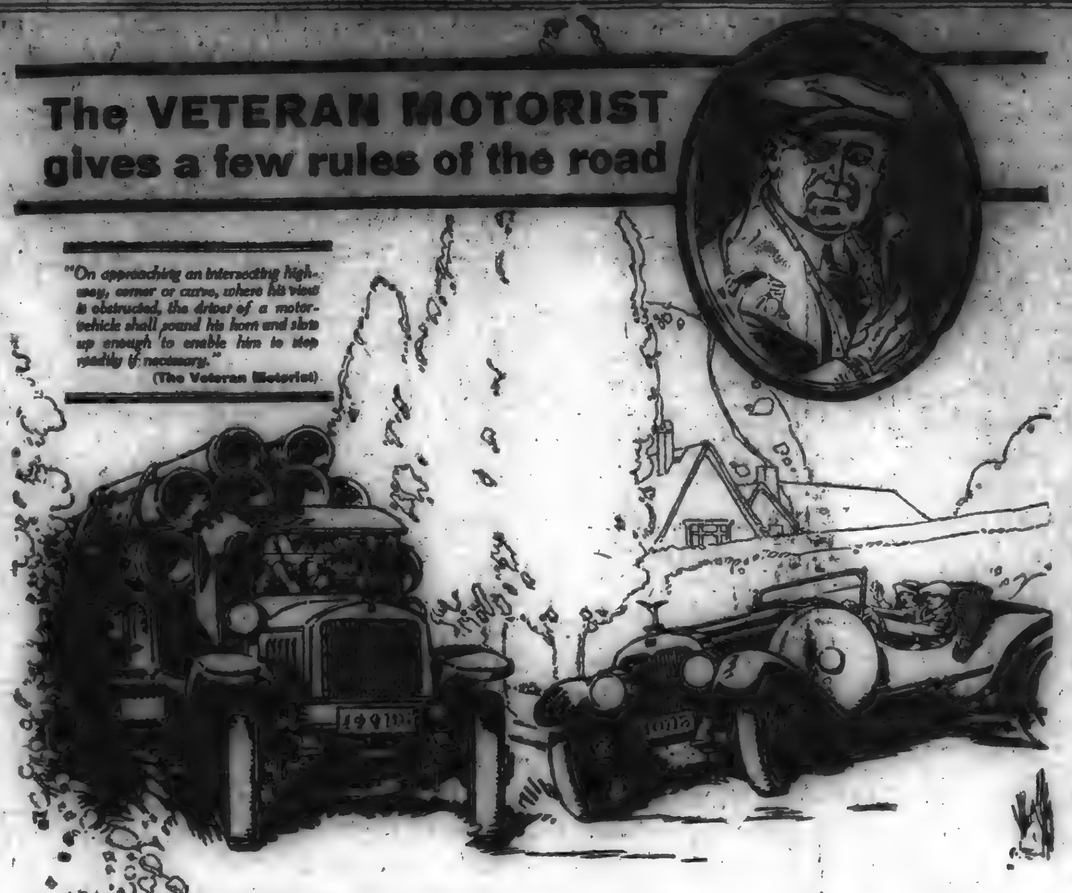
The VETERAN MOTORIST gives a few rules of the road

"On approaching an intersecting highway, corner or curve, where his view is obstructed, the driver of a motor-vehicle shall sound his horn and slow up enough to enable him to stop readily if necessary."
(The Veteran Motorist)



ONE afternoon last summer, I was looking out of a store window on the Post Road. A heavily loaded truck happened to be coming along. Maybe a hundred and fifty yards or so up a side street, a low-hung touring car pulled out of a yard and this driver hit it up for the Post Road as though he had to make a train in thirty seconds. Matter of fact, he was just taking 'the sweetest, dearest, etc.' out for an afternoon spin.

"The truck and sport car got to the corner at the same time. No horns, no slowing up. Then a last minute struggle to avoid colliding. I think one of them must have had a horseshoe under his seat, for it was just about as close as I'd ever seen, or want to. As it was, one of the steering knuckles on the car was snapped in the shuffle

"Not a reason under the sun for it, just plain carelessness. And that's what causes three-fourths of all motoring accidents today. Take it from me, it pays to stick to the rules of the road nowadays—all of them—all the time."

There are more delightful song numbers and alluring music in "Shuffle Along" than in any other production of its kind, and they are given so fast and furious by the most dashing, dazzling "bronze" chorus that you don't get time to think, and the audience simply rise to their feet in a craving for more.

Famous Story Comes to Strand

Trapped! Fleeing from the close pressing officers on a freight train, Awakening in a strange room with one leg amputated and a priest standing over the bed looking down upon him!

That is the situation which the remarkable story of "Slippy McGee" works to its ending in the picturization of the widely-read Oemler book which Oliver Morosco has just completed for First National release. The picture which will be seen at the Strand theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday brings a refreshing newness to the screen in its working of human salvage with the action revolving about a small mill town priest and America's most daring safe cracker.

"Slippy McGee," in its book form has been read by ten of thousands in American homes. It is not a preachment but a vital, human story of conflict, and a dog help the priest in his steady overpowering of a will that could work mightily for good or desperately for evil.

The role of "Slippy McGee" is made a triumph by Walter Oakman, whose flashes and shadowings between the physical and mental are the best work he ever has done for the screen. Sam de Grasse is a superb contrast as the priest. Coleen Moore, alternately dignifiedly "grown up" and roguishly the blossoming southern school girl, has the feminine lead.

With Francis Diffley, former Academy pitcher, in the box the Whirlwinds shut out the Nuggets, 2 to 0 in one of the best games of the Twilight league at the Fairgrounds Tuesday evening. Diffley, although wild in the early innings, allowed but three scattered hits. His teammates played unusually brilliant ball in back of him and many sensational fielding plays kept him out of danger. The game for the most part was a pitchers' duel between the former Academy pitcher and Mike Kelly, the pitching mainstay of the Nuggets.

The Whirlwinds drew first blood in the first inning when a wild peg advanced a man to second and he scored on a hit. The second run came in the first of the sixth inning when Kelly passed two men and then a hard hit ball to the outfield scored the man on second.

The Nuggets threatened in the last of the sixth inning when they had two men on and Diffley purposely passed Madden to get at Burke. With the bases full and two out Diffley fanned Burke with ease. They also threatened in the seventh but a fast double play nipped the rally. The Nuggets were weak in hitting ability when hits were needed and had a tendency to hit at bad balls.

One of the noteworthy features of the game was that both teams played errorless ball, something that has not occurred since the league started. There were many fielding features the most glaring of which was the wonderful catch in left by Lunch of Hull's terrific smash. "Red" Lesemann who played at short for the Whirlwinds also contributed to the fielding sensations. The score by innings:

Diffley and Fillmore; Kelly and Manchester.

Tonight's Game

The game slated for this evening is between the Atlantics and the Duwells. The Atlantics will send in Gene Fuller against the Duwells and Hal Stone will be on the mound for the Duwells. The Duwells have yet to lose a game and are considered one of the fastest teams in the league.

The world champions pounded Cheeves and Fussel for fourteen hits, while the Cubs made only five hits off a trio of visiting twirlers. LUCKY RABBIT'S FOOT GIVEN TO GIBBONS

St. Paul, Min., June 5.—The left hind foot of a buck rabbit said to have been killed at midnight in a cemetery under a full moon was the good luck gift of Mayor Arthur E. Nelson to Tommy Gibbons when the latter left here today for Shelby, Mont., to begin training for his heavyweight championship battle with Jack Dempsey July 4.

The rabbit's foot was given to Mayor Nelson before the last election by a southern negro and had been carried constantly ever since by the city executive.

The mayor said good fortune had attended him ever since he came into possession of the foot and he expressed a wish that its good luck will go with Gibbons.

ENGLISH TURF CLASSIC TO BE RUN OFF TODAY

Epsom Downs, England, June 5—(By the A. P.)—Twenty-one horses will sport silk tomorrow for the annual running of the historic derby, the blue ribbon event of the English turf. Although tonight the weather is dull and cold, large crowds already have gathered, as is customary, to await the bugle which calls the highly trained animals to the post preparatory to their being sent over hill and down dale for the one mile and a half race. Thousands of others are on the roads hither, traveling through the night in every conceivable kind of vehicle.

This afternoon before the shadows of dusk fell, many of the enthusiasts lined the course to watch the final workouts of some of the animals which tomorrow are to face the barrier. Among those that were sent over the track were Papyrus, the favorite, which will be ridden by Donoghue, who had the leg up on the 1922 winner of the classic event; Town Guard, owned by Lord Woolavington, second choice in the betting, ridden by the American jockey Archibald, and Legality, owned by G. Hulme, which has not been overlooked by the bettors and whose odds have been considerably lessened owing to wagers made that he will show the way home to the field.

BULKELEY CLAIMS STATE HIGH SCHOOL TITLE

Bulkeley's scheduled game with the Crosby High school of Waterbury for this afternoon was called off by the Crosby management yesterday by telephone. The reason given by Crosby was that the Crosby team had a poor season financially and could not bring the Bulkeley nine to Waterbury. As this game is the deciding contest for the championship of the state, Manager Curtin of the Bulkeley nine invited the Crosby nine to play in New London on Saturday, June 9, but Coach Taylor said this was impossible due to commencement week, which begins Friday of this week. The easiest way out of the situation was to have Crosby team forfeit to Bulkeley, which Coach Taylor did, although the Bulkeley team would rather play and win a contest than to gain a victory by a forfeit.

By forfeiting this game to Bulkeley Crosby relinquishes all claims to the state championship, while Bulkeley has already clinched the state title by virtue of this game by forfeit.

DEMPSEY TRYING FOR SPEED IN WORKOUTS

Great Falls, Mont., June 5—Speed was the word at the Dempsey camp today, the world heavyweight champion going eight rounds with the Little fellows. This was the first sparring he has done since his layoff of last week.

He went two rounds each with Frankie Grendetta, flyweight; Lee Moore, lightweight; Joe Benjamin, lightweight, and Harry Wells, English welterweight. The sparring was for speed and Dempsey showed he was fast.

Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, announced today that Joe Benjamin had been tentatively matched with Benny Leonard for the world lightweight championship labor day, the fight to take place in Great Falls. The fight is conditional on Dempsey meeting Harry Wills here or in New York Labor Day and will not take place in event of a Dempsey-Wills fight that day.

SOCIETY WOMAN LOSES $60,000 ON BOXING BOUT

Chicago, June 5—A society woman lost $60,000 through sponsoring a boxing bout here and several promoters and fighters profited largely from recent exhibitions without paying income taxes, according to several anonymous letters received by Mrs. George W. Reinecke, internal revenue collector today.

The letters poured in after Mrs. Reinecke let it be known yesterday that she questioned the charitable purposes behind the recent Leonard-Mitchell boxing contest which ended in a riot.

The Leonard-Mitchell show netted receipts of $55,000 of which charity was said to have received nearly $25.

Johnny Mack directed his remarks mainly to the players who were on the freshmen team the past summer. The candidates were requested to report for supper at the "Y" club on Sunday, September 16. Practice will begin the following day.

LEADER FOLLOWS VARSITY CREW VERY CLOSELY

Gales Ferry, June 5—The freshman crew was first in the water this afternoon at 5.15 o'clock. They rowed downstream two miles and paddled slowly back to one mile above the boathouse and then came in.

The junior varsity was next with the varsity following. They paddled up the river together at an easy stroke. On the return trip they indulged in two sprints of five minutes each. Coach Leader watched closely the work of the varsity in his shell. With favorable wind and tide they staced badly, the shell not riding even keel. Some of the deficiencies stressed by Coach Leader were missing water, rushing slides and starboard outpulling port badly.

ACADEMY TEAM WINS ITS FIRST VICTORY BY BEATING WINDHAM

In a fast game played at the Academy Campus yesterday afternoon the Academy nine defeated the Windham High school team, an outfit which had previously taken its measure to the tune of 8 to 4.

Windham scored their only run in the first inning on three walks and a single by Israel. Then Norwich, after evening up the account in the second again in the 5th. Tombari was safe on account of an error by De Marche. And, after advancing on Burke's single, scored on another single by Mileski. Norwich annexed one more run in the sixth on a combination of errors by Wilmoth and De Marhe. From then on the game was all Norwich. In the eighth frame Norwich put the game on ice with the aid of a single by Kilroy, an error by De Marche and doubles by Tombart and Seigal.

Besides catching a fine game, Mileski pulled down a difficult foul fly in the first of the seventh. Seigal also, after getting off to a bad start, pitched masterly ball, letting ten of the visitors down by the strikeout route. Strouse played a good game at short and his heady work on the bases accounted for two of Norwich's runs.

This is by far the best game played by the Academy nine this year and if it plays as it did yesterday it has a fine chance of winning its last two games. The score:

JAIL FOR DRUNKEN DRIVERS.

In the interest of greater safety in the highways and the protection of the users thereof, Highway Commissioner Stoeckel is quoted as favoring the sending of those who drive automobiles while intoxicated to jail. He takes occasion to criticize the manner in which some judges deal with these cases and points out the frequent instances where persons guilty of such conduct have the cases nolled, nolled with costs or get fines of $100 or less.

When he styles the intoxicated driver of an automobile as a serious menace to the users of the highways he is unquestionably right. It is a view that is taken by commissioners in other states and in his stand for the jailing of such persons he likewise stands with other commissioners who have observed the workings of courts and the danger that is created every time one undertakes to drive a car. Such drivers have no regard for what they are doing. They are in no condition to protect themselves, those with them or those who happen to meet them on the highways. One might as well expect the engineer of a locomotive to be allowed to get into his cab and run his engine while intoxicated as for an auto driver to perform under a similar lack of personal control.

Reckless driving is invited by the toleration of drunken drivers, and there will be widespread approval of the point made by Commissioner Stoeckel when he says that if more drunken drivers were sent to jail there would be less such driving.

It is evident that some such cooperation must be shown by the courts if there is to be obtained that degree of safety which is called for on the highways of the state. Lenient treatment of such conduct can have but one interpretation. There are bound to be times when extenuating circumstances must get consideration, but it must be evident that such conditions do not surround the most of such cases as some might infer from the mild treatment which is given in so many instances.

ENFORCING THE DRY LAW.

That the dry law is to be put into effect on ships under the interpretation given to it by the supreme court can excite no great surprise. That is only what should have been expected. Neither the supreme court nor the treasury department is responsible for the law. It is not within their power to make changes in it. The court has been asked as to its meaning relative to ships on the high seas and within the three mile limit and it has furnished such an interpretation, and the treasury department which has charge of the enforcement of the provisions of the law has no other course than to see that the provisions are carried out.

The dry law was enacted by congress. Prolonged opposition has been made to it from various angles and quite as strong a fight has been waged regarding the application of the law to ships of this country as well as to those of other countries within the three mile limit. It has been evident that complications might be encountered but that doesn't warrant winking at the law or undertaking to set up regulations that are not in accord with the intention of the law.

Inasmuch as the supreme court has not held it to be unconstitutional as far as ships are concerned there is nothing to do but to provide for its enforcement. It will be through such action that it will be disclosed just what real conflict there may be with the rights of other nations which hold that their ships are their territory wherever they may be, whether on the high seas or in the ports of other countries.

From the putting of the law into operation in keeping with the interpretation of the court there will be furnished a guide for whatever future action may be taken concerning it. When the time comes for that, if it does come, it will remain for congress to modify or change as it deems necessary.

PROHIBITING OTHER LANGUAGES.

The supreme court of the United States has decided that the law which has been adopted in some states prohibiting the teaching of German is unconstitutional. The particular case that was acted on came from the state of Nebraska where a teacher had been convicted of having taught a pupil reading in the German language in violation of a law forbidding the teaching of any other language than English in the schools of that state.

This was a world war development, it having been disclosed that there were conditions there which warranted the adoption of such legislation in order that pupils in the schools might obtain a knowledge of the English language.

From the decision of the supreme court it would appear that Nebraska had undertaken to do more than it needed to in order to insure the [illegible] others when it prohibited the teaching of other languages. Its aim was to check the influence that had been found to exist because of the German schools and in the interest of Americanism to insure the teaching of English.

As the result of the decision it would seem that its efforts must be directed in another way. It doesn't appear but what the state of Nebraska, or any other state, has the right to require that instructions in the schools of the state must be given in the English language. If there are those who want to get an education in other languages in addition there seems to be no valid objection.

The wisdom of requiring schooling in the English language has been recognized in many states. Few have gone so far as to legislate against the teaching of any other language, or of prohibiting German. Where that has been done it was the result of war time disclosures and the overstepping of the limits now calls for corrections.

ANTI-POLLUTION LEGISLATION.

There have been indications that the efforts in behalf of legislation against the pollution of the streams of Connecticut might get nowhere at this session of the general assembly because of the failure of the two houses of the general assembly to agree on the kind of a bill to enact. That possibility has been overcome through the acceptance by both houses of the measure that calls for action against such a condition and gives those authorized to enforce it the necessary authority. The measure with teeth has won out over the bill that provided for a modified [illegible]

The bill with modifications had gotten support because it was recognized as a move in the right direction without threatening too radical a step. It would have insured a start after considering such a measure for many years and would have headed for the goal by easy stages. By the bill which has been adopted the opposition may be based more upon fear than anything else. There can be no question but what it is a law with teeth but because such power is given to those authorized to carry out its provisions it does not necessarily mean that the commission will be unreasonable just because it has the authority.

One thing is evident by the action of the legislature, and that is that there is a recognition of the need of doing something to prevent the steadily increasing pollution of the streams of the state. Perhaps much expense might have been saved had a start been made years ago, but satisfaction comes from the fact that there is a desire that the start be no longer delayed. It is a big problem and it is because of the heavy expenditures that might be involved that opposition to the bill adopted arose.

There remains for the governor to pass upon the bill, but the desire of the legislature is fully established. The anti-pollutionists have won an important victory.

GERMANY'S COMING OFFER.

If we are to judge by the reports which come from Germany that country has been giving further thought to the reparations question and is about ready to make another proposition to the allied nations. There is no question but what they have been ready to listen to any sound plan that would be acceptable. Germany has fully understood that such offers as it has made before failed to meet with approval. If reports are true it promises to make an offer based upon a different plan this time. Statements which have been made in advancement of any definite announcement are to the effect that it involves a definite number of annuities guaranteed by the industrial resources of the country, and that these resources will be available through legislation that is now being perfected.

Such a plan proposes to get the backing of resources which have been overlooked in the past. It will call for careful scrutiny on the part of the several nations, and there is no question but what it will get it after the explanation of the offer has been made.

If Germany has by this coming offer definitely resolved to meet the requirements of the allies, to terminate the situation in the Ruhr and to settle down to paying what it can pay and what the allies feel certain is not unreasonable it will have come tardily to toe the mark. It has not, however, been the policy of Germany to show evidence of overgenerosity in its offers. Whether the forthcoming one will differ in that respect from the rest is problematical. There is no danger of over anticipation.

A FRESH START

"Well!" began the handsome young man who was having luncheon with the girl he had quarreled with five years before and had not seen since. "I see by your left hand that you aren't married yet, Begonia!"

"Oh, no!" said the beautiful young woman, who had met the handsome young man on the avenue quite by accident and thanked her stars she had been able to recall his name. "Are you, Redmond?"

"How can you ask?" reproached the handsome young man. "Nope. Something seems wrong—I have it! You never called me Redmond five years ago. You called me Reddy and did it with a cute little lingering accent. I'd feel more at home if you did it again. Redmond sounds as though something disagreeable were about to happen! I can't believe this is you, Begonia. You are more beautiful than ever! I don't understand in the least how you have escaped matrimony all this time. I really don't! I hope you didn't become a man hater when—er, that is—"

"No pay!" asked the beautiful young woman. "That's funny, because I was just wondering whether—er—anything I had done had made you distrustful of women. I should be so sorry if I thought I was in the least responsible."

"Not at all, not at all!" the handsome young man cried and then tried to turn it into what he should have said. "That is, of course, I was terribly broken up when you turned me down, Begonia, but one outlives sorrows."

"Yes, indeed," the beautiful young woman told him heartily. "It is simply surprising how quickly one outgrows early fancies."

"Indeed," the young man interrupted a trifle bluffly. "I suppose you have had so many affairs since my day that I seem a mere episode in your life. A girl simply doesn't care how she ruins a man's existence."

"Oh, did I spoil yours, Reddy?" joyously asked the beautiful young woman. "I never dreamed it meant so much to you."

"Oh, I've borne up," said the young man. "I've taken a few girls, one or two or maybe three, around a bit."

"But you didn't enjoy yourself," soothed the young woman sympathetically. "I feel perfectly dreadful to think it is all my doing and I never dreamed you would take it so much to heart!"

"How have you passed the time?" inquired the young man hastily. "When I think of your embittered existence all this while I reproach myself terribly, Begonia. I suppose you're simply scorned all men and I'm responsible."

"Well," the young woman confided "I've tried to hide my real feelings and snatch a little pleasure as I went along."

"That's fine!" the handsome young man said in a tone which meant that it was far from fine and he didn't like it. "I should never get over it if I had broken your heart, or anything like that! I thought when I first saw you that there was something a trifle sad about your expression, Begonia."

"Oh, was there?" the beautiful young woman cried rapturously. "To think I could do it! You see, Reddy, I was going over my part of an amateur play the crowd is giving and I am unhappy and persecuted in it."

"Oh, really!" the young man commented. "Of course in these days it is foolish to expect a girl to have any real deep feeling about any one or anything."

"You looked terribly stern and sort of tragic yourself," the handsome young woman told him interestingly. "The instant I saw you, before I realized who it was, I said to myself that there was a man who looked as though tragedy had touched his life! I hope oh, I do hope, Reddy that nothing that happened in the past—"

"My shoes are new and were hurting me," the young man told her reluctantly. "Say—tell me the truth—how many times have you really thought of me at all in the last—say, the last three years, Begonia? Tell the truth!"

The beautiful young woman looked up at him cornerwise and then she twinkle. "I will," she said sweetly, "if you'll do the same, Reddy!"

"Well—er—" said the young man. "Er—"

"Er, too," the beautiful young woman agreed in relief. "Now that we realize that we'd forgotten all about each other, to say nothing of our little flirtation, let's settle down for a nice visit and everything!"

"Instead of forgetting, I think I am just beginning to remember," the handsome young man told her as he studied her. "And I think it will take all the spare time I have while I am in town to tell you about it, so you might as well cancel other dates, Begonia! I've just discovered five years wasted, and I didn't know it!"—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Divine Inspiration; Its Scope and Its Tests

Mr. Editor: Divine inspiration, as understood by the early Christians, is the vivifying and awakening power or impulse of God as a spirit, stimulating to action the human faculties, in the direction of the natural bent of the individual mind. There are diversities of gifts, but the same spirit. There is a general inspiration, by no means confined to Bible writers or prophets. "The manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal." This, if welcomed, prepares the way for a special and larger inspiration. "For to one is given, by the Spirit, the word of wisdom; to another the word of knowledge; to another faith; to another the working of miracles; to another, prophecy, to another discerning of spirits; to another divers kinds of tongues; to another the interpretation of tongues. But all these worketh that one and self-same Spirit, dividing to every man severally as he will." Cor. 12:4-11. This vitalising force is not limited to the intellect of man, but extends to all the good powers of the soul. "The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, self-control." Gal. 5.22. It works within, and from within, and is by no means confined to words, not even to that collection of books called the Bible, nor to the period from Moses to St. John. Careful study will reveal that II. Tim. 3:16 applies only to the Old Testament, and Paul is not here making a declaration concerning inspiration, but concerning the value of the Hebrew Scriptures, which alone Timothy had known when a child. "Every scripture given by inspiration of God is profitable." And the test of divine inspiration is truth; that is in the language of today, correspondence with reality. "When He, the spirit of truth is come, He will guide you into all truth." John 16:13. The New Testament expressly denies an anthropoid God, with "feet": Exodus 24:10, "walking in the garden," en. 3:8, visible "hands" and "back parts" Exod. 33:22-33, "No man hath seen God at any time," John: 18:5-37, I. Tim. 6: 16,1:19.

Tucker Land Not Sold

Mr. Editor: I wish to correct an error in June second's Bulletin where it is stated Wm. A. Wilcox had purchased the 18 acres of Tucker land on Post road at Dunn's corner. I own six acres of that land and Mr. Wilcox has not even asked my price, or if I want to sell. I don't advise any one to sell any property of mine, without first consulting me. Any deed with my or my husband's name signed to it is a fraud, as I was his attorney until his death, then his property became mine.

Yours kindly,
MRS. HAZARD TUCKER

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Major General George Bell, Jr., U. S. A., retired, to whom Chicago business men have presented a purse of $30,000 in recognition of his military services, was the commander of the 33d division in France during the World war. From the time that he left West Point in 1889 General Bell's record in the army was one of distinguished service. His first duty after graduation was on the western frontier, where he saw service for eight consecutive years. During the Spanish war he took part in all the engagements in the trenches before Santiago. Among other subsequent duties he served as professor of military science at Cornell university. In 1916 he had charge of the border situation after General Pershing's advance into Mexico. General Bell's entire career in the army, which ended with his retirement for age last January, was with the infantry branch of the service.

THOUGHT BACK WOULD BREAK

Nothing Helped until She Began Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"When my baby was born," says Mrs. Posluszny, 106 High Street, Bay City, Michigan, "I got up too soon. It made me so sick that I was tired of living and the weakness run me down something awful. I could not get up out of bed mornings on account of my back; I thought it would break in two, and if I started to do any work I would have to lie down. I do not believe that any woman ever suffered worse than I did. I spent lots of money, but nothing helped me until I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I felt a whole lot better after the first bottle, and I am still taking it for I am sure it is what has put me on my feet."

If you are suffering from a displacement, irregularities, backache, nervousness, sideache or any other form of female weakness you should write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass, for Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women." It will be sent you free upon request. This book contains valuable information.

Stories That Recall Others

Harmony of Hues

A woman walked into the gown department of a store and asked for a sales woman with ability to handle color schemes. The first saleswoman approached admitted her skill in that direction.

"Well," said the prospective buyer, "I wish a dress that won't clash with my husband's red hair and still will maintain color harmony with the mulberry upholstering of our furniture."

In State of Ignorance

In discussing some interesting cases a lawyer related the experience of a certain judge in trying to get information from a prisoner, a colored man.

"On what street do you live?" the judge asked.

"I just can't remember the name of that street, your honor," replied the prisoner.

"Well, does it run east and west or north and south?" queried the judge.

"Well, sir, I'm not positive which way it does runn. I never was no good on directions."

"You should be in vaudeville," the judge said when he ordered the man discharged.

"Just where is that town, judge?" asked the fellow. "Seems like I don't remember I ever heard of that place before.

Wives of Famous Men

Mary Holgate, Wife of Sir Isaac Pitman.

A widow, considerably his senior, practical, intelligent, well educated and understanding, was Mary Holgate, the wife of Sir Isaac Pitman, inventor of shorthand. Pitman was but 22 years old, and he had not yet revolutionized the business world with his invention of stenography, when he met Mrs. Holgate, who had been left comfortably situated by her late husband.

Mrs. Holgate had no desire to spend the better part of her life in widowed solitude. Isaac Pitman was struggling along on a meager income. Little is known of the amount of romantic love that existed between the two, but they understood each other, were sensible people and managed to "make a go of it." Mrs. Holgate's comfortable fortune enabled them to start housekeeping on a fine scale. They were married in 1836.

Mrs. Pitman, doubtless because she had been married before, knew how to conduct herself in regard to her husband's work. Instead of sulking because he paid too much attention to it, she gave him every possible aid, thereby making a place for herself in that side of his life. In addition to her material riches she brought to him a wealth of understanding and appreciation. The world owes a great deal to Mary Pitman in helping her husband to develop his great innovation.

They lived happily together for 19 years, when in 1854, Mrs. Pitman fell ill with an incurable disease. After three years of suffering, which occasioned great unhappiness to her devoted husband, she succumbed to the malady in 1857.

Trinity College Centennial.

A record breaking number of alumni ranging in age and experience from the oldest who knew the college before the Civil war to the graduates of last year will return to the Trinity College centennial celebration, which will be held the week of June 8, 9, 10 and 11. Originally known as Washington College at the chartering in 1823. In 1845 the name of the college was changed to Trinity. Although its student body has always been limited, students have been drawn from every state in the Union to the Trinity campus. The majority of the alumni, statistics show, have made their homes in Connecticut following graduation.

The centennial year has seen the raising of a $1,000,000 endowment fund, contributed half each by the alumni of the college and the friends of the college. The Rockefeller foundation gave $125,000.

Pollution Commission

The pollution bill passed in the senate Tuesday creates a commission to consist of Professor Lafayette B. Mendel, of Yale, Frederick C. Walcott, of Norfolk and E. Allen Moore, of New Britain, and gives it power to enforce its orders by the use of injunctions. Under the terms of an amendment passed Tuesday, the commission will serve without pay and will receive only the necessary expenses for its work. Municipalities are not affected.

He was a native of Norwich, and was at one time secretary of the New Haven Grays. When he first came to New Britain he was employed in a factory at the corner of Myrtle and Grove streets. Later he worked for the North and Judd Manufacturing company, retiring from the latter concern in 1893.

STRIKERS DRIVE WORKERS FROM MAPLEWOOD CEMETERY

Non-union laborers at work on concrete road construction at Maplewood cemetery were assaulted with picks and shovels and driven off the job Tuesday by a gang of about 30 striking Italians who arrived on a truck. No arrests had been made up to Monday night, but it is expected there will be arrests made.

An official of the Maplewood cemetery association said Monday night that if the town could not provide protection for the workmen, the cemetery association would and that it would have constables enough on hand to see that the workmen were protected. The men who were assaulted Tuesday were in the employ of Ambrose Sullivan.

Constable Lucius Fenton, who had been sent to the cemetery by Selectman Casper E. Bailey to guard the town's concrete mixer, was there when the gang of strikers arrived. He drew his revolver but did not fire in an attempt to protect the men. Superintendent Washington Holt of the cemetery and John McWilliams of the Peck-McWilliams Co. were also on hand.

Just before the truck load of striking fighters arrived, an automobile with two men in it was seen to come along the road where the occupants could get a view of who was working at the cemetery. The car at once turned around and disappeared in the direction of the city. It is thought that its occupants were scouts who reported what they had seen and that the truck load was at once madeup for the attack.

In the fight Charles Ramage, a mason who was at work, had his lep split open by a blow from a shovel and Charles Stapleton of Washington street was hit in the neck with a shovel.

Hod carriers and laborers in the city have been on strike since June 1, because their demands for higher wages have been refused. The laborers are asking a raise from 50 to 65 cents an hour and the hod carriers from 65 to 75 cents an hour. These have been refused because the contractors have considered the present wage is all that could be paid.

James Chinigo, who has been in charge of the strike, was attending a naturalization session of the superior court in this city while the fight at the cemetery was progress.

"POTENCY OF SILENCE" TOPIC AT SHOP MEETING

At the Y. M. C. A. noon meeting Tuesday at Richmond Radiator company, Rev. C. H. Ricketts gave a very helpful address on The Potency of Silence, speaking in part as follows:

After a strenuous day of public duties last Wednesday, I sought a season of complete rest. In that restful hour there flashed into his mind these words of the 46th Psalm: "Be still, and know that I am God." And then these words seemed to express themselves in orderly arrangement. It became clear that the great potencies of the world were not found in noise and confusion, neither in the clatter of those shallow disturbances in which most of the world's activities function.

The revelation of these potencies may be grouped in the following order:

I. God works very quietly in His natural world. The hand that moves the planets along, each in its own orbit, is both invisible and inaudible. In nature it is the shallow things that make the racket. The shallow brook flowing along its rocky bed its noisy, and we call it the "babbling brooks," and it is not the only shallow thing, either, that babbles. The Mississippi and the Amazon are mighty streams, long, wide and deep, but they are still. The wind breaking off dead branches is noisy; the frost lifting up the huge boulder is quiet. The power that is drawing up from the earth its countless tons of moisture to feed vegetation is very quiet.

II. Quietness marks the greatest achievements of physical labor. I have seen a crane pick up an armor plate and put it in place easily and almost noiselessly, but a man putting in the rivets makes the noise. The workshop where confusion prevails, where machines are constantly breaking down where the boss spends most of his time blustering and swearing, is not the shop where production is up to the maximum. Efficiency is not to be measured in terms of noise.

III. Stillness is absolutely necessary for the finest intellectual work. The output of printed matter—sometimes called literature—today is enormous, but how much of it will be alive tomorrow? What great book, poetry or prose, what great musical composition, what epoch-making work of science, what great political act have been given to the world in the last quarter century? The feverish atmosphere is not conducive to such things. We need time and quiet.

IV. The spiritual life demands what it is not getting, stillness. We take in our religion as we do our food by bolting it. It goes down in chunks and we spend the rest of the week in trying to recover. We have let this noisy world get into the sum total of our time. "Take time to be holy, speak off with thy Lord," has become a bit of ancient history. Our shallow spiritual nourishment has made us sour, censorious and hypercritical. There is nothing that this noisy, frantic, rushing, nervously-unstrung age needs more than this advice: "Be still, and know that I am God."

REV. A. H. ABBOTT
Addressed Graduating Class

In the presence of relatives and friends the class of 1923, of the Training School for Nurses at the W. W. Backus hospital, received their diplomas Tuesday evening at the Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial parish house. The five young women of the class, attired in whites, and the student nurses at the hospital, occupied seats in the front of the parish house parlors.

With Henry A. Tirrell, principal of the Norwich Free Academy, presiding the exercises opened at 8 o'clock with the processional, Alumnae, graduating class and student nurses. Swahn's orchestra gave a selection after which the invocation was given by Rev. A. Harlow Graham, pastor of Trinity M. E. church. Henry J. LaFontaine was heard in an excellently rendered vocal selection, Crescent Moon, Sanderson, accompanied by Mrs. Charles L. Saxton. Mr. La Fontaine's encore number was Duna by McGill.

Address to Graduates

The address to the graduates was given by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church. In part Rev. Mr. Abbott said:

The power of a scientific fact may be traced in that fact's progress through four grades of persons. First are the pioneers, a small group specially gifted and trained, who go a little beyond the border of things hitherto known, into the world of hypothesis, making new observations, discoveries, bringing happiness to the fate of humanity. Second, come the verifiers—our professors, instructors, writers of text books, who, though they have rest gone to the land's last limits, nevertheless can attest the acts that the pioneers have unearthed. Third, are the interpreters—who take the discovered and then verified truth and show its significance for human beings. These relate the fact to behavior, past, present and to come, showing values and implications. And fourth, come the takers-for-granted, the plain ordinary person, who accepts things as they are, without thinking much about them; who reacts to the facts for all practical purposes, without considering their origin or their progression.

Any single fact, and any single thought or system of thought, passes down these four grades.

The pioneer digs it out and passes it to the verifier. The verifier attests it and hands it to the interpreter. The interpreter uses it and offers it to the taker-for-granted, who accepts it as a "matter of course" without bothering his head about how it came to be.

This is the way that service is administered and passed on: From pioneer to verifier to interpreter to taker-for-granted. The question for the individual is, "Which grade am I on?" Where am I doing my service? What can prompt me to do the best kind of service?

Three appeals come to us, whatever be the grade on which we work, which bid us to climb to still higher levels of human serviceableness.

First, we must find our bias. We must find the particular thing that is our particular bent, and then follow it without fear of consequences.

Second, we must welcome antagonisms, for without the discipline of natural and human oppositions character remains flabby and impotent.

Third, we must cultivate idealism, which begets reverence for the personality rather than the flesh of things, and lets our hearts live in a world that has soul-killing powers.

If these three appeals get a hold on our imagination and then our action, there is no question about the nature and quality of our service in the world.

These appeals, if they responded to, carry us, by the might of their impressive worth into superior grades of service from taker-for-granted to interpreter, to verifier, to pioneer.

Presented Diplomas to Five

At the close of Rev. Mr. Abbott's address the orchestra gave a selection following which Mr. Tirrell presented the diplomas. In presenting these to the five graduates, Mr. Tirrell said the diploma is but the beginning. It marks the time when those to whom it is given are able to educate themselves, without having an instructor at their elbows. Each of the graduates was presented a huge bouquet of flowers.

Following the presentation of the diplomas, Mr. Fontaine favored with a vocal selection, Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses, Openshaw, his encore being Tommy Lad, Yeargerson. The class pins were presented the class by Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox, superintendent of the Norwich State Hospital, after which Mr. Tirrell presented each graduate a companion case. A selection by the orchestra brought the exercises to a close.

The members of the class follow:

Miss Anna May Gorton, Norwich; Miss Julia A. Crowley, Westerly; Miss Alice M. Baker, Norwich; Miss Dorothy M. Tracy, Wauregan; Miss Cora Mae Disco, Norwich.

The flowers were generously provided by a number of Norwich ladies and were arranged under the direction of the flower committee of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Backus hospital. Mrs. George A. Comeau had personal supervision of the decorations.

The orchestra comprised John M. Swahn, cornet, leader; Nicholas J. Spellman, piano; Richard Sanders, clarinet and Theodore Sterry, violin.

At the close of the exercises there was a reception for the class in the ball room at the Wauregan hotel. Dancing was enjoyed and refreshments were served. Dr. R. R. Agnew had charge of the beautiful floral decorations at the Wauregan and was assisted by Frank Costa and employees of the hotel.

CONSOLATION TREAT FOR NEW LONDON FORUM

The men of the City Bible class of the Central Baptist church were hosts Tuesday night at the church to the members of the Men's Forum of the First Baptist church of New London, entertaining them at supper and in a social program afterwards that further strengthened the already strong spirit of good fellowship between the two organizations.

The event was an outcome of an attendance contest earlier in the year in which the Norwich men were winners and enjoyed as their reward a supper at the expense of the New London men. Tuesday night the New London men came here by invitation from the winners.

The visitors arrived in automobiles and sprung a little surprise on the Norwich men by disembarking in Washington square and marching from there to the church, headed by four Boy Scout buglers and costumed drummers and fifers to represent the famous painting The Spirit of '76. The class members wore fancy paper caps.

There were 75 of the New London men who were given a cordial greeting by 175 of the Norwich class members who were assembled on the church steps waiting for the visitors.

All were soon seated at the banquet tables, which were attractively decorated with flowers, with sweet pea boutonniers at each place. The rooms were decorated with American flags and welcome signs. The following delicious menu was served by the women of the church:

Indian River Grapefruit.
Salted Peanuts. Pickles.
Roast Ribs of Beef.
Mashed Potatoes. June Peas.
Rolls.
Neapolitan Ice Cream.
Assorted Cakes.
Coffee.

Edward Y. Messinger was song leader during the evening, with Joseph H. Adams at the piano. The invocation was given by the pastor, Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt.

Following the banquet, Vice President Shepard B. Palmer was toastmaster, and a cordial address of welcome was given by C. D. Noyes, president of the class, to which the response was by A. E. Little, president of the Forum.

Mayor Milo R. Waters, who was a guest for the evening, gave the welcome to Norwich, raising a laugh when he said he hoped the New London men would come again under the same conditions. Their feeling was that if a membership contest were held again it would not be the New London Forum that would have to provide a supper and then accept a consolation treat.

The remainder of the program was carried out as follows:

Baritone solo, William A. Lund; reading, Prof. Frank T. Maples; solo, Hugh Kinder; Reminiscences, Charles L. Stewart; reading, Prof. Frank T. Maples; remarks, Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D.; remarks, Rev Chester H. Howe.

LEGISLATURE IS PREPARING TO ADJOURN TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

Hartford, June 6.—Events in the house today were indicative of the close of the session that will come tomorrow. As soon as action was taken upon any bill it was at once transmitted to the senate. Long periods of inactivity were common while waiting for business to come from the senate.

Intense interest was shown in the vote on the vote by Governor Templeton of the Danbury normal school dormitory bill. The result was declared a tie and many of the members crowded to the clerk's desk to see if they had been recorded right.

At the close of the session a delightful concert was rendered by a brass band composed of boys from the state school for boys at Meriden. The instruments were purchased for them by the state a few years ago. They showed remarkable proficiency and the result of careful training.

The fate of the pollution bill is problematical. It is predicted that it will receive a veto as the manufacturing interests are affected more than in any other locality in the state.

Captain Harry Howard, a Civil war veteran, gave an exhibition of modern drumming on the porch of the capitol this afternoon which was witnessed by a large number.

Both houses will meet at 10.15 tomorrow but there will be but little business done. It will be a jollification in which the members will forget that they are men and will become irrepressible schoolboys again. The senate will be more dignified but the spirit will be there.

HOUSE.

The house was called to order at 10.15 by Speaker Nickerson. Prayer was offered by Chaplin Coolidge. Under suspension of the rules a bill was received that limits the issue of school bonds by the town of Stratford to 8 per cent. of the town's taxable property. The bill was passed and transmitted to the senate. The bill giving state aid to certain towns in school matters was rejected, although favorably reported by the committee on education. An act incorporating the Outlook Insurance company with a capital stock of $200,000 was adopted in concurrence with the senate.

Home Rule Bill Modified.

An act amending the home rule law with some minor changes was adopted. This act is supplementary to the subject that was before the 1921 assembly. At that time the commission that had been investigating failed to find a form of uniform charter that would fit the conditions in the several cities in the state. The object sought is believed to be contained in this bill.

The bill increasing the compensation under the compensation law from one-half to two-thirds of the average weekly earnings was unfavorably reported. A viva voce vote was doubted by Mr. Adonelli of New Haven. A rising vote was taken and the bill was rejected by a large majority.

An act that moderately changes the price of dealers' automobile licenses and costs of markers was passed on favorable report of the committee on roads, rivers and bridges.

Doctors' Licenses Validated.

The licenses claimed to be illegally held by 28 physicians now practicing in Connecticut were validated in a bill favored by the committee on the judiciary. The bill was explained in full by House Leader Buckley.

Sprague Deputy Judge.

On report of the judiciary committee, John W. Cross was elected deputy judge of the town court of Sprague in place of Charles B. Barnes, who had been elected and declined the office.

The bill revising the charter of the city of Bridgeport with a senate amendment concerning the condemnation of land for school purposes was passed.

Working Certificates For Children.

A bill providing for working certificates to children between fourteen and sixteen during vacations was before the house after being amended in the senate so that a certificate may be issued by boards of school visitors or boards of education. The senate amendment was opposed by Holbrook of Thomaston. Mr. Buckley of Union declared the amendment was a good one. The local boards were in a better position to pass judgment upon who should and who should not be granted a certificate. Sturgess of Woodbury, an attache of the state board of education, said the amendment should be rejected. There is no criticism of the way in which certificates are issued by the state board. Not a single town has asked for this power. As there has been no demand for a change in the law the amendment was uncalled for.

The amendment was further amended so that a copy of all certificates issued by local boards should be sent to the state board of education within five days.

Mr. Fenton was of the opinion that the proposed amendment was a dangerous policy. It was giving to many persons the power to grant working certificates.

Hill of Shelton advocated the rejection of all the amendments. Too much local pressure would be brought to influence local boards to grant a certificate when it should not be done.

Mr. Buckley further pointed out that the amendment made it optional with the local boards.

The bill will allow the issuance of certificates for Saturdays and holidays.

He disclaimed any motive in favoring the amendment. He said he was exercising his right as a member of the general assembly to express his opinion in the matter.

On the motion of Mr. Holbrook the previous question was ordered.

The amendment was then passed by a rising vote of 117 yeas and 62 nays. The bill as amended was then passed.

The resolution providing for an amendment to the constitution so that every town in the state shall have a representative in the house was adopted by a vote of 116 yeas to 46 nays.

The resolution will now be continued to the next general assembly, where to pass it must have a two-thirds majority.

The pollution bill came from the senate with an amendment that no member of the commission should receive a salary, but that employes may be paid upon approval of the board of control.

A resolution was passed authorizing the comptroller to secure specifications, remodeling the hall of the house. This was recommended by the committee on capitol furniture and grounds.

Danbury Dormitory Killed.

The bill appropriating $100,000 for a dormitory at the state normal school at Danbury was received from the senate where it had been repassed over the governor's veto. On motion of Mr. Andrews, of Danbury, the governor's veto was received and the action of the house was reconsidered. Mr. Andrews said that the governor had not a proper knowledge of the conditions existing at Danbury. Mr. Bell of Salisbury thought the governor knew what he was talking about. Shephard of Portland said the assembly should stand by the governor. On a roll call the vote resulted in a tie vote, 69 to 69. The bill was killed, thus sustaining the veto of the governor.

The house adjourned at 1.40 (s. t.) until 10.15 Wednesday.

CENTRAL STATION MASCOT KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Coon, the handsome black cat which for several years has made its home with the firemen at the Central fire station, met sudden death under the wheels of an automobile in front of the station early Tuesday evening. Coon had his eyes on a bird in the road and sprang suddenly into the street, landing right in front of a passing machine.

A wheel of the automobile went over him. The driver, who is a well known Norwich man, stopped his machine. No blame was placed to the driver as the accident was unavoidable.

During the evening Coon was buried in a corner of the Central station yard by several of the firemen. He was about seven years old and had been at the Central station since he was a kitten.

FUNERALS.

Jeremiah F. Healy.

The funeral of Jeremiah F. Healy was held Tuesday morning from the funeral parlors of Hourigan & Brok. Relatives and friends attended and there were a number of beautiful floral forms. The bearers were Frank J. Murtha, Joseph D. Pfeiffer, George H. Fox, William H. Callahan, Joseph H. Portelance and Daniel G. McCormick.

Burial took place in St. Mary's cemetery, Rev. William A. Keefe, pastor of St. Mary's church, conducting the committal service. The body arrived in Norwich Monday evening from Pasadena, Cal., where Mr. Healy died several months ago.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

This morning following funeral services in Pawtucket the body of Patrick Gilroy will be brought to Danielson for burial. Mr. Gilroy was nearing the century mark when he passed away at his home in Pawtucket Monday. He was a native of Ireland, but had lived practically all his long life in this country and for many years was a resident of Danielson, living on the West Side. Mr. Gilroy had been living in Pawtucket the past quarter of a century. He leaves two daughters, Mrs. Augustus Higgins and Miss Elizabeth Gilroy. An automobile cortege will bring the body to Danielson for burial in St. James' cemetery.

Tuesday following prayer service conducted at his home in Pawtuxet by Rev. William H. Jordan, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, the body of Albertus O. Card, a native of this town, was conveyed to Danielson by automobile cortege and in the afternoon there was a funeral service at the undertaking room of A. F. Wood, Rev. Walter B. Williams of the Westfield Congregational church officiating. Burial was in Westfield cemetery.

A traffic ordinance that has been prepared by competent legal authority is in the hands of Warden W. A. Burrows, who will appoint a committee from the court of burgesses to make a study of it and make an investigation of traffic regulations elsewhere before the ordinance in revised form is finally submitted for approval.

Appreciating that something must be done to more closely regulate every increasing traffic in the business section, especially in Main street, which is a part of two trunk lines traversing the state, Warden Burrows and his fellow officials have taken up the matter of traffic regulation for careful study. What the ordinance provides in its present form or what it may provide when finally submitted for adoption is not given out. However, it is indicated that the borough officials wish to devise al code that will be effective without being too stringent and without placing any unreasonable restrictions on motorists. To that end time and study will be devoted to working out theplan, which will be announced in due time. The subject likely will receive attention at next week's meeting of the warden and court of burgesses.

Danielson's Chautauqua organization is being perfected for this year's series of entertainments and Mrs. F. O. Armington, secretary, announced on Tuesday the appointment of committee chairmen who will proceed with the activities allotted to them. Sidney W. Bard is chairman of the committee on tickets and in charge of lighting and hauling. Frank T. Preston is chairman of the grounds committee, Mrs. Armington of the advertising committee and Arthur Eddy of the publicity committee. Mrs. Emma F. Pilling is named to head the junior Chautauqua work. The general chairman, Raymond E. Allen, the vice president, Walter Anderson, and the secretary, Mrs. F. O. Armington, were named last year and coninue in office.

There is a likelihood that there will be a change in location of Chautauqua grounds this year from the playground of the School street school, where Chautauqua has held forth for several seasons.

A North Main street location that is more central than the one at the schools is under consideration for this years.

While this isn't the kind of weather that induced much worry in the average mind as to next winter's coal supply, it is of interest that manufacturing concerns here and hereabouts are accumulating large surpluses of soft coal against the demands of the next cold weather period. Several concerns in Killingly and nearby towns have piled up heavy purchases of coal.

An improvement that is being gradually brought about by state highway workers is the elimination of the blindness of one of the curves on the state highway between Danielson and Wauregan, just south of Fall brook. A high embankment on the west side of the highway is gradually being cut back and the material taken out used where needed. This cutting away of the embankment has made the curve a broad sweeping one with good vision for drivers going either north or south.

County Secretary J. H. Corbett, Putnam, of the Y. M. C. A. has been in Danielson to close up bookings of boys who intend to spend two weeks at Camp Woodstock on Black pond during the vacation season. The first of three camps for boys to be held during the summer months will open on June 29.

The open or bloomer car seems to have permanently disappeared from the local trolley lines and none of this type is now at the carhouse in Dayville. On days like Tuesday the open type of car was a favorite with many patrons of the road, though the present type of car is not uncomfortable even on such a hot day as Tuesday.

The work of installing the electric warning signal at ttawaugan crossing was begun Tuesday and will be completed and the light in operation within a few days.

At the end of the coming week the Bar Harbor express will resume nightly runs through Danielson en route from New York to Maine—something that careful motorists will remember if they would avoid accidents at unguarded crossings during the night season.

Flag day will be observed with appropriate exercises in the schools of Killingly on Thursday of next week, when there will also be a general display of flags on homes and other buildings in Danielson.

Representatives E. L. Darbie and George A. Williams, representing the town of Killingly in the legislature, will get long respite from their duties at Hartford when the body adjourns finally. They have served their town well in a session that has been filled with interest.

Though the custom has lost some of its popularity, hanging June boxes to friends in a diversion that is not wholly extinct in this community and is now claiming the attention of groups of young people.

Business continues good with the tire fabric manufacturing concerns in this town, though the market is not so lively for lighter grades of cotton materials.

Wild pigeons have reappeared in neighboring country hereabouts this season in greater numbers than for several years. They are especially numerous in territory to the east of Danielson.

Edward S. Carpenter was improved Tuesday after having been quite seriously ill for a time during Monday. Mr. Carpenter, one of Danielson's best known citizens, is 85 years of age.

Mrs. E. H. Keach has been re-elected president of the Civic federation and the secretary, Miss Emma Pilling, and the treasurer, Mrs. A. H. Armington, also continue in offices they have filled successfully for years.

Judge W. Penner Woodward presided at a session of the town court Tuesday morning. The first case of intoxication presented from Danielson in weeks was disposed of by imposing a fine on the accused.

The temperature was high in the 80's again during Tuesday, but the heat was tempered during the afternoon by a fresh breeze out of the south.

Sharp boosts in rents have been made by purchasers of the Miss Florence M. Johnson properties in the business section of Danielson. The advanced rents are now effective.

Various business and residential streets in the borough received their annual oil bath during Tuesday. This was a repetition of the work undertaken for the first time last year and which worked out so well that it will be continued indefinitely.

PUTNAM

Putnam's building boom continues at full stride. In the vicinity of the foundry Frank Whitman is engaged on a project that includes moving one large house to a new location and three new dwellings are going up there. It is understood that plans for half a dozen new dwellings in that section will be put through as rapidly as possible. A combination business and apartment block is to be erected near the high school and another similar building in the Providence street section of the city. A business place with an apartment above is also projected for South Meadow street. These are only a portion of the building activities now underway or soon to be undertaken in Putnam and do not include major operations to be carried out in the business section.

There were no special developments in the strike situation during Tuesday and interest centered in the fact that families who have been served with summary process notices will have to vacate in numbers this week. Today the strike enters its fifth week and at this time there is not the slightest indication that either side is willing to yield from positions taken a month ago as to the basis for adjusting the matter. The strikers are pinning their faith on the belief that a long drawn out strike will eventually force the shut down of the plant unless new employes are obtained to take the places of those who are holding out for a further advance in wages.

The strikers held their usual meeting Tuesday. There were the daily reports and such routine as usually marks the sessions.

A belief continues to persist in the minds of some that Alexander's lake already is open for fishing on certain days of the week as provided in a bill recently passed by the legislature. This is not the fact, however, and no fishing may be done under the recent enactment until the first week in July, at which time the bass fishing season will be at hand. Those who would not invite a visit from a game warden will not fish at Alexander's lake during June.

QUICK ACTION BRAKES
EXTRA LARGE AND EXTRA SAFE

In the construction of Dodge Brothers Motor Car, every consideration has been given to the owner's safety.

This is particularly evident in the brakes, which, with their 14-inch drums and 2½ inch lining, are appreciably larger than the average. The extra surface thus provided develops greater friction when the brake bands contract over the drums—and it is this friction which stops the car.

Connecting levers are designed to transmit the maximum of power with the minimum of effort. The slightest pressure on the brake pedal has an immediate effect. This pressure is distributed evenly between the two rear wheels by a highly efficient equalizer, which prevents skidding because it retards both wheels simultaneously.

And the brake bands grip evenly all around the drums. This protects the lining against irregular wear and enables the driver to stop quickly, quietly and safely.

But 85 Years Old

"I am now in my eighty-fifth year. My mental faculties retain their keenness; I have an abundance of energy; sleep soundly; have an excellent appetite; and am not unduly susceptible to colds. I am convinced that I owe my present excellent physical and mental condition to Wincarnis.

"Some five years ago, I began to feel my advanced age bear heavily upon me. I tired quickly; lacked energy; spent restless nights; paid the penalty for every expensive tea-drett, and had many a spell of mental depression. I made experiments with many so-called tonics—but without result.

"I decided to try Wincarnis, and the quickness with which I felt reinvigorated, overjoyed was astonishing. My recovery was rapid and complete, and from that day to this I have taken a glass of Wincarnis at least once every day."

Is he a "Tire Dealer"— or Does he sell Silvertowns?
Motorists themselves draw that distinction. In every community some men are "in the tire business," while others are recognized as the Goodrich Silvertown Cord Tire dealers. The name of Silvertown symbolizes a merchant who is alive, far-sighted, prepared to serve his customers in the best way.
To these merchants Silvertowns signify the greatest value possible to attain. They have selected them as their leaders because they know the advantage of the Goodrich principle of one quality, one price and one name. You, Goodrich users, are the basis of this the entire Goodrich organization. With full stocks in all of the 60 branches he is ready to take care of your demands promptly.

[illegible] IN ALLEGED RUM-RUNNING FRAUD

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, June 6—An arrest of two or more New London men may be made within a few days by state policemen for an officer of that department is understood to be obtaining information as to the New Londoners securing a quantity of liquor that was a part of the cargo of the Thelma, which recently was wrecked off Fishers Island, by representing themselves as revenue agents. It is also understood that a member of the crew of the Thelma has informed the state police of some of the New Londoners who purchased liquor from the craft.

The state police department, it is understood, has obtained information within a few days that two New London men, both of whom are alleged to have been engaged in the rum-running traffic, visited the vicinity of Niantic where they had knowledge that a quantity of liquor from the Thelma was stored and visiting the owner of the liquor, representing themselves as revenue agents. The pair displayed a badge and demanded custody of the liquor. The booze was finally turned over to the alleged revenue agents, who kept some of it and disposed of the remainder by sale. It is reported that because of the large amount of liquor being distributed in New London, the state police have one or more men here obtaining information as to who is distributing the liquor and the places where it is to be purchased.

William Hart, employed by the state as a bridge tender and Miss Hazel V. Sullivan, of Howard street, were joined in wedlock, the nuptial ceremony being performed by Rev. J. Bonicera Lanferis at the home of the clergyman on Federal street.

In the United States district court at Hartford yesterday, an order was issued, releasing the ocean-going tug Alexander, which has been held under libel in part by United States customs officers several weeks. The owners of the tug furnished a bond satisfactory to the court.

The tug was seized by Deputy Inspector of Customs Jeremiah Dillon upon orders from the revenue department at New York, following the craft entering the harbor as she was suspected of having been one of several craft that had engaged in the rum-running business off the Connecticut and Massachusetts coasts. Since libeled the craft has been moored at the wharf of the R. M. & A. H. Chappell Company, at whose wharf the tug was lying when she was boarded by the customs officer. It is believed that the tug will leave port this week, but a new crew will have to be sent here to take charge of her as the crew that was on the Alexander when she entered the harbor deserted her, except for a solitary deckhand when she tied up.

George Beebe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beebe of Boston, and Miss Beatrice Banning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Banning of Waterford, were married Sunday morning at 9 o'clock, the ceremony being performed at the Baptist parsonage by Rev. F. G. Leathers in the presence of relatives of the contracting couple. Mr. and Mrs. Beebe are now enjoying their wedding tour, which, when concluded, will find them located at Boston.

During the height of the electric storm last evening, a bolt struck a transformer of the Connecticut company, located on one of the big poles at Station 13, Waterford. The bolt also caused Mrs. Brown, a resident at Station 14, to be shocked, temporarily.

Patrolman Edward Daniels of the night force, was unable to perform duty tonight, being indisposed at his home on Howard street.

James F. O'Neill, son of Mrs. Annie Flaherty of Cutler street, New London, and Miss Catherine A. Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barnard Clark of No. 94 Smith street, Groton, were joined in marriage this morning at Sacred Heart church, Groton. The nuptial mass was celebrated by Rev. William J. Fox, rector of the church. Edward Sullivan, of Boston, was best man and Miss Mary Clark, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid.

Edward Hume, employed at the Swan garage as a mechanic and residing at the Y. M. C. A., and Miss Catherine Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sullivan of No. 17 Belden street, were married this morning at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, the nuptial mass being celebrated by Rev. Timothy M. Crowley, rector of the church. The event was witnessed by a large number of relatives and intimate acquaintances of the couple. Stephen Sullivan of New York, a brother of the bride, was best man and Miss Margaret Connors, attended the bride.

As was predicted at the time that the contract for supplying the city with coal for the coming winter, the Howard Street Coal company, to which concern was awarded the contract, would encounter all kinds of difficulties in fulfilling the contract. This has come true in two specific instances, the last of which developed today when Purchasing Agent Jean Sheehy refused to accept 1300 tons of coal, claiming that the fuel was below standard and this fact determined from an analysis. About ten days ago it was claimed that a truck load of coal, which had been weighed on scales of the contracting company, when taken to another set of scales showed the fuel to be nine-fifty pounds less in weight than when originally weighed, the weighing being performed under the supervision and direction of Thomas E. Donohue, superintendent of Hillside home, one of the city's institutions. The shortage, if any, the coal company claimed, was due to a pint of gasoline that was used in transporting the coal from one yard to another was consumed and this would make the difference in the weighing. The coal company contends that their scales are correct because they are but a year old and were tested and sealed by the city sealer, Benjamin R. Lindsay.

No trace of Mrs. Olga Gamidlaist, wife of Louis Caminski of No. 171 North Bank street, who disappeared with her four years old child Thursday, deserting her husband and two other children, has been found. There are fears expressed by acquaintances of the woman that she may have ended her life and that of her baby by leaping into the Thames river. Last night and today the police questioned Caminiski, but he could not advance any clues that might lead to locating his wife and child.

The whereabouts of John Jensen of No. 34 Montauk avenue, and employed as foreman baker of the Woolworth bakery, who mysteriously disappeared last Saturday, still are unknown. Mrs. Jensen and three children were left without funds, and no lights are available in the house because of the meter having been disconnected by the Connecticut Power company, presumably because the final bill was overdue. Jensen is not known to have had complications for he generally refrained from company. He is not a drinking man, which fact makes his sudden disappearance doubly mysterious.

Mrs. Alice Hunt, who assumed her duties as policewoman Friday, having been appointed to the office upon the recommendation of City Manager James H. Barlow a month ago by the city council, is devoting much of her sleuthing in an endeavor to stop vice among the young man and young girl populace, is devoting the greater part of her work at Ocean Beach where dances are conducted nightly.

There is no change today in the strike of the fifty journeymen plumbers who refused to go to work yesterday, because of the master plumbers refused to sign the new working agreement whereby the journeymen would be notified the day before if no work was to be performed by them and an hour in advance of their being released from work at noon and the payment of a half day to the journeymen if they worked any part of the four hours comprising a half day's work. It is believed that a compromise will be attempted by the two bodies within a day or two.

The condition of James Eade, the Crystal avenue young man who sustained a fractured skull when the machine owned by his step-father, Homan Heinman of No. 12 Crystal avenue, and operated by Eade, crashed against a telephone pole near the Golden Hour Sunday, remains critical tonight at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, where he has been unconscious ever since he was admitted for treatment. The hospital authorities stated this evening that Eade's condition was extremely critical.

The condition of Louis Petrini of No. 90 Trumbull street, who attempted his self-destruction by cutting his throat with a razor several days ago, while in a despondent mood, was stated this evening at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital as being comfortable and that the patient would probably recover.

Miss Anna Murphy of Wendbridge street and Herman Appledorn of Sherman street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

The funeral of Miss Rose Murphy, daughter of the late Edward and Rose Murphy, whose death occurred at Preston Sunday, was held this morning at 9:45 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, a mass of requiem being celebrated by Rev. Alexander Wodelschlaeger. The bearers were David P. Condon, Joseph F. Corcoran, Edward M. Sweeney and Thomas F. Gannon. Interment was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

The funeral of John Longo, of No. 23 Shaw street, whose death resulted at Backus Memorial hospital Sunday of injuries he received two weeks ago when he was thrown from an automobile, owned and operated by Joseph Contino, of No. 718 Bank street, when Contino, lost control of the car on Pequot avenue, the machine crashing against a tree, was held this morning at 9 o'clock, at St. Joseph's church and was attended by an immense throng of mourners, principally former acquaintances of Longo of the Italian race. A delegation of members of the Italian Mutual Benefit society, of which organization Longo was a member, was among the mourners. A mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Father Flynn of Niantic. The floral tributes were many and handsome and so numerous were the offerings of condolence to the bereaved family that two automobiles were required to convey them to St. Mary's cemetery, where the interment took place. The funeral cortege comprised nearly 100 automobiles.

Sam Sammataro of No. 23 Ocean avenue was arraigned in the police court this morning, charged with operating his automobile while not being possessed of an operator's license. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10. Sammataro possesses a license to drive automobiles, but he was careless about keeping it upon his person and that resulted in his being ordered into court. Following Sammataro's car colliding with the machine of Charles Townsell of No. 133 Franklin street, Norwich, yesterday afternoon at the corner of Willetts and Ocean avenues. The two automobiles came together when Sammataro's machine emerged from Willetts avenue just as Townsend's car was about to pass the intersection and bound to Ocean Beach.

The force of state police officers stationed at the Groton barracks was increased to four today when three additional officers were sent to Groton by Supt. Robert Hurley. Until today, Sergeant Marlias R. Sterling was the only officer located at the place. The amount of work that will be required of the state police in the vicinity of New London the next few months will be great and it is doubtful if the quartette of officers will be sufficient to handle the volume of investigations that it is sure will require their attention. With automobile accidents occurring daily and many of them on Sundays, it would not be surprising if Supt. Hurley caused additional officers to be located at the barracks within a short time.

An automobile owned and operated by Edward J. Murphy of East Lyme, was in collision on Bank street this morning with a car owned by David Eisenbein of No. 41 Valley street. Th Eisenbein machine was damaged and was motionless beside the curb at No. 18 when the car driven by Murphy crashed against it.

It is understood that the chief hindrance to the widening of North Bank street by taking two feet or more from the sidewalks on the east and west sides of the highway is the opposition of the Connecticut Power company to removing their poles from the sidewalks. That is a new [illegible] it is

Jilted English Naval Officer At Altar

Engagement broken. So say friends of Miss Nancy McMichael Hoyt, daughter of the late Henry M. Hoyt, of Washington, D. C. The sudden and serious illness of the bride was given as the reason for the "indefinite postponement" of the wedding of Miss Hoyt and Lieut. Frederick Wiseman-Clarke, R. N., which was announced just a few hours before the time set for the ceremony. But friends of the family point out that Lieut. Wiseman-Clark and his parents, who came on from England for the wedding, were in New York and arranging passage for England while gifts for the couple were still being received at the Hoyt home and guests were arriving in Washington, having come thousands of miles to attend the wedding, scheduled to be a brilliant social function.

MARKET WAS UNSETTLED.

New York, June 5.—Price movements in today's stock market threw little light on the speculative attitude regarding the future course of business. The line of least resistance seemed to be on the upward side, with chief interest centered in a few specialties and a select assortment of steels, equipments, oils and low-priced rails.

Commission houses reported little public interest in the market, the day's total transactions, with one exception, being the smallest for any full day session this year.

Several times during the course of the day brokers reported a wide spread between the bid and asked prices, even some of the most active stocks. On one occasion Baldwin, which had just sold at 129 1-8, was quoted 130 bid and 130 3-4 asked, the next sale being 600 shares at 130. The stock closed at 132 for a net gain of 2 5-8 points. American and Lima Locomotives and Pullman each climbed about 1 1-2 points.

Unfavorable conditions in the leather industry were reflected in the weakness of those stocks, American Hide and Leather preferred and Central Leather preferred each falling about 1 1-2 points to new low records for the year. International Harvester also established a new low at 78 3-4.

Steels showed moderate improvement. Coppers were firm on reports of better trade conditions. Oils were inclined to sell off, Phillips Petroleum dropping nearly 3 points, and California Petroleum closing a point lower at 112 3-8, after having touched 116.

Speculative expectation of favorable dividend action by several roads in the near future brought fresh buying power into the rail shares. Hope of an early increase in the annual rate of the New York Central to $6 or $7 a share was brightened by the report for the first quarter showing a surplus, after charges, of $3,909,730 as against $3,038,057 in the first quarter of last year. The stock closed at 99, up 1 1-8. Pere Marquette is expected to go on a 5 or 6 basis tomorrow. Baltimore and Ohio also is slated for an early resumption of dividends.

Call money opened at 4 3-4 per cent, but advanced to 5 before the close. Banks are offering time money at 6 per cent., but brokers seem well supplied and are bidding only 4 3-4.

Foreign exchanges displayed a better tone. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.62 1-2 and French francs advanced 4 points to 6.45 cents. German marks got above .0015 cents but slipped back later to .0014. Greek exchange, which dropped 70 points yesterday, fell back 52 more today, being quoted at 2.98 cents.

BOND MARKET.

U. S. government issues slipped back slightly. A good demand was noted for Serbians 8s, which sold between 72 and 72 1-2, showing a net gain of 3-4 at the close. French 7 1-2s improved moderately, but the French municipals lost ground.

In the railroad list, Louisville and Nashville refunding 5 1-2s, Denver and Rio Grande refunding 5s and Erie general 4s, up 1 3-8 to 1 5-8, were the outstanding strong spots. New York Central issues also were quite active.

Steel and Tube 7s climbed nearly 2 points and International Paper 5s, series B, 1 1-2, but the Virginia-Carolina Chemical and Bethlehem Steel issues were heavy. Maryland Oil 8s, with warrants, dropped 2 points.

New offerings today exceeded $25,000,000, the largest being the $22,000,000 soldier bonus issue of the state of Iowa. The $25,000,000 Austrian loan probably will be offered on Monday.

Total sales (par value) today were $7,778,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, June 5.—Interest in the value of corn and oats and a belief that a new reparations offer from Germany might bring about a settlement with France, the wheat market today scored a moderate advance. Opening prices for wheat, although unsettled, were at 8-8 to 1-4c net higher, July $1.09 1-8 to $1.09 1-4 and September $1.09 to $1.09 1-8. Corn finished 1-2 to 2c up, oats are 1-4 to 5-8c advance, and provisions at a rise varying from 7c to 12c.

It was only when corn showed decided independent strength that the wheat market established gains which appeared to have something of a lasting quality. Speculative buying, which at the outset had given wheat prices an upward slant, and which were ascribed to talk of improved prospects for an agreement with Germany, failed to continue but a brief time. Then the market began to sag as a result of lack of support, and the majority of traders seemed to be acting on the basis that domestic and foreign demand would be inadequate to take care of hedging sales which might soon be expected in heavy volume.

Wheat, however, took an upward swing when the July delivery of corn gave signs of perhaps equaling the season's top price record. A reaction which took place in the corn market in the final trading through led to a setback also for wheat. Numerous holders of wheat became uneasy over the late action of the corn market, which forced wheat to drop 1c or more from the day's highest level.

Buoyancy in the corn market resulted from continued scarcity of available supplies and from good shipping demand here. There was persistent buying on the part of commission houses until July showed an ascent of 7c since last week. Then profit-taking set in, and it was said country selling to arrive had enlarged. Oats followed corn.

Provisions were firmer in sympathy with corn.

Plain Facts About Your Ice Box!

Everybody knows that MOIST air rots and molds food. DRY air. Therefore, when you purchase a "sweet box" refrigerator you are going to pay unnecessarily high ice bills as long as you use it. Just stop and consider what even a few cents extra for ice each day will mean in the course of a year. You should stop this waste of money. The uses less ice and keeps the temperature lower than any other Refrigerator ever built. It was designed and constructed for that very purpose. See how it is built:

Insulation

—11 layers of insulation, including two 2-inch thick masses of the world-famous "Alfelt" refrigerator car insulation. One of the secrets of low temperature and small ice consumption.

Ventilation

—the Bohn "Syphon" System of ventilation and air circulation (another secret of ice economy) which means dry, cold, pure air and no mingling of odors—you can place onions and butter side by side without contamination.

Construction

—massive and solid, magnificently built and beautifully finished, with one-piece round-cornered fused-steel porcelain lining, heavy walls, strong and substantial shelves and ice rack; with hardware of heavy, solid brass, copper-plated and nickel finished. The drain pipe is IN FRONT, instantly removable and easily cleansed.

MOST IMPORTANT OF ALL

Look out for damp, stagnant air in your refrigerator. It is MOISTURE that spoils food, and it is mingling odors and spoiling foods that breed diseases. In the Bohn "Syphon" everything is as dry as a chip. The rapidly circulating air and the snow-white porcelain lining insure dryness, purity and cleanliness.

The 87th regular annual meeting of the Pawcatuck Fire District was held at eight o'clock, Monday evening at the P. S. Barber Hose house on Liberty street. There were nearly a hundred taxpayers present when Moderator Albert G. Martin called the meeting to order. Clerk William A. Hillard read the minutes of the last annual and the adjourned meeting of June 23, 1922, and they were approved. Pierce S. Morrison, chief of the board of engineers, read his report in substance as follows:

That the fire hydrants had been inspected and that one was found out of order and was being replaced by a new one. There are thirty-seven hydrants in the district, one new one being added this year. There are fifteen alarm boxes with an addition of five new ones the past year. In the district there are 151 incasdescent street lights, four special lights and one cluster making in all 156. It was recommended that the truck drivers be paid $100 and that $400 be paid P. S. Barber Hose company and $50 to the fire police. It was further recommended that the brick hose house on the property of the C. B. Cottrell & Sons Co., be disposed of as it was not used at the present time. Twenty-four fire alarms were responded to, twelve from fire boxes, ten still alarms and four outside the district.

The report of Treasurer C. I. Spencer showed that the fire district was in the neighborhood of $1,300 in excess of the previous year.

The report of Collector Charles J. Norris from June 1, 1922, to June 1, 1923, showed total collections of $12,356.91 with an uncollected balance of $236.43. The report as well as the report of the treasurer was voted received and recorded.

The report of Albert R. Stillman, trustee of the P. S. Barber Memorial Fund showed that interest of the fund amounting to nearly $35 was received and paid over to treasurer of the P. S. Barber Hose company.

Charles J. Norris reported for the fire wardens that complaints had been received and nuisances had been abated. In cases where local authorities were not sufficient state police had been called in with satisfactory results. There are a number of chimneys in the district that should be cared for. The condition is accounted for in a great measure by the burning of large quantities during the past winter of soft coal and wood.

For the sidewalk committee, Alexander Marr reported organizing with James F. McCormack as chairman. For the sidewalks five bids had been received and Samuel Nardone had been awarded the contract to lay sidewalks as follows: 7882 square feet on Stillman avenue, 678 square feet on Moss street, 5,479 square feet east side of Williams street and 326 square feet north upper West Broad street. The total amount paid was $2,533.23 $37.13 uncollected balance remains unpaid. Work was satisfactory every way. In view of the unfinished business this committee being thanked for their services, were not discharged and so continue.

It was then voted that the collector's salary be $100, the same as last year. The treasurer's salary was voted $100, it being $50 last year. Charles J. Norris recommended that the chief engineer be paid $150, and $50 each to the assistants, last year's salary being $100 to the chief and $25 to the assistants. The amendments to raise the salary and the increased salary were passed. Reconsideration of the collector's salary was amended the amount being increased to $150. Salary of truck drivers $100, was voted the same as last year. The appropriation for fire police was increased from $25 to $50, and so voted.

Chairman Martin then appointed the following tellers: Bourdon A. Babcock and John F. Gallagher.

On each of the following nominations the secretary was instructed to cast one ballot and the tellers announcing the result, the moderator declared the election of the following:

Moderator, A. G. Martin; clerk, William A. Hillard; treasurer, Claude I. Spencer; collector, Charles J. Norris; trustee of the Memorial Fund, Albert R. Stillman; assessors, William A. Hillard, Frank L. Furness, Byron J. Peckham; auditors, Albert R. Stillman, William A. Hillard; board of engineers, Pierce A. Morrison, Francis J. McMahon, James H. McKnight and N. D. Morse; fire wardens, Charles J. Norris, Edwin W. Taylor, Albert G. Martin.

It was voted that the appropriation to the hose company be $400.

Concerning the brick hose house on the Cottrell property, Pierce Morrison, for the board of engineers, stated the building belonged to the district but the land reverted to the C. B. Cottrell Co., when the building was abandoned. It was voted to abandon the house and donate the same to the C. B. Cottrell Co.

The salary of the janitor of the hose house was voted as $200.

The subject of new business was taken up. As the lighting contract expires in December of this year, A. G. Martin, W. H. Hillard, C. I. Spencer, Pierce Morrison and A. R. Stillman were made a committee to confer with the Mystic Power Co., with authority to act.

The subject of cement sidewalks was next considered. A petition from residents of Lincoln avenue which was laid over from last year because Lincoln avenue had not been accepted as a highway. The following resolution that a committee of five be appointed to report back to a special meeting of the district in two weeks time was made by four residents to lay walks on the southwest side of Palmer street, approximately 1,111 square feet; the second signed by ten residents to lay walks on the east side of Williams street from the corner of Palmer to Field street, 676 square feet; a third, signed by nineteen residents for the north side of Palmer street beginning at Merchants and continuing to Williams street, 1,191 square feet. These petitions were received and voted approved with the exception of the east side of Palmer, which was laid on the table. The petitioners of this district were the two sides of any street. The Lincoln avenue sidewalk is, to turn the corner on Stanton street. The following committee was voted to go ahead with full power in carrying out district vote: William E. Martin, Arthur F. Rice, H. S. Proctor, Jere Purtill and P. J. Morrison.

A resolution regarding the collection of garbage and the appointment of a committee to consider the matter was read by George A. Stillman, who moved its adoption.

Bourdon A. Babcock then arose to say that it was his opinion that the motion to receive and vote the measure was illegal as it carried the expenditure of moneys for this purpose was not permitted under the district incorporation. The chair ruled differently and the vote was taken and carried as was also the vote for the chairman to appoint a committee of three to carry on the work. This committee was afterwards named as follows: Chief Engineer Pierce Morrison, George A. Stillman and Charles J. Norris.

The levy of a 4 mill tax due and payable Oct. 1 was then voted, it being the same levy as last year.

Clerk Hillard read the incorporation of the fire district act of 1887, with the amendments of 1894 and June 6, 1913, where authority was plainly given the district to spend money for garbage collection.

Burdon A. Babcock moved that the board of engineers be instructed to see if land adjacent to the hose house could be purchased, and they were so instructed to report at the next annual meeting. The present Liberty street frontage is 40 feet.

It was voted that the treasurer's and collector's bond be $3,000 and the the treasurer was employed to hire necessary money. At 9.45 the meeting adjourned, after its business had been transacted with thoroughness and dispatch, which showed the ability of the officers and the comprehensive understanding of the taxpayers present.

Judge Edward M. Burke held the regular bi-monthly session of the probate court in the probate rooms on Broad street Tuesday afternoon and the following business was transacted:

PROMISE TO CONSIDER BETTER TRAIN SERVICE

Promise to take into consideration better train service for Norwich was made by railroad officials at a conference Tuesday morning at the railroad station at ten o'clock between officials of the road and prominent chamber of commerce men and business men of the city.

The local men explained to the road officials that train service in and out of Norwich is very poor limiting connection at other points on the system. It was also stated that there is urgent need for an evening train from New London to Norwich. The last train leaving New London for Norwich departs from New London at 6.20 o'clock, d. s. t.

As proposed by the Norwich business men principal changes, if made by the road, follow: A train leaving Norwich at 10.30 a. m. and 3.15 p. m. going south, both these trains make good connections for Boston, New York and points south. It was suggested to the officials that the present 2.10 train north be discontinued because it was felt that it was not an opportune time for this train to leave, and furthermore it was purely a local train for Norwich to Worcester and Boston. A train leaving Norwich at 5 p. m. was suggested which makes splendid connection for Worcester and Boston. The importance of an evening train, connecting with the 5.02 from New York and leaving New London about 8.30, due in Norwich a little after nine was quite strongly stressed upon the officials of the railroad. The officials agreed to take the matter under consideration and a report from this conference is expected soon, inasmuch as the summer schedule will go into effect about June 17th.

Those present at the conference were: F. C. Coley, general passenger agent, E. E. Regan, supt., New London division, R. M. Smith, assistant superintendent and J. O. Halliday, superintendent transportation, Mayor M. R. Waters, President H. M. Leroy of the chamber of commerce, Lucius Briggs, Dr. H. B. Campbell, R. A. Clapp, Jr., W. H. Cruickshank, J. M. Lee, D. T. Shea, J. N. Weymouth, A. L. Peale, F. B. Ricketson, George Young, J. C. Macpherson, J. W. Bussey, and Secretary John J. O'Rourke.

SUPERIOR COURT ADMITS MANY TO CITIZENSHIP.

Seventy-five applicants for citizenship, including eight women, were admitted at the naturalization session in the superior court here Tuesday before Judge George P. Hinman. Over a dozen were continued for study, and several were dismissed for various reasons. Among these were those who had claimed exemption from military service on the ground that they were aliens. They were told they were not wanted as citizens of the United States.

A large United States flag was suspended behind the judge's chair. Judge Hinman gave each group of new citizens an impressive talk upon their duties and the oath they had taken.

The applicants were examined by A. F. Church of Boston, naturalization examiner, and the court records were kept by Clerk George E. Parsons, who was assisted by Attorney Hibbard B. Norman to whom the work is familiar.

The large number of applicants, each with their witnesses, crowded the court room and even extended out into the corridor.

LAFAYETTE MAIN GIVES DEMONSTRATION WITH WOLF TRAP IN GAME LAW CASE

A demonstration of how he could get into and out of the traps he set on his North Stonington farm and the dissection of two birds to prove that they had been shot were graphic features that Lafayette Main introduced in the common pleas court here Tuesday in defense of the charges made against him of violation of the game laws last December.

Main conducted the demonstration with the jury but the dissection of the birds was carried on outside. For a short time the birds, with the pelts of two deer, were in the court rooms, but their ripe odor was insufferable on the torrid day and they were quickly removed on the orders of the judge as soon as they had served their purpose as exhibits in the case. Since the birds and pelts were seized by the game wardens last December they had been kept in cold storage but for a week they had been at the court house and the warm weather had not improved their condition.

When court adjourned for the day, until the next morning at 9 o'clock, both sides had rested and the case was ready for the arguments by Prosecuting Attorney C. B. Whittlesey and Attorney Thomas M. Shields, counsel for Mr. Main.

Main is accused on four counts of violation of the game laws in the early part of last December. The trial was begun a week ago and was continued to Tuesday.

County Game Warden Testifies.

County Game Warden R. B. Chappell of New London was the first witness called Tuesday by the prosecution. He testified that Main reported about December 1, by letter to Deputy Frank Powell, of Lyme, one deer killed. The report was that the deer was shot. There was also a report to Deputy Hill of another deer killed. The witness said he sent Deputies Ross and Ramistella to investigate the Powell report. Mr. Chappell testified to another report from Mr. Main in January of shooting a deer and of going to the Main farm to investigate. The witness also testified to going to Main's farm and orchard three weeks ago on a complaint from Main that deer were doing damage. The most damage that the witness saw had been done by the field mice.

Deputy Game Warden Louis A. Ross of New London was called by the state and testified to going to the Main place on December 7 with John Ramistella. At that time Main couldn't show where he had shot a deer in the orchard, but Main said he would show the place if they came back the next Saturday. Mr. Ross said there were no shot holes or bullet holes in the deer hides that they found at the Main farm but the leg of one showed where it had been pinched and the bone had been broken through. The witness also testified to finding nine No. 4 1-2 wolf traps, several jumper traps and some of a smaller size.

Samples of the three kinds of traps were produced as exhibits and the witness described how and where they were set in the runways and in gaps in walls. One of the traps had hair on it from a deer. The jumper traps and the small traps were set in rabbit paths, some with corn around them. Around one of the jumper traps was a quantity of partridge feathers. The witness told of one of the traps having blood on it and having seen deer tracks around it.

The witness produced the pelt of a deer from the Main farm which he said showed no shot wounds but a mark on the leg. Another pelt, he said, showed a blood blister between the horns where the animal had been struck in the head. This also had the leg bullet clot and no bullet holes.

A "ripe" odor from the deer pelts prevaled the court room and they were removed from the courtroom as soon as possible, as was also done with several partridge, woodcock, quail and gray squirrel which were brought in as exhibits. The witness pointed out how legs on the birds were broken.

Said He Arrested Rich People.

On cross-examination the witness denied that he and Renistella had been discharged as game wardens because of complaints over his testimony not being truthful, but said he was laid off for arresting some rich people for shooting ducks at night on the Connecticut river. This had been told him he said at headquarters at Hartford.

Attorney Shields questioned the witness closely regarding the possibility of shot marks being in the head or legs of deer that would not show in the pelt. Four of the big wolf traps, the witness said, were found in the orchard.

The witness denied that they walked on and did damage to vegetables in Main's cellar when they were searching with a search warrant.

John Ramistella, of New London, a former deputy game warden, testified to going with Ross on Dec. 6 to the Main place to investigate a deer killing. Main claimed the deer was killed in the peach orchard but didn't show the place. The witness also told of being in the party of officers who went to the place the next day where Main wouldn't give up the deer until he had talked to his lawyer. The witness corroborated previous testimony by Federal Warden Chaffee as to search of the Main property.

On cross-examination by Mr. Shields, Ramistella said he resigned as deputy game warden because the hours were too long. There was no charge against him, but he was a witness in a hearing against Ross for arresting Mr. Talbot for shooting birds after sunset. He described the places where traps were found on the Main farm.

William R. Palmer of Griswold, a deputy game warden, who was in the party of officers that went to the Main farm told of having seen the game that was found at the farm. He didn't know anything about the traps.

For the Defense.

Farquhar Smith of Westerly, was called as first witness for the defense. He is a member of the town counsel of Westerly. He said he was at Main's place on Nov. 21 hunting where he saw on top of a barrel one partridge, 1 quail, a woodcock and a rabbit. Mr. Main told him one of the birds had flown against wire and broken its neck. The witness testified that birds would keep in good condition for two weeks after they were shot.

George A. Dolan of Westerly, a commissioner of game and fishery, testified he was with Mr. Smith at Main's place on Nov. 21 and saw the birds on the barrel. Main said he had been gunning and had got the birds that morning.

G. Warren Davis, of Corning road, Norwich, testified he was at the Main farm the day before yesterday, where he visited three orchards where there are currant, raspberry and grape vines between the trees. A question as to whether he saw damage by deer was objected to and excluded. The witness said he saw a dead apple tree, scarred about three feet from the ground, which he thought had been done by a deer's horns. He saw no deer runs, but saw a cut wire on top of a wall that seemed to have been cut by a blow from a sharp instrument.

John A. Fish of Fishtown, Mystic, testified that the reputation of Ross for truth and veracity was about as bad as it could be.

On cross-examination the witness said he investigated Ross' reputation at Sayhrook, to make a report to the fish and game commission.

Accused Owns 13 Farms.

The defendant took the stand and testified that he owned 13 farms, comprising about 2,000 acres in North Stonington and thinks he has more game than any one else in Connecticut. He hasn't killed 50 birds in the last five years because he hasn't time. He protects the game on his farms. One of his orchards, he said, had been destroyed by deer three times. He shot the first deer in the eye, this being the deer that he had reported to Mr. Powell.

Mr. Main produced a set of horns which he said he picked up at the scarred tree in the orchard. The witness also read a copy of the letter which he sent to Mr. Powell.

Finished Deer With Club.

Mr. Main testified that the second deer was shot in the leg which was broken. He said he chased the deer around the orchard and finally cut a cherry tree club and finished the deer with a blow in the head.

The witness produced the cherry tree club in court.

He told of the visit of the officers and of the way he showed them around. Then the officers met him in the road in his automobile, he said, they took charge of the machine, turned it around, burned out the bearings and left it in the ditch. When Officer Chaffee was looking around the place, Main said Chaffee stepped on a hen with chickens, killing the hen with several chickens. The witness charged that Chaffee suggested the whole thing could be settled for $25 and dropped, which would be much less expensive than fighting it with lawyers.

Mr. Main testified that the quail had been shot and its leg had been broken by a cow stepping on it. The squirrel had been killed in a corner and one of the partridge had flown into a wire and he had wrung its neck.

Dissected Birds.

At the suggestion of Attorney Shields, Mr. Main said he would dissect the quail and woodcock to see if he could find any shot in them.

The court declared a recess while Mr. Main performed the dissection in another room in the presence of Deputy Sheriff Manual Martin.

When court came in again, Mr. Main showed one shot that he had found in the quail, but said he could only find shot holes, but no shot in the woodcock.

Testifying as to the traps, the witness said he set them for foxes and caught foxes and wild cats.

Demonstrated With Traps.

Mr. Main gave a demonstration with the big wolf trap, setting it, stepping on it with his foot and showing how he could release himself. He also showed how he could catch his hand in one of the small traps and get it out again. He said he had never caught deer in the traps and had never sprinkled corn or oats for bait. He said he had turkeys and wouldn't be fool enough to try to catch his own birds.

The witness showed two goat hides which he said were in the barrels seen by Warden Chaffee who thought they were dog hides.

Prosecuting Attorney Whittlesey gave the accused a lengthy cross-examination in the course of which Main said that two officers, Chaffee and Ross had been pretty reckless with the truth in their testimony. As a final question Mr. Whittlesey asked Main if he was the man who was convicted and sentenced to state prison in 1901 for theft. Main said he was and that he had suffered everything but death for a job that some enemies had put up on him.

Mrs. Main, wife of the accused corroborated his testimony as to Chaffee suggesting that the matter could be settled for $25. She said all the officers were present at this conversation.

Attorney Shields rested the case for the defense at this point and Mr. Whittlesey recalled Warden Palmer, Warden Ross who denied that Chaffee offered to settle for $25 or that he tried to get Main to sign a certain blue paper which was an admission of guilt.

WATERFORD TOWN COURT FINES NORWICH DENTIST

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, June 5.—Dr. George Happenny, a dentist, of No. 10 Shetucket street, Norwich, was arraigned in the Waterford town court at three o'clock this afternoon charged with breach of the peace, trespass and damage to private property. He pleaded guilty to the two former counts and the third count was nolled upon Happenny agreeing to pay whatever damage he had occasioned. Justice Thomas Morton imposed a fine of $15 for the charge of breach of the peace and $5 for the charge of trespass.

Happenny, in company with a lady friend, drove to Waterford Sunday evening and when in front of the Edward C. Hammond estate, he decided to leave the main highway and park in the driveway of the Hammond property. While there the dogs quartered on the Hammond place were aroused and barked so loudly that the dentist evidently decided to change his place of parking and proceeded to operate his machine through the barnyard to the cultivated land of the place, the machine plowing up the recently planted soil and continuing across marsh land to a point close to the edge of Alewife Cove, where the machine came to a stop when it got stuck in the mud.

Happenny informed the court that he did not realize that he operated his automobile upon private property, but that he simply left the main road believing that he would still be on a public highway.

Happenny's automobile was buried so deep in the marsh land that it required a team of horses to extricate the vehicle yesterday.

CUTS RED TAPE FROM CIVIL CASE PLEADINGS

Copies of the new law which cuts the red tape from pleadings in civil cases in the courts have been received by the court clerks here and the provisions are being communicated to the members of the legal profession. Pleadings have played an important part in the past in most civil cases, and it has happened time and again that defects in the compliance with the pleading rules delayed trial of cases from time to time and wasted much of the time of the judges.

The new law simplifies matters in that it wipes out many of the statutory provisions relating to pleadings. The law specifies that any pleading may be filed after the statutory limit or regardless of any court rules provided no written motion for judgment by default or non-suit for failure to plead has been filed. No default judgments can be entered by the court clerk any more for failure to plead within the time limit except upon an order of the court. It is further provided that there shall be no penalty for failure to plead except in certain instances.

"Section 1. Any pleading in any civil action may be filed after the expiration of the time fixed by statute or by any rule of court, provided no written motion for judgment by default or non-suit for failure to plead shall have been filed with the clerk of the court in which cause shall be pending.

"Section 2. No judgment of non-suit or default, in any case in which appearance shall have been entered by the clerk of any court for failure to plead within the time fixed by statute, or by any rule of any court, until an order for the same shall have been passed by such court after reasonable notice to the opposing counsel and hearing thereon.

"Section 3. No penalty for failure to plead within the time provided by any rule relating to the filing of any pleading shall be imposed upon any party to any cause unless such failure shall be a violation of an order or judgment made by the court after notice and hearing thereon.

"Section 4. This act shall take effect from its passage and shall apply to all pending causes."

HOME-COMING PARTY IS MEETING WITH SUCCESS

Favorable progress is reported in the plant of the Norwich Society in New York for a back-home day on Saturday, June 23, when every member who can is to return to the home city. Francis P. Bent, the chairman, is receiving many responses of which the general burden is that the "Home-coming party looks good to me."

On Sunday, the 24th, it is the plan to conduct an entertaining and innocent stunt at the Fairgrounds or some other prominent place in the city. Norwich enterprise and Norwich products are behind the whole plan, the printing of the announcements having been done here and a hymn for the event having been written by a Norwich man as follows:

Hymn of the Home-coming Norwichites.

(Air: Battle Hymn of the Republic)

We never have forgotten, boys, our dear old Norwich town.
The "Rose of old New England" well deserves her fair renown.
The memories of our childhood days will never, never down;
And so we're going home.

In the big metropolis we labor day
by day;
Norwich and her loveliness seem very far away;
But there's a longing in our hearts
we simply must obey;
And so we're going home.

CHORUS

Glory, Glory, Halle-lujah,
Norwich, once again we'll view-yuh,
Pity those who never knew-yuh,
We are going HOME.

GERMANY IS TO DELIVER NEW REPARATIONS NOTE TODAY

The Underlying Principle of the New Note is to Bring the Powers to the Conference Table—Questions of Passive Resistance or the Occupation of the Ruhr Are Not Touched—Note Will be Handed to the Various Governments at 2 P. M. Today—Allies Are a Unit on the Matter of German Reparations.

London, June 6.—(By the A. P.)—The underlying principle of the new German note on reparations is to bring the powers to the conference table, says a dispatch to the Times from Berlin. The note does not touch the questions of passive resistance or evacuation of the Ruhr.

The dispatch adds that the note has been telegraphed to Dr. Wiedfeldt, the German ambassador in Washington, and will be handed to the various governments at two o'clock Thursday afternoon.

ALLIES A UNIT ON THE REPARATIONS QUESTION

Brussels, June 6.—By the A. P.)—A solid and united allied front by France, Belgium, Great Britain and Italy on the question of German reparations, with France and Belgium agreed on a policy with regards to the Ruhr, appears to be forecast in consequence of a meeting here today between Premier Poincare of France and Premier Theunis and Foreign Minister Jaspar of Belgium.

A striking feature of the session, according to both the French and Belgiens was that a way was left open for Stanley Baldwin, the British prime minister, to propose a solution should it prove impossible to arrange a joint allied reply to new proposals Germany is expected to make almost immediately on the question of reparations.

The French expressed willingness to meet any reasonable German plan in a spirit of conciliation, and aside from insisting that payment from Germany must be forthcoming before the French soldiers march out of the Ruhr, M. Poincare declared he was ready and willing to entertain settlement suggestions from friendly quarters.

It is asserted that when the French premier made this statement Mr. Baldwin was particularly in his mind.

The French, with the Belgians supporting their view, still held out for a cessation of German passive resistance as an inflexible requirement before Germany's new offer is examined, but M. Poincare's attitude on the whole nevertheless is construed here as decidedly less uncompromising than heretofore. The two allies, France and Belgium, again at today's meeting reaffirmed their decision to evacuate the Ruhr only as Germany has paid.

Grave fears had been voiced that the French and Belgian viewpoints would prove irreconcilable; but after a private talk of more than an hour between M. Poincare and M. Theunis and M. Jaspar, which was considered the most important feature of the day, it was announced officially that "an understanding has been reached:"

The meeting of "the board of directors of the Ruhr occupation company limited," as the French premier described today's session, proved to be a general discussion of the reparation's question.

SIX PERSONS KILLED IN DISORDERS AT LEIPZIG

London, June 6.—By the A. P.)—Six persons were killed and 33 wounded at Leipzig this afternoon when a crowd of socialists and trades unionists, holding a demonstration against the high cost of living, clashed with the police, says a despatch to the Times from Berlin.

The demonstrators fired on the police, who replied with a volley. The crowds fleeing from the police plundered food shops.

DISCLOSURES MADE AT THE FULLER BANKRUPTCY HEARING

New York, June 6.—Investigation of bankrupt stock brokerage houses was given added impetus today by the reported intention of W. B. Silkworth to resign as president of the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Coincidentally, District Attorney Banton announced assignment of four assistants to investigate Jones and Baker, large curb brokerage house which was plunged into bankruptcy recently. Complaints of customers about handling of their accounts was the reason for Mr. Banton's act, it was said.

Silkworth's friends said he would resign to prevent the exchange from being further embarrassed by attacks made on him during investigation of the affairs of Kardos and Burke and E. M. Fuller and Co., former members of the Consolidated Exchange. It was stated he did not wish to resign, however, before completion of the inquiry.

From other sources it was reported that a committee of five members of the exchange's board of governors appointed recently to investigate past and present activities of officers and members of the exchange had asked President Silkworth at that time to resign and he refused to do so. Later requests were also refused it was stated. Mr. Silkworth refused to discuss the situation.

In the course of the Fuller bankruptcy hearing, it was disclosed that Silkworth had been one of the floor traders for the bankrupt brokers. A check for $617.50 from the Fuller firm just before the failure indorsed by Silkworth was produced and records of the firm disclosed to show that the check was for profits on a trading transaction.

Charles A. Stoneham, one of the owners of the New York Giants, and his brokerage partner, Ross F. Robertson, were named by James A. McDonough, an attorney. The complaint alleged that commissions were charged through McDonough by the Stoneham firm on stock transactions and transfers that were never made.

OPPOSED TO 12 HOUR DAY IN THE STEEL INDUSTRY

New York, June 6.—The Federated American Engineering societies today made public a report of its committee on work periods, declaring that the 12-hour day in the steel industry must be eliminated for the good of the industry and for the good of labor.

Findings of the committee, it was stated, were in direct contradiction to the report of the committee of the Iron and Steel Institute, made public recently by Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation, declaring that the 12 hour day could not now be discarded.

PRESIDENT NOT TO ATTEND MOTION PICTURE CONGRESS

New York, June 6.—President Harding, in declining an invitation from the Authors' League of America to attend the International Congress of Motion Picture Arts, which opens here tomorrow, highly commended the league for its efforts to raise the artistic standards of the industry.

The president, in his letter, which was made public by the league tonight, said:

"I wish to avail myself of the opportunity to say a word by way of something more than rather ordinary approval of the effort which the Authors' League is making in this behalf. It has, of course, come to be an almost pathetic truism that the motion pictures have the possibilities either of great usefulness or of distinctly demoralizing influence.

"I would not be guilty of repeating such a trite observation save that of furnishing an excuse for the expression of my gratification that the Authors' League is taking a definite and constructive interest in the whole subject. The fact that the motion picture makes so easy and attractive an appeal might easily make it a means of certain intellectual dissipation, to the positive demoralization of sincere purpose and studious effort among its devotees.

"On the other hand, it has repeatedly been so employed as to arouse interest in important and valuable subjects, and to inspire studies and much thoughful consideration. The authors, though they have only a part of the responsibility, are postured to make their influence highly potent in the direction of the best unilization of film possibilities. I hope the conference will be well attended and that its considerations may be such as to enhance the community value and social usefulness of this new and wonderful art."

PRIVATE DETECTIVES EXONERATED BY COURT

New York, June 6.—Judge Nott in general sessions today dismissed indictments charging Edmund Leigh, a private detective, with kidnapping and wire tapping and Peter Lawson with wire tapping in connection with an alleged attempt to cause the deportation of August Probst, an employe of the Rolling Rock club near Pittsburgh a year ago. The indictments were dropped because of lack of corroboratory evidence from Probst and failure of the district attorney to prosecute.

Leigh and Lawson were indicted when Probst, who was alleger to have paid court to women relatives of prominent members of the Rolling Rock club, charged an attempt had been made to kidnap and deport him. Probst was later sent back to Switzerland after a long legal battle.

He was indignant over a letter made public by City Clerk Cruise from Jessica's former husband, Cyril D. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Slippy McGee at the Strand.

It was the first time that a girl of that kind had spoken to him. She stood there radiant in her southern beauty beneath the moss-draped trees. It was his first encouragement, his first hope for better things. Slippy McGee, America's cleverest safe cracker, was bad because he never had known any good. But this was the turning point. As the girl saved him, he in turn saved her, even if he did have to turn safe-cracker again for one night to do it.

Slippy McGee is Marie Conway Oemler's story of human salvage, a story that has been read in book form in tens of thousands of American homes. The picturization is by Oliver Morosco, a guarantee that the story has lost nothing in its screen telling by this master of the drama. Slippy McGee is the First National attraction at the Strand theatre today, Friday and Saturday.

The Morosco deftness in the handling of this story of wholesomeness with its lolling southern atmosphere, tense moments and human makeup, has been assisted by a "typical Morosco star cast." In the title role is Wheeler Oakman, who reaches a new triumph as the crook whom fate trapped and the priest, a girl and the butterflies tamed. Sam de Grasse is the priest, while Colleen Moore is the girl. Others in the cast are Pat O'Malley, Edwin Stevens, Lloyd Whitlock, Edith Yorke, Evelyn Selbie, Alfed Allen, Robert E. Dunbar, Charles E. Evans, Nelle Peck Saunders and little Wanda Phelps.

Bread Theatre.

Deserted at the Altar, which is the feature at the Bread theatre today, is a de luxe edition of the play by that same name which thrilled the playgoers of a generation ago. Percy Williams was the original producer of this drama in the very early days of his career in the amusement world. He had but one theatre at the time, the Gotham, then known as the Brooklyn Music Hall, which seated about 800 people. In casting about for unusual attractions, Mr. Williams hit upon this stirring melodrama, and proceeded to put it on, with such marked success that it ran for two years to packed houses. The plot, which is as full of punch and thrill today as it was in 1898, when it was first presented by Mr. Williams, lends itself admirably to picturization, and every effort as been made to give a most elaborate presentation of a classic of twenty years ago. The picture based on the famous play by Pierce Kingsley, and the book version by Grace Miller White, author of Way Down East, From Rags to Riches, Little Heroes of the Street, etc., is just a simple country story, human, throbbing, real; happening everywhere, yet nowhere, in the vivid game of life. Reginald Denny will also be seen in The New Leather Pushers and Movie Chats completes the bill.

Broadway Theatre.

Pritchard & Rock are comedians.

Florida, the winter playground of the rich, is shown in all its phases in Fog Bound, Dorothy Dalton's latest Paramount picture which Irvin Willat produced, and which has caught on in fine shape at the Broadway theatre this week. So far as is known this is the first time that the Everglades, beaches, huge orange groves, beautiful estates and placid lakes of Florida have all been shown in one picture. Many pictures have shown one or two of these phases of Florida life, but in For Bound they are all flashed on the screen.

Gales Ferry, June 6—Harvard and Yale rowing officials met today in conference at the Yale headquarters and agreed on the time for the starting of the three of the four events scheduled for the regatta June 23. Standard time will be used. The freshman race will start at 9.45 a. m., with the junior varsity race following it as soon as possible. The varsity race will be rowed at six p. m.

The officials also agreed to row the morning races downstream and to row the varsity event upstream. This change was made because of tide conditions, as it had been previously announced that the varsity race would be rowed downstream.

Coach Leader watched the Harvard crew row over a four mile course this afternoon and said that it looked well. As yet he is not completely satisfied with the work of the Yale crew and is drilling the men on fundamentals.

The varsity, this afternoon, rowed over the course once, while the freshman had racing starts. The juniors varsity and combination crews had six mile workouts.

Muller Pleased With Crews

Red Top, Conn., June 6—Satisfaction with the work of the four Harvard crews in training here for the Yale-Harvard regatta, June 22, was expressed by Coach Muller and his staff after the morning and afternoon practice of the crews today.

This morning the two varsities and the combination crew took an easy paddle to the naval base and tonight the varsity went over the four mile course being paced for the first half by the junior varsity and by the combination the second half. The freshman crew went over the two mile course this morning and rowed five miles this afternoon. The heavy thunder storm caused the postponement of afternoon practice until 7 p. m.

YALE- HARVARD FRESHMAN RACE MAY BE CANCELLED

New Haven, June 6—The Yale-Harvard freshman crew race in the annual regatta, June 22, will be cancelled, it was announced at Yale tonight, unless the participants in the riotous disturbance here Monday night between freshmen and sophomores confess their share in the outbreak.

This action, it was said, is the punishment which the authorities have had in mind since the riot which called out more than fifty policemen and several pieces of fire apparatus. The statement given out tonight says in part:

"On Monday night, June 4, a disturbance of an extremely serious nature broke out. Not only was much damage done in the freshman dormitories on the campus and in Berkeley Oval, but by their disorderly conduct in the city streets, members of the freshman class seriously endangered the good relations of Yale University with the city of New Haven.

The committee on rules have, therefore, unanimously voted to cancel the Yale-Harvard freshman boat race, unless the participants in the disturbance Monday, come forward to take upon themselves the consequence of the action. * * *

"Unless the information is deemed satisfactory by the committee on freshman rules, all freshmen who are now at the crew quarters will be recalled from Gales Ferry Saturday.

"This measure does not prejudice further action by the committee. Fitting penalties will be inflicted on any freshman who proves to have been guilty of disorderly conduct on the city streets, whether in the destruction of property or in resisting the city police in the performance of heir duties."

News of this decision reached the Yale training quarters at Gales Ferry when Manager Louk returned there tonight after a flying trip to New Haven and caused consternation at the camp. It is believed, however, the participants in the disturbance will take their punishment and that the committee will not find it necessary to recall the crew.

At Red Top, where the Harvard freshman crew is in training with the three other Crimson crews, the news created a profound sensation. The Harvard authorities take the freshman race very seriously and any cancellation of it will cause keen regret, if not some resentment.

FABER MAKES HIS FIRST HOMER AS WHITE SOX WIN

New York, June 6—The first home run of the long major league career of Urban Faber, veteran Chicago pitcher, aided Chicago in winning its first game of the year from New York today, the score being 4 to 1. Faber had the better of Pennock, the local lefthander, in a twirling duel which was decided when Faber broke a 1-1 tie score in the seventh inning with a home run, which bounded into a left field box. Chicago then made two additional runs in the ninth. The defeat was the first suffered by Pennock since he came to New York. He previously had won six straight. The score:

CHICAGO CHECKS RUSH OF THE MIGHTY GIANTS

Chicago, June 6—Chicago hit Nehf, star lefthander, hard today, smashing out four doubles, all of which figured in a 6 to 1 victory over New York and evened up the series. Aldridge held the world's champions to three hits, one a home run by Snyder. A thick fog off Lake Michigan the first on record at Cubs' Park during playing time, hung over the field and made it so dark at times that it was impossible to see beyond the infield. Several times it was necessary for the umpires to confer as to whether balls batted to the outfield had been caught. The score:

SHELBY PROMOTERS WARNED AGAINST LAWLESSNESS

Helena, Mont., June 6—If the local authorities at Shelby continue to indicate that they are either unable or unwilling to enforce the law, there will be no match between Dempsey and Gibbons there July 4th, was the statement made in a telephone message from Attorney General L. D. Rankin, to the authorities in Shelby this afternoon.

Reports of lawlessness at Shelby in connection with the activities preceding the heavyweight championship fight, set for July 4, prompted the Attorney general to issue sharp instructions to Shelby authorities declaring that if the proposed prize fight is permitted to become a public nuisance it will be stopped by the state.

WOMAN WINS FORTUNE ON BRITISH RACE

London, June 6—(By the A. P.)—A little sweepstakes ticket, combined with derby luck, has placed a fortune of 32,000 pounds in the lap of a Yorkshire woman mill worker, Mrs. Nellie Ford, by name, who drew Papyrus in the Otley club's 80,000 pound sweepstakes, in which more than 200,000 players had taken a chance. Mrs. Ford is described as a hard working woman, who has spent most of her life working in a mill in order to help support her large family. Yesterday she was offered 3,000 pounds for her chance, but refused, as she had a dream that fortune awaited her.

The second prize of 16,000 pounds, and the third of 8,000 pounds were won by two men of moderate means. Several others have won sums ranging from penury to easy street by the luck of drawing winning horses in the numerous other sweepstakes held in England.

A London man won 12,000 pounds in the meat dealers sweepstakes, in which, he announces, he will give one third to a fund being raised to aid the city hospitals. A young stenographer is better off by 10,000 pounds by winning the prize offered in the Cork hospital draw, and a street cleaner won a like sum in another draw.

The Calcutta and London stock exchange sweepstakes have not yet been announced. The former is worth about 30,000 pounds and the latter 25,000 pounds. It is estimated a quarter of a million pounds sterling has been won in the big public sweepstakes, while huge sums have changed hands through those conducted on a smaller basis.

BRIDGEPORT WEST ENDS HERE NEXT SUNDAY

Many familiar names will be recognized in the following lineup of the West Ends: Jack McCarthy, 1b; Jimmy Hammill, 2b; Tom Bowden, ss; Ed Riley 3b; Burke, lf; Davis, cf; Olichney, rf; O'Connell, c. The West Ends will have either Cleary, Wilson or Brown, members of the Bridgeport Eastern league club in the box for the game Sunday.

Manager O'Leary has not announced his lineup for the game Sunday but in all probability will use the same as was slated for the game last week.

STUDEBAKER LIGHT-SIX TOURING CAR $975

More Cars Shake Themselves to Pieces Than Ever Wear Out

Charge that up to vibration.

Vibration causes cars to grow old prematurely by racking their chassis, destroying the "metal life" of vital parts, loosening up their bodies and causing squeaks and rattles. Frequent, costly repairs are the result.

The Studebaker Light-Six is freer from vibration than any car of its approximate size or weight yet produced.

This has been accomplished largely by a complete machining of the crankshaft and connecting rods on all surfaces—a practice used by Studebaker exclusively on cars at this price and found only on a very few other cars whose selling prices are from three to ten times as high as the Light-Six.

There are 61 precision operations in the manufacture of the crankshaft alone, 40 of which range in accuracy from one-quarter thousandth to one thousandth of an inch.

The Light-Six motor embodies the most advanced design known to automobile construction. And no chassis at any price is built to more exacting standards of materials and workmanship.

Aside from its mechanical excellence and its consequent long life, the Light-Six is handsome in design, extremely comfortable, sturdy, and we believe the most economical car to buy and operate ever offered at $975 or anywhere near this figure.

Its substantial all-steel body, one-piece, rain-proof windshield, ten-inch cushions upholstered in genuine leather, cowl lamps—these are among many features heretofore to be had only in higher-priced cars.

For 71 years the name Studebaker has stood for integrity, quality and value.

THE 1923 LEGISLATURE.

Once again the people of Connecticut are thankful for the law that limits the length of the session of the general assembly. The legislature of 1923 is now history, though some of the real interesting features of it may never be written. It has been a session that failed to produce as much legislation as some others but it is not on the quantity but the quality of the legislation that judgment must be passed.

Early in the session there was manifested the determination to speedily dispose of the business. Hearings were promptly held and the committees were prompt in reporting out their action. The promise of an unusually short session was upset by the situation that developed as the result of conflicting attitudes by the legislature and the governor and the close division of the legislature on several of the important measures. Efforts which have been attempted to put through personal legislation, marking a decided departure from existing laws, have been wisely sidetracked. It has been a session in which the veto has been used in only a few cases and yet in only one instances has it been sustained and that by a very narrow margin, while there has been established the precedent of turning down the appointment of a superior court judge for the first time.

In the matter of roads this part of the state will benefit in time since several stretches of highway needing improvement have been included in the trunk line system of the state and the advantage of good roads will be extended to sections that are entitled to it.

The legislature has been called upon to give adequate attention to the state institutions, to keep down needless expenditures, to start the fight against the pollution of streams and to deal with important educational matters, but through its organization and leadership the bulk of the business was disposed of in quick time and in a manner that corresponds to the requirements. As in most cases, however, satisfaction will be expressed that the session has adjourned without date.

MISTREATING THE PARKS.

We are approaching the season, if it has not already arrived, when the public parks are likely to suffer from the lack of considerate treatment. Parks are public property and in the opinion of some public property means a place where no regulations need to be observed, where contributions of rubbish are expected to be spread about and left and more or less disorder created. Too seldom is it the case that those for whom such places are established appreciate the privilege enjoyed to the extent of leaving it in just as good condition as they found it.

Many of those who have charge of the work of maintaining the parks or those who are named to guard them get thoroughly disgusted with humanity because of the thoughtless manner in which they approach and use the parks.

They like to see the well kept grounds, the green grass, the attractive flowers, shrubbery, the paths, roads, seats and other accommodations and yet the way in which papers, bags, boxes and other litter are thrown about or left where the use for it ceases, the way in which the turf is dug up, the flowers pulled up, the shrubbery broken, the benches smashed and the spirit of vandalism displayed though vandalism may not be the purpose of the ones committing the acts, makes it evident that there is not due appreciation for the provision of such beauty and recreation spots.

Such instances are most discouraging and indicate to those directly involved that there is little appreciation of the work involved in maintaining the parks or the expense that is entailed in cleaning up and making repairs after the picnics of these heedless visitors.

When children are alone responsible for such conditions it plainly emphasizes the force of bad example. There is no good reason why the children should not be taught to make the parks tidy after their outings, and there is no doubt but what they would and that they would likewise be more careful in their treatment of such places if they were given the proper guidance by parents and elders. They are likely to emulate the acts of others and they don't overlook the acts of negligence and irresponsibility.

FALSE FIRE ALARM RINGERS.

Quite the proper recognition of the practice occasionally indulged in of ringing false fire alarms has been taken by the authorities in Bridgeport in fining one man $50 and costs on each of three counts and imposing a jail sentence of four months upon both this and another culprit. Even though it was deemed advisable to suspend the jail sentences the need of making an example of those engaged in such work is made clear.

Those who turn in false fire alarms may be endeavoring to satisfy a desire for some excitement, to see the fire apparatus respond, or indulging in just plain devilry, but it is a serious matter. The quicker the fire apparatus can get to the place where a fire is the more effective is bound to be its services. It therefore makes good speed and takes the necessary chances of getting safely through traffic, striking someone or being forced out of its natural path and into a possible wreck while trying to avoid collisions. When such responses are made only to find there is no fire, and that someone has sent in the alarm, when it was known there was no fire it likewise involves more or less expense and makes it impossible for those same fire companies to make an efficient response to an actual fire should one break out while on a fruitless errand.

Without a doubt most of those who indulge in the practice of ringing false alarms give no consideration to the expense and possible danger that is created by their acts. That, however, doesn't justify any such conduct. There is a heavy penalty involved in such cases as has been indicated by the action of the Bridgeport judge and it is necessary in order to teach others that it should be applied when occasions warrant. Too often is it the case that these guilty get away without detection, but the Bridgeport court has taken the proper stand in emphasizing its unwillingness to treat such cases leniently.

BETTER TRAIN SERVICE.

Ever since it became necessary for the New Haven road to curtail its train service Norwich has suffered from lack of accommodations. When it was disclosed that trains were being operated at a loss it could hardly be expected that the roads would continue to maintain the old schedule. It was evident that some of the trouble at least was due to the fact that there was not a sufficient appreciation of the schedule that had been furnished, but while it is possible to get between nearby points either by auto or electric the big difficulty that has been experienced had been in getting good connections with more distant points, or with trains running to the larger cities.

Just what the result will be of the appeal that has been made to the officials of the New Haven road for a rearrangement and improvement of the train service to and from Norwich no one can tell. There will be general approval, however, of the effort on the part of the patrons of the road who are at present unable to get the train service that is required.

From time to time plans have been made for putting into operation cars or trains operated by a gasoline engine over short distances. This has been done with the idea of maintaining service through a reduction of expense on runs where train service is required and yet where the patronage has not been sufficient for one reason or another to warrant the operation of steam trains, which are more costly to maintain and operate.

Norwich isn't partial to such a service but if it is impossible to get anything else it would welcome the advantages that would come from the installation of such short run trains on the railroad. Norwich doesn't expect the impossible but until it is confronted with facts which disclose the contrary it will anticipate relief in response to what it considers a reasonable appeal.

HUGHES AND THE COURT.

In his address at Columbia, when recognition was being given to the services of James Kent to American jurisprudence, Secretary Hughes set forth his position relative to a world court and advanced reasons why this country should join such a court at this time instead of waiting, as some would have it, until such a court had become firmly established.

There is an admission of the desirability of outlawing war. Few there are who do not approve of such a thing and yet those who are opposing entrance into the world court are doing so under the claim that there is no recognized code of international law. In this connection Secretary Hughes took occasion to dwell upon the work of James Kent and pointed out that if Kent had been compelled to wait for a complete American system of equity jurisprudence before a court of equity was set up to which he could give his abilities, the evolution of our equity jurisprudence would have been impossible.

It is the point of the secretary of state that we should go ahead with the situation as it is and proceed to better it and help to bring about that much needed code of international law which will go more toward the outlawing of war than sitting down and calling for peace but doing nothing in an effective nature to insure it through a world court.

The world court idea is bound to have its friends and its opponents, but it is through dealing with the facts as they are, the allaying of fears and the putting down of suspicions that a proper decision can be reached.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The wet question promises to be wet, up as long as the mystery over who hit Billy Patterson.

"Soviets are doing everything to keep peace" is the claim. Have they turned over a new leaf.

From the way in which the rumors is put forth every now and then that Attorney General Daugherty is to resign some of his "friends" seem to be trying to suggest something to him.

MATTER OF CONTRAST

"I suppose this town looks rather slow to you after your stay in the gay east," said the young man gloomily. "I hardly dare come around this evening to call on a girl who has seen all the celebrities in Washington and New York. I suppose you've been invited to come back and visit the White House and everything."

"Don't be foolish," laughed the girl. "I did shake hands with the president when I was standing in line with about a thousand other people, but I can't say we are very great friends as yet. I have stood on the curb and waved as he passed, but that does not entitle me to be known as a very intimate friend of the family."

"Well, of course, I just meant famous persons in general," explained the young man refusing to be cheered. "Army officers and congressmen and things like that."

"Army officers are as thick as weeds in a garden, of course," said the girl lightly. "And some of them are really very nice."

"There you go," sighed the young man dismally. "And one of them was nicer than anybody else. What's his name anyhow?"

"Well, if you want to know, there was one nicer than all the rest of them," said the girl with sudden fire in her eye. "I don't care to tell you his name, but he's tall and dark and has blue eyes and he is coming to Chicago next week."

"Say, now!" said the young man desperately. "I was only joking, really, to find out whether you were engaged and all that sort of thing, you know, and it seems I've hit on something worse than I feared. You needn't tell me any more—I guess I've heard enough of this big Apollo. He's a real American, the finest type of soldier; he's been decorated seven times and he was in every battle from start to finish. I know how it goes."

"You've got the wrong idea of him, really," said the young woman. "The way you describe him is awfully silly sounding somehow, and he's just the finest sort. He took me to the doings Armistice day and we got in an awful jam and he couldn't find his car, so it was nearly 4 o'clock before we got back and the folks were getting scared for fear something had happened. He's one of the nicest young men to go around with that I ever knew."

"Go on, go on!" exclaimed the young man miserably. "I see he's sick, got a car and everything like that! Is there anything he isn't? No wonder I seem like a sort of shrimp to you!"

"The very idea!" cried the girl wickedly. "I think it's dreadful of you to blame him just because he puts some people in the shade. He can't help it if he was born good looking."

"And I can't help it if I was born with freckles that I can't lose," said the young man fiercely. "And maybe he has a stunning mustache, and I never did. Oh, I see my finish all right, and I might as well, say good night and go home."

"Oh, please!" cried the girl in a panic. "I haven't told you half the things I want to about my trip and I wish you'd sit down again and listen."

"I don't want to hear about a man who's so much nicer than I am," said the young man sadly. "It isn't cheerful to note the contrast you see."

"He used to come and see me a lot," said the girl calmly. "Is that way he was nicer than you. I have to acknowledge, because you don't come very often, you know."

"How could I when you were away?" demanded the young man. "And, anyhow, you don't care about me, only about this Adonis from Washington who's coming to see you next week."

"How silly!" laughed the girl. "He's my new brother-in-law, and he's coming west on government business! He looks perfectly home in citizen's clothes and you look splendid in anything. So there! And I do care a lot."

"Honest?" gasped the young man. "But you said there was such a contrast!"

"You did yourself," retorted the girl her cheeks very pink. "And anyhow, can't—can't the contrast be the other way round, I'd like to know? Oh, mercy, what a stupid you've been!"—Exchange.

Idelette de Bure, Wife of John Calvin

Although there was little of romance in the marriage of Idelette de Bure to John Calvin "the first French Protestant," the marriage was, according to all the standards of the day and age, a successful one. Calvin, austere and earnest reformer of the sixteenth century, was scarcely looking for a sweetheart. He was looking for a helpmate. Mme. De Bure was a mature woman, the widow of one of Calvin's followers, and when he married her it was with the knowledge that she had already been molded to his form.

Deeply religious, modest, thrifty, unostentatious, beyond him neither in wealth nor in social station, Mme. De Bure possessed all the needful wifely qualities. In addition to all of these characteristics, Mme. Calvin, as she later became, because of her education was able to assist her husband considerably in his work. She was, too, intensely charitable, and did a great deal to alleviate the suffering caused by poverty, although she and her husband were never wealthy.

This marriage, based on no promise of romantic love, was nonetheless a happy one. John Calvin and Idelette believed in the same things, had a community of interests and were in all things companionable. When she died, after living for some years in feeble health following the death of their only child, Calvin was sincerely grief-stricken.

Stories That Recall Others

An Embarrassing Moment

An absent minded young clerk who rode to work a recent rainy morning picked up an umbrella that was resting near him as he arose to leave the car.

"I beg your pardon, but that is my umbrella," the young woman who owned the umbrella said.

The young man grew much embarrassed, flushed, apologized and left the car.

When he reached the store he resolved to take home the several umbrellas which he had carried to the store and which had accumulated there.

As Kismet would decree he got on the same car which the heroine of the morning episode was riding. The only vacant seat was next to her, so he took it. Leaning over she said in a low tone:

"I see you did pretty well today after all," and sank back behind her newspaper.

A Discoverer Discovered

Because of certain propensities, more or less common to boys of that age, this Sunday school class is known as the bronco class. During the lesson period opportunity is given for free discussion, and there is never any certainty as to just what sort of remark or answer will turn up. A few Sundays ago the teacher had occasion to refer to Peary, the explorer, by way of illustration. To get the attention of the class centered upon the point he was illustrating he asked the class whether any of them knew who Peary was. There was some waving of hands, and the teacher picked out a boy to answer.

"You may tell us who Peary was," he said.

The young bronco quickly replied: "Peary was the guy that discovered Pearygoric'".

Rich City Banker's Wife Who Had Been Ailing, Complaining, and Doctoring for Years

Finds the Way Back to Health and Strength In a Country Drug Store

For years neither my husband nor I got any enjoyment out of life because of my ill health. I was always ailing, nervous weak and run-down; never actually bed-ridden, but life seemed just one ailment after another. Headaches one day, stomach upset the next, dizzy spells, pains in the back, colds and neuralgia. One day I would think I had heart trouble because of pains around the heart, another time I would have all the symptoms of kidney trouble with a dull aching back. My lips and cheeks were pale and sallow and I looked years older than my right age.

One day in a little village drug store, the druggist, a kindly old man, said to me, "You surely look all run-down and anaemic. Until you get your veins full of rich, red blood and the color back in your lips and cheeks, you'll always be doctoring for one pain and ache after another. Your blood is thin, pale and watery for lack of iron and when your blood lacks iron your food simply passes through you without doing you any good. All your vital organs are starved for nourishment and you get these symptoms of dangerous diseases.

"You take an old druggist's advice and get some iron into your blood. The best thing is Nuxated Iron, because it contains iron like the iron in fresh vegetables and like the iron in your blood. I have recommended it to hundreds right here in this little village and it often makes an astonishing improvement in even the worst cases."

I took the druggist's advice and in two weeks I felt like a different woman. Even in that short time the color of health had come back to my face. I felt and looked years younger, and the old tired-out feeling was gone. That was three years ago and I have never had a sick day since. I am surely grateful to the druggist who showed me the way back to health and strength.

This is one of thousands of typical hypothetical cases which might be written showing the results that have been achieved through the use of Nuxated Iron, which may be obtained from any druggist in this city. Be sure you get genuine Nuxated Iron, which is true food iron ready for immediate absorption and assimilation by your blood, and not one of the old forms of metallic iron which many physicians say is not absorbed at all.

For sale by all druggists.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Disturbed by a Wild Pig.

It didn't take the Billy Goat long to buy his uniform with the ten carrot gold piece Uncle Lucky had given him, and pretty soon he came out of the Three-in-One-Cent Store and said to the two little rabbits who were waiting outside in the Luckymobile, "I must go back to my tent!"

"All right," said Little Jack Rabbit.

"Goodbye!" said Uncle Lucky, and, as the Billy Goat went one way and the Luckymobile the other, pretty soon they were so far apart that they forgot all about one another, which is very likely to happen, I am told when people stay away from each other long enough.

Well, after a while and a laugh and a smile, the two little rabbits came to a place where

All along the old stone wall
The pale pink roses grew,
And Black-eyed Susans, tall and slim,
Would sometimes wink at you.

"I'm going to pick some roses for mother," said the loving little bunny, hopping out of the Luckymobile, but, oh, dear me, when he had gathered a pretty bunch and was about to hop back into the Luckymobile, a deep growly voice shouted from behind the stone wall:

"How dare you steal my wild roses?"

"Who are you?" asked Uncle Lucky as brave as a lion, although his voice didn't sound the least bit ferocious.

"I'll show you," replied the voice and a big wild pig lifted his head over the wall and gave a dreadful grunt. Then, opening his mouth, he shut his little black eyes and wiggled one of his long bristly ears.

"Oh, dear, I'll give them back to you," cried the little frightened bunny.

"No, you won't!" said brave Uncle Lucky. "Those wild roses don't belong to this wild pig any more than they belong to the Wild Man of Borneo," and the old gentleman rabbit gave the Luckymobile horn a sudden honk, which so frightened the wild pig that he fell over backwards, and while he was picking himself up and dusting off his back, for he was a very particular kind of a pig, the two little rabbits drove off as fast as a comet with the wild roses for dear little Lady Love.

"Don't you ever let a pig bluff you," said Uncle Lucky. "If he'd been a lion, maybe I wouldn't have acted as I did, but a pig——" and the old gentleman rabbit pulled his old stovepipe hat down on one side of his head and whistled. After that he took out his gold watch and chain to see what time it was, and would you believe it, it was 66 minutes past five o'clock.

"Goodness gracious meebus!" he said, "we can't get home in time for our six o'clock supper. Let's go to Miss Goose's Tea House and then drive home by moonlight." So please wait for the next story to hear what happens.

LAFAYETTE MAIN ACQUITTED ON TWO COUNTS AND GUILTY ON TWO

Lafayette Main o North Stonington was acquitted on two counts and was found guilty on two counts involving game law violations by the verdict of the jury in the criminal common pleas court here Wednesday afternoon. The jury was out from 2.15 to 4.55 before it reached a verdict. Franklin Rumford of this city was foreman of the jury.

On the first count on which Main was found guilty, setting traps for deer, Judge C. B. Waller imposed a fine of $75. On the other count, having game birds in his possession in the closed season, the fine was $2 and costs, which amounted to $21.

His attorney, Thomas M. Shields, at once filed notice of appeal and Main furnished a bond of $500.

The two counts upon which he was acquitted were killing deer unlawfully last December and setting traps for game birds on his farm in North Stonington.

When court opened in the morning, Prosecuting Attorney C. B. Whittlesey made the opening argument and was followed by Attorney Shields for Mr. Main. Attorney Whittlesey closed the case for the state and Judge Waller made his charge to the jury, which he concluded just before the noon recess.

After the noon recess, the jury took up the case and remained locked in the jury room until ready to report, although they once sent out a request for more paper on which to take ballots.

When they were ready to return with their verdict, there was a few moments of difficulty with the lock on the jury room door, when the bolt became caught and made the door hard to open.

As soon as the verdict had been returned, Attorney Whittlesey moved for sentence. Attorney Shields spoke for his client, stating to the court that he thought the ends of justice would be met by a small fine, without jail sentence. Attorney Whittlesey said that he did not insist on a jail sentence, but he thought a fine would be adequate.

While Judge Waller was imposing sentence, Mr. Main interrupted the judge's words once or twice to say that he did not do what he had been found guilty of.

In lower court Main had been given a fine and costs, which amounted to $248 with a jail sentence and he was tried in the common pleas court on an appeal from the justice's court. Judge Waller cut down the costs in the lower court from $91 to $21, when Attorney Whittlesey explained that there had been a $60 overcharge on officers' fees.

The court took adjournment to next Saturday morning at New London and there is also expected to be another session here next Tuesday morning.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ENDS SESSION IN THUNDERSTORM

Hartford, June 6.—In the midst of a heavy thunderstorm the 1923 session of the general assembly late this afternoon sine die.

Governor Charles A. Templeton appearing before the assembly in joint convention closed the session that has seen approximately 700 measures enacted into law. In a brief message he said goodby to the legislators and bade Secretary of State Pallotti issue the formal proclamation that brought the session to an end.

With the opening of the house in the morning, a few odds and ends of legislative work were cleared out of the way, and the banging of desk tops by members started the time-honored custom of ending the session with fun. For more than an hour the house "let loose" and the roar of laughter and shouts could be heard dimly in the senate chamber where a regular session was in progress. During this early demonstration many laughter producing gifts were presented to members who have made themselves known on different subjects. A high-chair, a dog of doubtful breed, a toy bank, an atomizer, a bottle of pop and a score of similar gifts were presented admidst laughter and cheers. A dozen resolutions and nonsense bills were introduced, most of them playing on the pet hobbies of the various members.

The senate meanwhile had been working on several minor matters, rejecting a bill concerning fraud in real estate transactions and another one concerning state aid for schools in certain towns.

Both houses recessed until the afternoon when perfunctory sessions were held in anticipation of the joint convention and the appearance of the governor.

Chaplain Coolidge was presented with a purse of gold, Speaker Nickerson with a cane, House Leader Buckley with a watch, Minority Leader Fenton with a smoking set; Clerk Noonan with a diamond ring and Assistant Clerk Hickey with shirt studs.

At the conclusion of those presentations the two house leaders were appointed a committee to inform the senate that the house was ready to receive it and soon after that body made its appearance the joint convention being called to order in preparation for the entrance of Governor Templeton.

An appeal from the board of relief of the town of Lyme, which was brought by William Gillette, the well known actor, was heard in the superior court here Wednesday before Judge George E. Hinman. Mr. Gillette owns a handsome summer place in Lyme, which he put in the grand list at $25,000, which the assessors raised to $71,360, and the board of relief made the figure $58,360, which he appealed from.

After protographs of the place had been produced in court by Lydia Fargo, testimony was given by Frank S. Preston, foreman of the actor's grounds, by Mr. Gillette, Frank R. Davison and Edgar W. Smith of the board of relief, Jacob C. Edwards, selectmen of Deep River, James L. Pratt of Essex, a shipyard director and blacksmith, and Harry D. POLICE MAKE SEIZURE IN "NEWMARKET HOTEL" RAID

A dozen cases of what is alleged to be home brew beer were seized by the local police in a raid on the "Newmarket Hotel," near the junction of North Main street and Boswell avenue, about 11.30 o'clock Wednesday night.

The police squad, which was headed by Sergeants Allen C. Matthews and Thomas Murphy, made a thorough examination of the place which is conducted by John Skindger. They found 12 cases of alleged homebrew and 40 or 50 gallons of mash in four kegs. The bottle caps read "Orange Crush."

The dozen cases were taken to police headquarters and stored in the vault. Skindger was held on a charge of violation of the liquor law and was released on bonds of $300 for his appearance in the city court this Thursday morning. The mash was not disturbed pending the result of the court hearing.

REMARKABLE SESSION OF LEGISLATURE HAS ENDED

In the beginning it was prophesied that it would be a short session and that the work would all be done by the first of May. Notwithstanding the fact that sessions have been held four days each week for the last three months, the work has dragged. There has been no hurried legislation, every one has been given all the time needed for the presentation of bills that were of interest to them. Committee hearings began as soon as the time limitation had expired. About one-half of the bills and resolutions received were referred to the committee on the judiciary. The other big committees were on appropriations, finance, cities and boroughs, roads, rivers and bridges and agriculture.

One of the marked features of the session was the large numbr of bills that have been consigned to the waste basket. Up to last night there have been 681 bills passed, 275 were public acts and 406 were private.

All of the committees finished their work some weeks ago with the exception of appropriations and judiciary.

The appropriations committee have had a busy time and have held sessions every day, some days holding morning sessions and evenings as late as 11 o'clock. Eastern Connecticut members of the assembly have had a large part in the work. Senator Rogers of New London and Representative Keith as senate and house chairmen of the committee have not missed a day in attendance and have devoted all their energy to use the money at hand for the best of the state. They adopted a system at the beginning of giving the most worthy and meritorious their first attention. They have the record of not having a single one of their recommendations either favorable or unfavorable turned down. G. S. Allyn of Waterford and Mrs. Vinton of Mansfield were also active members of this committee.

Among the matters that have received the support of this committee are appropriations for maintenance and new construction at the Norwich state hospital, a new dormitory at Mystic for the Oral school, a new dormitory for the sanatorium for the treatment of bone tuberculosis at Niantic, maintenance appropriations for the tuberculosis sanatorium at Norwich, appropriations for repairs and additions to the armories at Norwich and New London and the state camp at Niantic.

The committee on finance has been an important factor in the work of the session and have had as senate and house chairman Senator Trumbull of Plainfield and Representative Christ of New Britain, both successful business men. Representative Edgecomb of Groton has been the efficient clerk of the committee. One hundred and thirty-seven bills were referred to them for consideration.

At the beginning they announced that no bond issues by municipalities, towns, fire districts or school boards would be sanctioned except they were in a serial form. In several instances bills had to be reframed to meet this requirement. In this form the issues are formed so that a certain portion must be paid each year and as the time limit for payment the bonds will have been paid for and no new issue will have to be made to redeem them.

Among the measures approved by this committee are acts authorizing the city of Norwich to issue $160,000 bonds for the purpose of redeeming notes, town of Stonington $75,000 to pay their portion of the new bridge at Mystic, town of Groton $75,000 to pay for some bridges and the borough, $150,000 to take care of water bonds soon to fall due and the borough of Jewett City $90,000.

Among the bills favored by the committee and that is of direct interest to all the people in eastern Connecticut, was the one abolishing the tolls, making free the use of the highway bridges at New London, Saybrook and Hadlyme.

The committee on roads, rivers and bridges had as its senate chairman, the veteran road builder, ex-Highway Commissioner Senator Jas. H. Macdonald of New Haven, and as house chairman, Representative Brainard of Branford. There were 138 bills sent to them.

Among those approved were the bill including placing in the trunk line system the old Salem turnpike leading from Norwich to the Connecticut river and the road leading from Norwich Town green to Trading Cove. The Salem road bill was vetoed by Governor Templeton, but it was passed over his veto by an unprecedented majority in both senate and house.

Both senators from Windham county were chairmen of important committees, Senator Ashe of Pomfret on fish and game and Childs on agriculture. Senator Park of Sprague has been kept busy as chairman of the committee on cities and boroughs. Senator Gibbs of Norwich while not given a membership on any of the great committees has been active in looking after the interests of his district. He has made many friends out of his party, several times breaking the solid vote of his party to vote for what he thought was best. Burton of Ledyard has been constant at the hearings before his committee on public health and safety. Sullivan of Montville was helpful on roads, rivers and bridges committee, and Darbie of Killingly, a member of the judiciary committee while not often taking part in debate has many times presented the reports of his committee and they have been marked by the clearness and conciseness with which they have been presented.

Smith of Groton and Brockway of Lyme were active in the work of the fish and game committee. Lillibridge of Norwich had only a minor committee appointment. He has missed out one day in attending. This is in marked contrast with the other member elected to represent Norwich, Wm. W. O'Leary. He has been present three times and has appeared once at a committee hearing on the restoration of forfeited rights to a citizen of Norwich who had lost them and had served a term in states prison.

Collectively the representatives from Eastern Connecticut have been very constant in attendance. Krug and Service of Preston with Kendall of Lisbon have been very regular in attendance as has been Ayer of Franklin.

Exact Truth

A wise old sage of ancient Greece is said to have said: "A maxim is the exact and noble expression of an important and indisputable truth."

And some one repeated a maxim when he said: "The best is the cheapest in the long run."

And that is the sort of merchandise you will find in our store. Not necessarily the biggest price. Oh, no indeed; many times through the day we hear expressions of surprise at the low prices.

Our customers tell us they pay more elsewhere.

But the best of its kind always is to be found here.

"OLD HOME DAY" AT WHITE HOUSE FOR OHIO SHRINERS

Washington, June 6.—President and Mrs. Harding had an "Old Home Day" at the White House this afternoon when nearly two thousand Ohio Shriners, received on the South lawn, entertained their host and hostess with concerts by their bands, songs of their chanters and drills by their patrols.

It has been a long while since the White House has seen a more informal gathering. It wasn't "Mr. President," or even the less dignified "Nobie" with which Mr. Harding was generally greeted. It was "How are you, Warren?" "Am sure glad to see you, Warren," and similar salutations.

The president was just as informal as his visitors, shaking hands with all present, slapping old friends on the back, calling scores by their first name, posing with his visitors for snapshots and, with Mrs. Harding, joining in the singing of songs of a somewhat jazzy nature.

Mrs. Harding, who remained on the front portico, often addressed the visitors as "You folks," talked with the band leaders and called out what selections she desired played or her compliments after a particularly pleasing one.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

This morning will witness the establishment of a new transportation line between Danielson and Providence, an event that has been awaited to fill a need that has existed since the Providence and Danielson electric road pulled up its rails between East Killingly and North Scituate. Motor buses are to operate on a regular schedule over the route, which is the state highway going out of Danielson through Reynolds street and entering Providence via Hartford avenue and Broadway.

New buses will operate over the route, making four round trips daily and affording a service that many will appreciate in getting across the 15-mile stretch of territory between Danielson and Providence. This new line will not only serve for through traffic, but also puts South Killingly, Hopkins Mills, North Scituate and intervening territory on such a transportation route as has been desired for a long time. Building of the fine new state highway has at last made this possible. An hour and a half will be required for the run from Danielson to Providence.

The line has been approved by the public utilities commissions of Connecticut and Rhode Island and all requirements for operating over it have been met in both states. The service will be maintained seven days each week.

Incidentally the opening of this interstate line now makes it possible to travel all the way from Providence to Hartfod in public service vehicles, as lines are already established between Danielson and Willimantic and Willimantic and Hartford. The vehicles that will operate over the new Providence-Danielson route have a seating capacity of 16, ride as comfortably as a touring car, are splendidly ventilated, have heavily upholstered seats and every modern improvement for such cars.

PUTNAM

An aeroplane gracefully gliding down out of the sky to a field at the Fayette L. Wright place in Pomfret Wednesday afternoon brought Colonel Williams, U. S. A., to talk to the students at Pomfret school of the benefits of the summer training camp for civilians at Camp Devens. It was announced that Colonel Williams had lost a train connection, so came by the air route to fill his speaking engagements in this vicinity. While Colonel Williams was speaking at Pomfret Captain Creel, U. S. A., was speaking to the boys at Putnam High school, he going later to Danielson to address boys at Killingly High school. The officers were covering the high schools and preparatory schools of Windham county in the interest of arousing interest and recruiting forces for the summer camp at Devens.

Captain William J. Jarvis, new active head of the Putnam police department, said Wednesday afternoon that he expects to go on duty either Sunday or Monday next. He already has been sworn in as captain and is prepared to take up any matter requiring his attention, but for the remainder of the week will continue on night duty at the Manhasset plant, where he has been since the beginning of the strike.

Captain Jarvis was elected to his new office by a unanimous vote of all members attending the monthly meeting of the common council. This expression of approval of the new head of the department is indicative of the conddence the aldermen have in him.

Captain Jarvis is a native of Putnam, a son of John Jarvis, and is 25 years of age. He is a veteran of the World war, having served overseas as a member of D battery, 56th Coast Artillery, which engaged in vigorous attacks against the German lines in the Argonne and on other parts of the western front. He was a volunteer, enlisting at Danielson in the coast artillery corps soon after the entrance of the United States into the war and when he was but 19 years of age.

After the war he was for two years a patrolman in the Putnam police department and for the past year has been a special deputy commissioner of domestic animals in this state, his work taking him all over Connecticut. This office Captain Jarvis will resign upon taking up his new duties.

Both in temperament and experience Captain Jarvis gives promise of making a splendid head of the local department and already is assured of the loyal support of those who will labor with him.

Approximately a score of tenements of the Manhasset company are now vacant as the result of voluntary removals or through the execution of summary processes. Families of workers who are on strike continued to go out during Wednesday and more are scheduled to go today. The strike now has entered its fifth week and if a settlements is not promptly arrived at more than 50 tenements of the company will be vacant within a few days, as eviction proceedings to that extent are underway.

More of those who are remaining on strike are seeking work in other communities and each day is marked by the going away of some of those who are out to take work in other cities. Some have gone to Fall River, others to New Bedford, others to Webster and still others into other mill centers.

In the meantime the mill company is building up its force of weavers through applications for work that are coming in and nearly 30 were at work in one weaving department on Wednesday as against 15 three weeks ago, it was stated by one who has been through the plant almost daily since the strike was inaugurated.

Closing exercises at the Miss Howe and Miss Marot's school in Thompson are scheduled for Monday and Tuesday of next week. Tuesday will be graduation day. The graduation exercises are to be at 3 o'clock. The speaker will be Padriac Colum and the music will be by Miss Marot and Mr. Platt. After the graduation exercise sthe senior garden party will be held, followed by the play of Isaiah by the school.

There are eleven members of this year's graduating class, representative of a number of different states of the Union: Misses Sarah Bailey, Elizabeth Bigelow, Clara Louise Brown, Frances Bradley, Frances Shepard Corbusier, Carolyn Cushing, Henrietta Doble, Katherine Hull Duncan, Leila Newcombe Fleischmann, Doris Gates, Barbara Louise Pratt. To Thine Own Self Be True is the class motto.

In the play Isaiah an interpretation is made of the second prophecy of Isaiah, both because of its literary value and because of the light he throws on present world thought. The words of the interpretation are taken from Isaiah, Chapters 40-54. No words will be used by the speakers except those of the prophecy. Two Psalms, the 61st and 72nd, are introduced into the interludes. The prophecy is divided into seven actions progressing from the idea of sin and repentance followed by the false ideal of worship through gifts, to the conception of One who redeems through love.

Movement and interpretation is gained by means of a chorus of nations. The nations, like the Greek chorus, hold the play together for the audience. They do this by means of gesture and dancing. The colors of the costumes of the dancers are symbolic. In the first action scarlet is worn—typifying sin, in the second scarlet and gold and so on with various changes through the seven actions. More than 40 young women are included in the cast.

ARRESTS IN NEW LONDON LIQUOR FRAUD EXPECTED WITHIN A WEEK

New London, June 6.—That some of the bootleggers in New London, as well as the transporters of the booze, and a hotel proprietor whose place is located between New London and Westerly, will have a difficult time explaining their operations the past few weeks so the state police is apparent, for following the announcement of the bootleggers and the transporters being involved in the theft of a quantity of liquor from a Mystic man on the representation that they were revenue agents, State Policemen Sterling and Brank last night continued their investigation by interviewing those alleged to be implicated in the fraud to get the liquor.

As a result of the interview with members of the gang, some of their number have made confessions and not only is the theft of the liquor related, but who the liquor was delivered to and others in New London who are distributing booze were informed against. The statements made to the state police officers tell of transporting the liquor, the place where it was obtained and delivered and the party who arranged for the transaction, and also makes known the identity of a Hartford private detective who is alleged to have been connected with the fraudulent obtaining of the liquor. Altogether the investigation last night resulted in all of the parties connected with the obtaining of the liquor, which was a part of the ill-fated launch Thelma, which went ashore off Fisher's Island and foundered, trying to cleanse their hands. Officers Sterling and Brank are continuing their investigation today and will interrogate the Mystic man before they are through. An arrest is anticipated before the week is over.

The investigators last night closeted the gang and it was then that a complete story of how the booze was obtained was revealed. The transporter of the liquor confessed having been summoned to Noank and there the plan was arranged for going to the home of the Mystic man. The Hartford detective joined the party at Noank and upon the arrival of the party at the home of the Mystic man the Hartford detective displayed a badge and informed the man that the latter was under arrest. The detective then displayed a piece of paper which he represented as being a warrant and demanded the liquor. After obtaining approximately 28 cases of booze, the detective is alleged to have demanded a sum of money also, but this was refused. The liquor was taken to a place of storage in a roundabout course and after being put in hiding the auto operator, who is a New London public service operator, received $100 for his services.

Harry Wolfe, proprietor of a store at No. 1 Grand street, complained to the police this forenoon that during last night his store was entered by forcing a window and that he believed the entrance was effected by youths. Plunder only of a trivial nature was taken.

Girolomo Giri of No. 23 Nameaug street was arrested for beating his wife late last night, but he was fortunate today, for he did not appear to answer the charge of breach of the peace in the police court, because those who complained against him and procured his arrest were delinquent in not appearing at the police station at court time. As Giri was the only prisoner scheduled for a court trial he was discharged when the witnesses against him failed to put in an appearance. He was, however, given a severe reprimand before he departed for his home.

A boat owned by Joseph McNamara of No. 33 Truman street was visited by vandals some time between Saturday night and Monday afternoon while the craft was moored at the wharf of the F. H. & A. H. Chappell company and much of the equipment of the craft stolen, besides the wrecking of the engine. McNamara did not discover the entrance to his boat until this afternoon, when he reported it to the police.

Ludwig Mann, a Bank street merchant, residing at No. 286 Montauk avenue, was most fortunate this afternoon that he did not sustain serious injuries, for he was struck by a motor truck connected with the submarine base, and that Mann escaped without injury other than bruises was due to his clinging to the truck until it came to a stop. The accident occurred when Mann alighted from a trolley car on Bank street, at the corner of Golden street, and the truck, because of defective brakes, could not be brought to a stop. Mann was the only passenger to alight.

Stephen Patterson of No. 76 State street will be arraigned in the police court tomorrow morning, charged with not being possessed of an automobile operator's license and driving away from the curb without giving a signal. Patterson was taken into custody by Traffic Officer Patrick Sheehan when Patterson's automobile narrowly missed hitting another automobile that was about to pass from the rear.

Walter R. Denison, one of the best known residents of Groton, died at his home, No. 34 Ramsdell street, today, Mr. Denison's demise resulting from impaired health incurred from an attack of pneumonia he suffered several months ago. Mr. Denison was an extensive traveler and in his tours had visited European countries and upon his return delivered interesting and instructive lectures. He was at one time engaged in the wallpaper and paint business and was for ten years treasurer of the Groton ferry and until recently operated the amusement park at the Golden Spur.

The funeral of Miss Philopena Ficarra of No. 104 Main street, whose death occurred Sunday at the New London County Tuberculosis hospital at Thamesville, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, where a mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. John McGrath. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

John McGrath, a former resident of New London, died this morning in New York, in which city he had resided many years. Arrangements have not been completed for the funeral, but the body of the deceased will be brought here for services in St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and interment in St. Mary's cemetery.

Ernest Harris, and the Misses Harriet and Edith Chadsey, all of New London.

Announcement is made of the approaching wedding of Walter James Platt of Springfield, Mass., and Miss Maude Monroe Graves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Graves of No. 433 Williams street. Miss Graves is employed as stenographer in the office of City Clerk Julian D. Moran, a position she has held with ability the past three years. Miss Graves received the hearty congratulations today from her co-workers in the municipal building, when the announcement of her engagement was made known.

James Bade, aged 24 years of No. 22 Crystal avenue, who sustained a fractured skull Sunday near the Golden Spur, when the automobile, owned by his step-father, Homan Heineman of No. 22 Crystal avenue, crashed against a telephone pole from an unexplained cause, succumbed to the injury at Lawrence-Memorial associated hospital at 1.10 o'clock this afternoon. The victim never regained consciousness and as a result the facts concerning the crash will probably never be known, for the only other occupant of the machine, Thomas Callahan, of No. 147 Main Street does not remember anything as to how the accident occurred.

Daniel Sullivan, of New London, formerly employed by The Telegraph as linotype operator, now employed in New York, is seriously ill in the latter city.

Alice Curran, aged about 15 years, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Curran of Potter street, is missing from home, the young girl having disappeared this forenoon and it is believed she left the city in company with a sailor for the couple were later seen together in Norwich. It is believed that they boarded a train here and went to a Massachusetts city. The father of the girl has not reported the disappearance of the girl to the police, but did make it known to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield.

The girl attended school yesterday and this morning and appearing about the house, gathered her clothing together and placing in a suit case, she was seen to leave the vicinity in which she resides. When it became known that the girl had disappeared a report of it was made to Probation Officer Mansfield.

A substitute crew arrived here this forenoon and started work getting the craft in readiness for departure. The Alexander was seized by United States Customs officials three weeks ago following advices being received here that the tug was suspected of engaging in the rum-running traffic by taking cargoes of liquor from steamers off Block Island. The tug put into port a few days after the information was lodged with the local authorities and her seizure followed.

He said we have heard much said about the failure of the church, one of the chaplins in the late war stating that only 25 per cent. of the men under his charge were interested in the church. He also said the voice of the people is that the church has no authority but that 150 years ago one was obliged to attend church or he would be fined by the selectmen. He asked the question, How are we to make our religion real so that it will enter into our everyday life? He said the tendency of the age is away from creeds and symbols and that people are demanding reality. Christ has founded his empire and established peace. We must rebuild the world on the rock of mutual service and speak to the people by our actions that all will understand.

Women Tell Each Other How They Have Been Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Perrysburg, O.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I suffered with pains in my sides all the time. I can't remember just how long I suffered, but it was for some time. One day I was talking with a lady I met on a car, and I told her how I was feeling and she said she had been just like I was with pains and nervous troubles, and she took the Vegetable Compound, and it cured her. So then I went and got some, and I certainly recommend it for it is good. Whenever I see any woman who is sick I try to get her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. ADA FRICK, Route 3, Perrysburg, Ohio.

In nearly every neighborhood in every town and city in this country there are women who have been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the treatment of ailments peculiar to their sex, and they take pleasure in passing the good word along to other women. Therefore, if you are troubled in this way, why not give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

Over 55 million packages of this new kind of soap were used last year

For every washday method soaking—boiling—in washing machines

Already used literally by millions of women. And yet it was only three years ago that it was first brought out.

You wonder what is the secret of this remarkable growth. For just consider what a tremendous force of habit Rinso had to meet. It had to gain the confidence of women trained for generations to the long-drawn-out methods of a bar soap washday.

Mothers, grandmothers and great-grandmothers had rubbed and scrubbed to get clothes clean—rubbing soap on all the soiled places and then rubbing the heavy wet clothes on the washboard.

Is it any wonder then that when Rinso came into women's lives it swept everything before it? For Rinso spares you the hardest part of that age-old drudgery of washday—the constant backbreaking rubbing. That is why millions of packages of it are used every month.

Soaking takes the place of rubbing

You are not only saved from weary, backachy work but also your clothes are protected from the wear and tear of hard rubbing. Rinso dissolves instantly and sends its soapy suds through every thread and fibre, flushing out all the dirt. Only spots where someone has actually ground in the dirt—neck bands, cuff edges and the like—will need a light rubbing with a little dry Rinso.

Has already taken place of bar soap

You will find that Rinso is ideal for any washday method you use. You do not have to change any of your usual steps—just use Rinso where you used to use bar soap.

If you like to boil your white cottons Rinso will give just the safe cleansing suds you need in the boiler. If you use a washing machine follow the advice of the big washing machine men—use Rinso.

Rinso takes the place of bar soap for all these different washday methods. It does the whole job.

As wonderful for the family wash as Lux is for fine things

Rinso is made by the makers of Lux to be just as remarkable for the regular weekly wash as Lux is for silks, woolens and all fine fabrics. With these two soaps—Lux and Rinso—the worst of your laundry problems are solved—you need never again do any hard rubbing.

However you do your wash, make it easy by using Rinso. Get it at any grocery or department store. It comes in two sizes—the regular size and the big new package. Made by the largest soapmakers in the world. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Follow the advice of leading washing machine manufacturers

—use this new kind of soap in your machine

Apex, Bluebird, Coffield, Gainaday, Gerz, Haag, Horton, Laun-Dry-Ette, Meadows, "1900" Cataract, One Minute, Rotarex, Sunnysuds, Surf, Trojan, Voss, recommend Rinso for best results.

COFFIELD WRITES:

"Tried out over a period equivalent to seven years' weekly use, Rinso did not corrode or injure the machine in any way. It can be used with absolute safety. Garments were not weakened by prolonged washings with Rinso."

GAINADAY SAYS:

"Rinso suds stand up permanently. They penetrate the water so that every garment is saturated with Rinso solution."

LAUN-DRY-ETTE WRITES:

"We found no little soapy particles floating around in the water in our tests with Rinso as we did with some of the other soaps. Twelve minutes was the average operating period with Rinso and not a single article had to be hand rubbed."

"1900" CATARACT SAYS:

"In solution it permeates the water so evenly that its cleansing action reaches every garment. Consequently we found that we were not obliged to do any rubbing either before or after operating the machine."

ROTAREX SAYS:

"We have tried out Rinso and other soaps—many of them good—in our machine, but for all 'round satisfaction we recommend Rinso."

You don't need to bother with bar-soap any more

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY

New York, June 6—Prices displayed a reactionary tone during the early part of today's stock market in which there was active liquidation of some of the leather and oil shares, but the market rallied and moved above yesterday's closing figures later in response to the brisk demand for some of the equipments and low priced rails. Trading was still on a restricted basis with public participation at a minimum.

New low records for the year were established during the session by General Asphalt, Central Leather, common and preferred, American Hide & Leather preferred, Pure Oil, Texas and Pacific Coal and Oil, International Harvester and American Express, the last named breaking more than 11 points in reflection of the reduced dividend.

Fresh buying power came into the railroad group on the announcement that Pere Marquette had been placed on a $4 basis. Just before the directors' action became known the stock was sold freely on reports that a $3 rate would be fixed, but it bounced from 41 1-2 to 44 1-3 when reports of the $4 rate were confirmed. New York Central, which is expected to earn $20 a share on the common this year, duplicated its year's high of new 1-4, a net gain of 1 1-4 on the day. Chicago Northwestern and St. Louis Southwestern also were strong.

American Locomotive soared nearly three points to 145 5-8, the highest price in its history. Baldwin crossed 133 for a net gain of 1 1-8. Reports that May pig iron production broke all records attracted speculative interest to the steel group, U. S. steel common gaining 1 point and republic, 1 1-2. Coppers improved on reports of heavy buying of the red metal for foreign account. Proposed reduction of the pure oil dividend was reflected in a 2 point drop in the stock. California Petroleum closed nearly a point higher. American Can, American Woolen and Merchandising shares also closed strong.

Call money opened at 4 3-4 per cent, and then eased off to 4 1-2. Some time loans were arranged at 4 3-4 per cent, but most banks are holding out for 5 per cent. for all maturities. Prime name commercial paper continues to move at 5 per cent.

Foreign exchange trading was on a smaller scale with narrow and irregular changes in rates. Demand sterling eased slightly to $4.62 3-16 and French francs advanced to 6.43 cents. German marks were quoted around .0013 1-2 cents, Greek drachmas clipped back 25 points more to 2.72 cents, as compared with 4.20 cents less than a week ago.

COTTON

BOND MARKET

New York, June 6—Except for a few outstandingly weak spots in the industrial list, bond prices generally displayed a firm tone in today's more active dealings.

Foreign bonds continued to point upward with Serbian 8s, uj 1 3-8 again the most noteworthy feature. French Municipals recovered yesterday's losses, closing fractionally higher. U. S. government issues also made progress, the net gain ranging from 1-32 to 7-32 of one point.

Principal activity in the railroad list centered in the so-called speculative mortgages, which were favorably influenced by another report of record car loadings for this season of the year, placing of Pere Marquette common on a $4 annual basis and another series of favorable April earnings statements.

Copper company bonds improved in response to reports of heavy European buying of the red metal. American Telephone 6s climbed 1 1-2, Maryland Oil 8s, with warrants, broke 9 1-4 points to 120 3-4 and Virginia-Carolina Chemical Y 1-2s, with warrants, and the 7s dropped 2 1-4 and 3 1-4 points, respectively. Marine 6s and Detroit Edison 6s also were heavy.

Total sales (par value) were $10,513,000.

New offerings were confined largely to small municipal issues.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, June 6—Active buying here against selling at Winnipeg developed in the wheat market today, and prices took an upward swing. The close was firm, 3-4 to 1 1-2c net higher with July 1.10 1-8 to 1.10 5-8 and September 1.09 7-8 to 1.10. Corn finished unchanged to 1-4 up, and oats at 1-4 to 1 1-4 gain. In provisions the outcome was 2 to 10c advance.

Wheat bulls made most of their success during the last half of the day. Higher quotations at Liverpool led to something of an upturn in values at the start here, but a decline soon ensued owing more or less to reports of favorable domestic crop conditions and to likelihood that Canadian wheat might have precedence in European favor for some time to come. Strength in the price of the July delivery at Winnipeg however, led to closing out of spreads between Winnipeg and Chicago, consequent bulges in quotations here were aided by optimism which in some quarters were expressed as to the outlook for a reparations settlement with Germany.

Unfavorable crop advices from Great Britain and France together with reports of damage by excessive rains in Kansas tended further to lift wheat prices as the day drew to an end. Besides it was announced that the world's available supply of wheat had decreased 6,241,000 bushels for the week, as compared with a decrease of only 724,000 bushels a year ago. No setback of any consequence interrupted the advance of prices, and with 120,000 bushels export business here the market closed at the day's top level.

Corn and oats sympathized with the wheat advance despite heavy profit taking sales of corn. Wet weather delay to corn planting had some bullish influence.

In provisions the strength of grain more than offset weakness of the hog market.

Drop a pack in your bag when you start

A WELL-WISHER suggested that we pack Peter Schuyler in thin glass containers. Fine! But we couldn't find an unbreakable thin glass container. So we scrapped that idea and adopted this one:—

We're putting Peter Schuyler in ingeniously constructed packs—"portable humidors," many smokers call them. The inner lining of these packs is scientifically folded. A hermetically-sealed glass container couldn't keep Peter Schuyler in fresher or finer condition than our present packs. You realize that when you light up.

It's Your Type of Cigar

The fresh, firm, inviting condition of a Peter Schuyler as you take it from the pack is a welcome revelation. You admire the handsome, well-rolled shape. You luxuriate in the rich, ripe, fragrant quality of its all-Havana filler. Get back of a Peter Schuyler and you'll never switch.

Peter Schuyler Cigars come in packs of 5 and 10. The Five-Pack fits snugly in upper pocket of vest. The Ten-Pack is just right for the office desk, the travelling bag, or the door-pocket of the car. Golfers know the hazard of a broken cigar—and the remedy, a Five-Pack.

POETRY

A SEA LYRIC.

There is no sound that man has heard
Like the voice of the ocean's bird,
Whose major and minor strength are Crashing
With infinite mystery—
For the Sea is a harp, and the winds of God
Play over his rhythmic breast,
And bear on the sweep of their mighty wings
The song of a vast unrest.

There is no passion that man has known,
Like the love of the deep-souled Sea,
Whose tide responds to the Moon's calm light
With marvelous melody—
For the Sea is a harp, and the winds of God
Play over his rhythmic breast,
And bear on the sweep of their mighty wings
The song of a vast unrest.

There is no sorrow that man has known,
Like the grief of the wordless Main,
Whose Titan bosom forever throbs
With an unrequited pain—
For the Sea is a harp, and the winds of God
Play over his rhythmic breast,
And bear on the sweep of their mighty wings
The song of a vague unrest.

—William Hamilton Hayne.

EVENING SONG OF THE WISCONSIN PEASANT.

Come to the sunset tree!
The day is past and gone!
The woodman's axe lies free,
And the reaper's work is done.

Come to the sunset tree!
The day is past and gone.
The woodman's axe lies free.
And the reaper's work is done.

Yea, tuneful is the sound
That dwells in whispering bough;
Welcome the freshness round
And the gale that fans the brow.

But rest more sweet and still
Than ever nightfall gave.
Our longing hearts shall fill
In the world beyond the grave.

There shall no tempests blow,
No scorching noontide heat;
There shall be no more snow,
No weary, wandering feet.

And we lift our trusting eyes
From the hills our fathers trod,
To the quiet of the skies,
To the Sabbath of our God.

—Felicia Dorothea Hemans.

TAFTVILLE

Several theories are abroad as to the origin of the fire that destroyed the garage owned by Dr. George M. Thompson and the automobiles of six residents of the village early Tuesday morning. The theory that the blaze was caused by lightning has been pretty well scouted. Both Edmund Bissonnette, the night watchman for the Ponemah mills, and Officer Hormidas Disco, who were among the first to arrive at the scene, stated that when they arrived the interior was afire, but there was no sign that it had been struck by lightning. The roof was one of the last portions of the garage to catch fire. One story about town said that a window in the building was open, although the occupants of the garage claim that the window had not been opened for years. It is understood that the building was insured for $500, although most of the cars that were destroyed were not insured. The building stood in a quiet part of the town, and how the fire originated will probably never be discovered.

The Cradle Roll party of the Taftville Congregational church which was to have been held Thursday, has been postponed.

In one of the fastest games of the Twilight league, the K. of C. put the screws on the Clerks, Tuesday evening by the score of 4 to 0. The next game is scheduled between the Army and Navy and the J. B. Martin, to take place on the J. B. Martin Co. grounds this (Thursday) evening.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ponemah Wheel club was held Tuesday evening at the club house on Norwich avenue. President John B. SAY INDISCRIMINATE HUNTER MUST BE CURBED TO SAVE STATE'S GAME

What the state of Connecticut is doing to preserve the fish and game of the state was ably explained by Robert B. Chappell of New London, game warden for New London county, in an interesting talk at the noonday luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club Wednesday noon. Warden Chappell brought home to the members of the club the urgent necessity of preserving the fish and game in Connecticut, showing that the work of the game warden and his deputies is solely for the benefit of the true sportsman.

In his talk Mr. Chappell said that the greatest detriment to the game in this state was the foreigner who goes into the woods and fields with a gun and shoots everything that runs or flies, regardless of whether it's a song bird or partridge, chipmunk or rabbit. Not only that, but they have no regard for the limit for taking legitimate game. This element is one that must be curbed or soon there will be no live animals or birds left in the woods.

The state has a game warden in every county and each warden has a corps of deputies working under him in the various parts of his territory. The selection of deputies is a hard task for any game warden. We have some mighty good deputies, he said, who use excellent judgment, while there are others that do very peculiar things, and still others who do nothing at all. There have been some deputies who arrest on the slightest provocation and hale the offender into court and then there is no evidence to secure a conviction. The deputies as a general thing try to do the best they can for the state but there is much unjust criticism just the same. Several years ago the average arrests made in a year was between 15 and 20, but last year there were 280 arrests, and the large majority were convicted. The foreigner is not the only violator as the young boy is also a frequent offender, and then there are many violations by men of good reputation. The offense of this last named group is the exceeding of the limit of the bag.

In speaking of the Lafayette Main case that has been on trial here for the past few days, Mr. Chappell said that the prosecution of Mr. Main was absolutely just and well founded and that every charge that had been brought against him had been thoroughly investigated before being made. He also spoke of the reputation of Federal Warden Chaffee of Vermont, saying this deputy had a good record and would not offer to settle any case or accept a bribe no matter how much was offered. He also mentioned the game dinner to which he was invited by Mr. Main last winter but could not attend. He also said that Mr. Main had a very large farm, and an exceptionally good one, and that he was very sorry for Mr. Main in some ways.

As to deputy wardens receiving a $10 fee for every arrest made, Mr. Chappell said he wished to correct that impression. Every deputy warden receives a flat salary of $4 per day and when a conviction is secured half the fine goes to the state and half to the town. The deputy receives a regular constable's fee but that fee must be turned over to the fish and game fund. So, said Mr. Chappell, there is no object for a deputy to make an arrest other than in the line of duty.

Now that the state has voted for a fishing license which becomes effective on Jan. 1, 1924, and the revenue will be turned over to the fish and game commission, the state will be better able to furnish protection to the fish and game and will also be able to do more restocking of brooks and lakes.

Restocking With Fish.

In speaking of restocking, Mr. Chappell stated that Supt. Titcomb of the state fisheries would stock brooks, probably next year, with five or six inch trout rather than with fingerlings that have been used in years previous. He also said that many ponds in the county had been restocked with fish from Lake Konomoc (the New London reservoir) during the past few months. These fish, which included bass and pickerel, had been seined and transported to nearby ponds and lakes. Over 7,000 fish had been removed from Lake Konomoc and are now in ponds in the county.

He also mentioned the falling off of shad in the Connecticut river and the absence of oysters and fish in the Thames river, due largely to the pollution of the waters by the manufacturing concerns along the rivers. This is a problem that the commission is trying to combat but is meeting with stern opposition from manufacturers everywhere. In England, said Mr. Chappell, they catch salmon in the rivers, because the English government has stopped the pollution of the streams. If it can be done there, it certainly can be done in Connecticut.

Farmer is Co-operating.

The problem of catching and selling short lobsters is another thing that the game warden has to contend with, but this is being rapidly cleared up. The farmer is very glad of the law for the protection of game and always treats a sportsman fairly if the hunter meets him half way. The game wardens want the people to realize that the fish and game laws are made simply to protect the game and to give the sportsman better sport in the future.

At the conclusion of his talk Mr. Chappell was given a rising vote of appreciation for his talk.

Lew Young and Grosvenor Ely, two ardent sportsmen, in brief talks heartily endorsed all that Mr. Chappell had said.

At the business session President Charles A. Saxton presided and Eben Learned was the song leader. There were a number of selections by those who wore coats and those who chose to eat in their shirtsleeves. There was a very delightful duet by Eben Learned and Lou Wheeler. Henry J. LaFontaine also rendered a pleasing solo. There were also speeches from the newly elected members of the common council—F. Russell Smith and Alfred G. Lillibridge.

Alfred G. Bliven, captain of the losing team in the recent attendance contest, said that the losing team would entertain the winners on Wednesday, June 27th. Russell A. Clapp, chairman of the program committee, was in charge of the program of the meeting.

TAFTVILLE PASTOR PREACHES AT SIX CHURCH CONFERENCE

The conference of the six churches was held at Pachaug church in Griswold on Wednesday. The platform was beautiful with its decorations of fleur-de-lis, yellow lilies, wistaria, ferns and potted plants. Mrs. J. P. Richardson played the opening voluntary. The invocation was given by Rev. Robert Humphrey of Canterbury. The Gloria preceded the responsive reading, which was led by Rev. J. P. Richardson. Rev. William Muttart of Preston City read the scripture from Philippians 4. Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Childs of Ekonk. Rev. Roderick McLeod of Hanover sang by request No Burdens Yonder.

The sermon of the morning was by Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis, pastor of the Taftville Congregational church. His text was I must work the works of Him who sent me while it is day, for the night cometh when no man may work. It would not be necessary to call attention to this if people were not so apt to forget. Our problem is to eliminate from our lives anything that may keep us from doing our part. If we are careless we are not living up to our opportunities. We must first start with ourselves. Leaders of national life tell us that people have fallen from their purposes and ideals. The gospel of work is closely associated with faith. We must meet work with cheer and optimism. What is true of the home is true of the church—there is always something to do. The blessing of earth is toil. Faithfulness in the work of the church will bring its reward. Lord God of Hosts be with us yet. Lest we forget, lest we forget.

Rev. Mr. Richardson appointed as resolutions committee Rev. Mr. McLeod of Hanover, Mrs. F. L. Kanahan of Lisbon and Mrs. J. Kellogg Hall of Preston City.

Dinner was served in the town hall by the women of the church. Extra thanks were due them for the hard work caused by the extremely warm weather. Rev. William Prentiss of Plainfield said grace.

In the afternoon W. B. Montgomery led the praise service. The clerk, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, of Jewett City, read the report of the May meeting and called the roll. There were 127 present, 13 from Hanover, 18 from Preston City, 10 from Lisbon, 9 from Jewett City Congregational church, 30 from Griswold, 23 from Plainfield and 25 from other churches.

The conference passed resolutions of thanks and appreciation to the pastor and members of the entertaining church. The conference also passed resolutions endorsing President Harding's plan for a world court, to organize and educate our people for peace, to take steps to minimize denominational differences.

It was voted that a book be purchased to replace the lost record book and that Rev. H. T. Arnold of Norwich be chairman of a committee of three—two besides himself—to write up the old records. The collection was received by Mrs. W. B. Montgomery and Miss Margery Brewster, Rev. Robert Humphrey offered to give a record book which he owned to the conference, to be used for the writing of the old records. His offer was accepted with a vote of thanks. A male quartet—Albert Reynolds, W. B. Montgomery, Harold Geer and Eno Karjala—sang Foes or Friends.

The afternoon address was by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts of Greeneville Congregational church. It was a stirring patriotic address, replete with much serious food for thought. He reviewed the several wars of this country, all with the thought prominent in the foreground of the unity of patriotism on the part of the men. He said their characters should not be analyzed, they should be honored as soldiers. But his trend of thought was can we rely altogether upon the patriotism of the past? Ought we not move heaven and earth to preserve what sacrifice has saved? Certain practices in this country are un-American and unpatriotic. They tend to disunity. America is menaced by class selfishness. People who live and move and have their being to themselves alone, no matter what happens to others, are tending toward disunity in the United States. The whipping post for convicts is a move backward toward the blackness of past ages. The movement against any man's freedom of speech, religious belief, is absolutely against the constitution of the United States. Any person has a right to their religious belief, and a third party has no right to interfere. We should see to it that no canker-worm eats the heart of our people. For it is only by purity of purpose that the government shall be of the people, for the people and by the people.

Hearty applause was given Mr. Ricketts at the close of the address. In spite of the hot weather and occasional thunder showers, it was a splendid conference.

WILL TRY CIVIL SUIT BEFORE CRIMINAL CASE

In the criminal common pleas court here late Wednesday afternoon, Prosecuting Attorney C. B. Whittlesey moved a continuance in the case against Alex Lepato of this city, accused of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He stated to the court that this was a case in which the machine of Lepato had been in collision at Taftville on Oct. 28 with a machine driven by John Keegan of this city and it was desired to continue the criminal case in order that civil case might be tried first.

Judge Waller directed that the case be continued.

Witnesses for the state who have reported at the court room for three days were paid off for their attendance.

S. N. E. TELEPHONE CO. TO INCREASE CAPITAL STOCK

Stockholders of the Southern New England Telephone Company are to meet at the offices of the company to accept the legislative amendment to the company's charter increasing the authorized capital stock from $20,000,000 to $40,000,000; to act on the proposal to increase the capital stock of the company from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 and also to give the directors authority to issue such stock when and in such manner as they deem advisable.

The notices of this special meeting and its purposes contain an explanatory note signed by President James T. Moran which follows:

"The board of directors will probably, in the fall of this year, offer $3,000,000 of stock for subscription by the stockholders, payable in full on January 3, 1924, or in two installments, viz., not less than 50 per cent on January 3, 1924, and the balance on April 3, 1924."

The existing legislature authorized the telephone company to double its capital stock, that is from $20,000,000 to $40,000,000 but this authorized capital increase will not be issued in full for several years. Since the stockholders necessarily must approve the legislative charter amendment, they will be asked at the same meeting to grant the board of directors the right to issue $10,000,000 of new stock or one-half the amount authoized by the general assembly.

President Moran's brief statement shows that of the $10,000,000 capital increase which the stockholders probably will give the board of directors the right to issue only a small part actually will be issued at this time.

The present authorized capital of the company is $20,000,000 of which $18,000,000 has been issued. With an issue in the fall of $3,000,000 additional, the outstanding capital stock will total $21,000,000 and, therefore, will include only $1,000,000 of the $20,000,000 increase allowed by legislative act.

Each new issue of Southern New England for several past issues has been $3,000,000 and that amount to be issued this fall will give stockholders the right to subscribe for one new share for each six shares held.

President Moran stated that the proceeds of the forthcoming $3,000,000 issue will be used to pay off loans negotiated in the past two years to finance substantial additions to the company's plant and equipment.

NORWICH LED COUNTY IN INCOME TAX RETURNS

The city of Norwich filed 2,564 individual income tax returns for the calendar year of 1921, according to the information made public Wednesday by the internal revenue bureau.

New London filed 2,431 returns, Putnam 28, Shelton 620, and Southington 516.

New London county filed 7,883 returns, standing fourth with its total, in the state.

The average net income per return in Connecticut was $2,783 in 1921. This compares with $2,965 for Massachusetts and with $3,048 for Connecticut in 1920, and $3,151 in 1919.

The average tax per return in Connecticut was $86.26. It compares with $106 for Connecticut in 1920 and with $152 in 1919.

Connecticut paid $10,643,045 or 1.48 per cent. of the total tax. Only 11 other states paid more.

The per capita tax in the state was $7.70. This was exceeded in nine states, New York having a figure of $20.29, while the record for the Bay state was $13.08.

The per capita net income reported was $248.44. Ten other states boasted higher figures than this.

Of the state's total population 8.93 per cent filed returns. Only seven other states beat this percentage.

STONINGTON CLOCK GOING ON DAYLIGHT TIME

Stonington, Conn., June 6. — The clock on the community building here, which was stopped Monday and a piece of crepe fastened on its hands, was started again today and the time it recorded was daylight saving time. The committee in charge of the clock, which was purchased by public subscription, decided to start the time piece again after consulting with lawyers.

The committee had the clock stopped because of the state law recently enacted which forbids the showing of any but standard time on public clocks. The committee now believes that loop-hole exists for the local clock. The law refers to clocks "in or on any public building, or on any street, avenue or public highway." The committee contends that the community building is not a public building and that it is not on a street or public highway, as it sets 150 feet back from the road.

The council called for the purpose in February did not meet, as reported in the papers, but was postponed because of the impassable condition of the roads at that time.

Men's Bible Study at Y. M. C. A.

Notwithstanding the extreme heat of Wednesday a good number of young men spent an evening hour in Bible study at the local Y. M. C. A. The Scripture used was 1st Thessalonians the 5th chapter, especially the verse "avoid even the appearance of evil." The topics discussed included "The Christian's attitude to the Sabbath," to the foreigner, to dancing and smoking and to his enemies. The men entered freely into the discussion and the general opinion was that the Christian man, in order to be consistent should do nothing on the Sabbath upon which he could not sincerely ask the blessing of God; that even though many of the people who come to us from foreign lands are unattractive to us, nevertheless we can do no other than to exemplify to them the spirit of the "Golden Rule," for Jesus, whom the Christian pretends to follow is no respector of persons. Regarding the matter of dancing, the majority expressed themselves as feeling that on the whole mixed dancing is not conducive to spiritual development, while the matter of smoking came in for considerable discussion, it being the opinion of the group that the world would be better off if no one used tobacco. All the men felt that the command to "love our enemies" is perhaps the most difficult to live up to, but that it should always be the ideal for every man who professes to follow the leadership of Jesus Christ.

The matter of adjourning the Bible study class for the summer was discussed at length and every man present expressed the wish for its continuance at lease till July 1.

FRANCE DECLARES GERMAN REPARATIONS PROPOSAL IS ENTIRELY UNACCEPTABLE

Says Passive Resistance in the Ruhr Must be Abandoned Before Any Negotiations Begin—Another Objectionable Feature is That Germany Offers No Definite Sum as the Total Reparations—France Willing to Join in a Collective Answer, But the Terms Must Agree With the French Views.

Paris, June 7 (By the A. P.)—The German reparations offer elaborated in the note delivered to the entente allies today remains entirely unacceptable to France, it was declared in government circles tonight. It makes no appreciable advance over the previous offers, and France cannot even discuss it with Germany, for, as was decided at Brussels yesterday, the passive resistance in the Ruhr must be abandoned before any negotiations can begin.

The note was characterized as unsatisfactory for four main reasons:

First, because it makes no mention of abandoning the passive resistance, which is the first of the Franco-Belgian conditions.

Second, Germany offers no definite sum as the total reparations.

Third, in suggesting an impartial international commission to fix the reparation total, Germany ignores and seeks to violate the Versailles treaty, which created the reparation commission for exactly that purpose. The French see no reason why the reparation commission should be supplanted.

Fourth, the suggestions for guarantees might be open to discussion if Germany proposed their administration by the allies, but if the Germans administer the guarantees the French would expect no satisfactory result.

The French are still unconvinced, they say, when Germany pleads inability to pay. They declare they have seen her living sumptuously and that they know she can meet her obligations.

The question of how the German note is to be answered, it is said in official circles, depends upon the other allies. France would be glad to join in a collective answer, but the terms must agree with the French views.

The Germans were careful not to ignore the reparation commission, and delivered a copy of the note to the commission today as they did when the main proposals were made early last month.

NEW REPARATIONS OFFER MADE BY GERMANY

Berlin, June 7 (By the A. P.)—Germany's amendatory reparations note, which was handed to the entente and United States governments this afternoon, proposes a system of annuities, estimated to total 1,200 million marks annually, if an international loan is not available for immediate capital payments. The document is brief and wholly devoted to elucidation of the mooted points on which the creditor nations had requested amplifying statements.

It makes no mention of the political situation, the Ruhr occupation or the question of abandoning the passive resistance and indulges in no recriminations.

Neither does it refer to the conditions under which Germany is prepared to carry out the payment of the annuities.

The memorandum reaffirms Germany's good will and desire to meet her reparation obligations, and asserts the conviction that the entire problem should be submitted to an impartial inquiry, the verdict of which, it declares, would be accepted by the German government.

As a guarantee for the annuities, the German government pledges the federal railway system, which would be capitalized at ten billion marks, yielding an annual bonded interest of 500 million marks.

A further ten billion marks would be guaranteed by a gold five per cent mortgage, security for which would be furnished in physical holdings of industry, agriculture and shipping and the gold obligations assumed by banking and commercial interests and private real estate. This levy, it is estimated, would also yield 500 million gold marks.

The additional 200 million of the annuity total would be raised by increased customs duties on articles of luxury and the creation of a government monopoly in tobacco and spirits.

The annuities would become effective in 1927, and their number and amount would depend wholly on the degree of Germany's economic industry. The memorandum declares an inevitable requisite to a practical solution of the reparation problem is the early convocation of a general conference to which Germany would be admitted on an equal basis.

GERMAN MEMORANDUM WAR REPLY TO ALLIES

Berlin, June 7 (By the A. P.)—It was semi-officially explained tonight that in the memorandum handed to the entente governments today the German government confined itself to replying to those points raised in common by all the entente powers in their replies to the German note.

It was also stated that necessary preparations for giving legislative effect to the proposals contained in today's memorandum relating to the demands upon the whole of Germany's domestic economy have been proceeding for some time past.

HOW BELGIUM VIEWS THE NEW REPARATIONS OFFER

Brussels, June 7 (By the A. P.)—The German note embodying the latest amended proposals of that country for the settlement of reparations is couched in terms "much less arrogant" than heretofore, in the view of the ministry of foreign affairs, by recognizing the obligation to pay reparations the note has created a much more favorable impression than the previous proposals from Chancellor Cuno, because for the first time in the history of the post-Armistice negotiations Germany accepts allied financial control and offers positive guarantees.

But on the other hand, Germany's insistence that an international economic conference be called to examine the question of reparations as an entirety is unacceptable to Belgian circles, as Germany is well aware that abandonment of passive resistance in the Ruhr is the fundamental principle of a basis for negotiations.

Germany's willingness to present all documents and information necessary toward an exact appreciation of her payment capacity and her readiness to accept allied supervision over state finances meets squarely the most important clause of the Theunis plan, which was presented at the Brussels conference yesterday. This, according to Belgian semi-official information, is regarded as a very considerable step forward.

The guarantees proposed by the note will be minutely examined by the Belgian experts and used as a basis in the exchange of ideas between Brussels and Paris as to what reply should be made to Germany. Brussels on the whole has received the German note in a spirit of conciliation, but what seems an insurmountable obstacle to an immediate settlement lies in the omission of German preparedness to abandon passive resistance in the Ruhr.

101 ALIEN CHINESE TAKEN INTO CUSTODY IN NEW YORK

New York, June 7—Police of the bomb squad and 20 immigration inspectors of the Chinese department today arrested 101 Chinese, charged with being illegally in the United States, in a series of raids in Long Island city factories. The raids followed a complaint of the American legion of queens that coolie labor was being used in the factories, to the exclusion of war veterans.

The men, whose ages ranged from 18 to 50 years, were taken down Greenpoint avenue to a dock, where they were put on an immigration department lighter to Ellis Island, where proceedings were started for their deportation.

According to the Chinese department officials, the Chinese are a part of 5,000 members of that nation who are smuggled yearly into the country. The inspectors declared that it is the custom of these men to take berths on ships sailing to American ports, and to desert on their arrival. They are sheltered here, when reported as missing from the ship, in boarding houses which make a specialty of concealing similar fugitives. Almost all of these men became cheap factory hands, as were all those captured today, according to the inspectors.

RUSSIA ENCOURAGED BY VISITS OF AMERICANS

Moscow, June 7—(By the A. P.)—The presence here of Irving T. Bush of New York, representative Carroll L. Beedy of Maine and Representative Ross A. Collins of Mississippi, together with the expected arrival of Senator Brookhart of Iowa and othermembers of the American congress, is greeted by the Russian press as an indication that American interest in Russia is growing.

Coming at a time when the soviet relations with the British are critical, these American arrivals are treated optimistically, although in conversations with the correspondent the distinguished visitors mentioned have all agreed they were merely here in a private capacity.

The same is true of the "French commercial mission" now in Moscow. This consists of private business men who say they have no official connections, although the French government was aware of their intention to visit Russia.

"We do not entertain any immediate hope of an official French mission following us," said M. Duberger, a member of the Paris Bourse.

STATE LICENSES OF 31 PHYSICIANS REVOKED

Hartford, June 7.—Thirty-one physicians licensed to practice medicine in Connecticut were requested today by the state health department to return the licenses issued to them on the ground that they are illegal. They will not be permitted to continue to practice in the state.

All of the doctors disqualified were illegally examined by the state eclectic medical exchange board, according to an opinion given by Attorney General Healy. Twenty-eight, including Dr. William Levy of this city, are listed on the health department records as graduates of colleges not on the approved list filed by the state eclectic board. The remaining three are graduates of colleges which were not on the approved list for the years when they finished their courses, according to the health department.

INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS ON MOVING PICTURES

New York, June 7.—Discontinuance of the filming of historical novels was urged on American motion picture producers by Julian Jacques Champenois, attached to the French Ministry of Public Education, in an address before the International Congress of Motion Pictures today.

Motion picture audiences abroad, and especially in France, were greatly irritated by the inaccuracies of many historical novels produced in the United States, he said. It is believed in many cases, he declared, that an attempt is being made by Americans to cartoon or ridicule the situations historically depicted.

M. Champenois said this situation had been specially true since the war which left in its wake a tendency to make slight international incidents seem great. It had been the source of a great deal of trouble and many unpleasant incidents, he added.

M. Champenois declared that historical novelists and playwrights with the exception of Sir Walter Scott and Prosper Merimee were "impdent mongreis."

"Many an historical crime," he complained, "has been committed in the name of local color. There is a great deal of accuracy in detail but the spirit of the productions is all wrong. Yet withal children, uneducated and half educated persons accept these stories as textually true, and the most dangerous fanatics are th epersons who believe utterly and are guided by what they read and by what they have seen on the scren."

The Rev. Father John B. Kelly, speaking for Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes, warned producers to beware of extremists in and out of the ranks. Those in the ranks, he said, had a tendency to economic as well as literary suicide.

After several speeches by moving picture producers and directors, telling what the companies hoped to do, Basil King, author, deemed to know whether the meeting had been called to benefit the authors who were trying to make more artistic movies or merely was a clever publicity stunt for producers.

"Is it worth while," he said, "for the author to have anything to do with the motion pictures at all?"

When two hundred odd writers present had stopped applauding Mr. King described his experience a sa scenario writer. He said he had worked for months on a scenario made from one of his novels which had enjoyed considerable success and gone over it with the directors and producer only to find when it was produced that it bore no resemblance to his story at all, except that his name was on it. And he was never paid, he said.

The question which aroused the most interest was:

Is literature being turned into an industry, or are movies being turned into art?

It was concluded by several speakers that in order to bring about the latter result authors and producers should work together in an effort to get stories which were adapted to filming, and then have the director follow authors' instructions.

Tomorrow's meeting will be devoted to a discussion of this subject, and an effort will be made to establish a working basis for both writers and producers. Irving Cobb will be toastmaster.

ROUNDING UP WOMEN OF UNDERWORLD IN CHICAGO

Chicago, June 7.—Laughing "bandit queens" were at a premium today as detectives started out to round up men and women of the underworld believed to know something of the slayins Tuesday night of Richard C. Tesmer, insurance adjuster. Tesmer, according to his wife, was shot by a woman bandit who, with a male companion, held up and robbed Mr. and Mrs. Tesmer as they entered their home. The woman, Mrs. Tesmer said, giggled as she pointed a pistol at Tesmer and laughed when she shot him.

Relying on Mrs. Tesmer's assertion that she would know the wide blue eyes and the smile of the woman killer anywhere, the police today brought before her a number of girls. Mrs. Tesmer was unable to identify any of them.

Tonight the police were hunting for seven women, among them the wife of "Hi Hi" Simons, an ex-convict, who is said to have a peculiar smilee.

New York, June 7.—Angered at the deduction of $23.28 from his wages for absence from work, James Camerford, a laborer for the bureau of weights and measures, today shot and seriously wounded Chief Inspector Albert Lutz of the bureau, in his private office in the municipal building.

Two shots were fired, one of which entered the body just below the heart. The other missed.

Clerks, in an outer office, upon hearing the shots, rushed in and held Comerford until the arrival of police. He was lodged in jail charged with felonious assault. He frankly admitted the shooting, police said.

NO BREAK IN DEADLOCK AT NEAR EAST CONFERENCE

Lausanne, June 7 (By the A. P.)—There was no sign visible today of a breaking of the deadlock at the Near East peace conference. The Turks, however, particularly the younger men, attached to their delegation, including the proprietors of Constantinople newspapers, some of whom are graduates of American universities, strongly favor an immediate peace, leaving the points in controversy for settlement at a later date.

The Greeks also are showing marked symptoms of nervousness and are urging the most rapid conclusion of peace possible so that the Greek army can be demobilized.

With Teller Missing, Run Made on Bank

Maynard, Mass., June 7.—The unexplained absence since Saturday of the teller of the bank and a rumor that there was a large shortage in his accounts led to a run on the Maynard Trust Company today. Throughout the day depositors, largely of foreign birth, crowded the banking room demanding their money, and the offices were kept open until six o'clock to accommodate these frightened customers.

President George H. Creighton of the Trust Company said that the incident was not serious. Investigation of the teller's accounts, he said, had revealed a possible shortage of $5,000, covered by bond. Deposits withdrawn today were estimated at about $75,000. The bank has savings deposits aggregating $700,000 and commercial deposits of $400,000.

The teller, John Garlick, who had been in the employ of the Maynard Trust Company for five years, last Saturday was given two weeks' notice of dismissal, officers said. He did not return to work Monday, and it became known that he had left town. He was located in Boston, according to the bank officials, and promised to come here at noon today for a conference, but failed to do so. In the meantime commercial depositors had been asked to verify their monthly statements, and the rumor spread that the bank was in difficulties. The run followed.

WITHDRAWALS SMALL IN COMPARISON WITH RESOURCES

Boston, June 5.—The office of the state commissioner of banks was notified today of a run on the Maynard Trust Company at Maynard by depositors of foreign birth, due to rumors of a shortage resulting from the unexplained absence of the bank teller. The incident was not regarded as serious, the cash withdrawals being small in comparison with the resources of the institution.

NO DIVORCE FOR COUPLE MARRIED IN "SPIRIT OF JEST"

Morgantown, W. Va., June 7.—Judge I. C. Lazelle today refused to divorce Jamison Meredith, a West Virginia University student and his wife, Anne Shakespeare Meredith, on the ground that they contracted the marriage in a "spirit of jest." The case will go to the supreme court.

"I am unable to believe," said Judge Lazzelle, "that a young man and a young woman of the education and Christian rearing of these two could have heard the ceremony read and participated in it with any spirit of fun or with any intention other than of becoming man and wife.

"There is no doubt in my mind that these two were in love, although I fear that this love has been turned to hate on at least one side and cannot be revived."

According to the testimony, Meredith, who is a son of Supreme Court Judge W. A. Meredith, of Fairmont, went on an automobile trip with a party of friends which included Miss Shkaespeare. They decided to get married, and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. John A. Vollenwieder of the Methodist Episcopal church. He testified there was no spirit of jest by either of the contracting parties.

PARENTS CLAIM BODY OF MAN FOUND IN HARBOR

New London, June 7.—The body of the man found floating in the Thames river last night was identified this morning as being that of George Davison, aged 23 years, of Eazor Manor lane, Waterford, identification being made by relatives of the young man after reading in The Bulletin the story of the body being found and the fact that the name "George Davison," was tatooed upon the victim's forearm. The victim was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Davison and besides his parents he is survived by several brothers and sisters.

How Davison came to meet his death it is not known, but it is presumed that he fell overboard during the night season and because of no one witnessing the victim's entry into the water, no report was made to the police.

Davison left his home about a month ago, but it is not believed that he went further than New London for he did not inform his parents or other members of his family that he intended to absent himself for any great length of time. When he did not return home his parents did not become alarmed, it being supposed that he had taken a sudden inspiration to go out of town, and the first knowledge they had of the drowning of the young man was when a copy of The Bulletin was shown them telling of the finding of the body.

The pageant, moving under a canopy of colored lights, was witnessed by President and Mrs. Harding, about whom much of the activity of the convention has centered.

Led by units representing various branches of the army, navy and marine corps, the pageant included thirty floats, 16 bands and sixty-four Shrine Temple patrols.

Masons of the Union army were shown carrying slain Confederate Masons through the lines for burial, and Admiral Peary, was depicted discovering the North Pole. Theodore Roosevelt also was represented, as were Albert Pike, soldier, sailor, author and father of the present ritualistic system of the Scottish Rite; Chief Justice Marshall and Lewis and Clarke.

The dancing which followed the pageant was intended to represent a "united country in step," the music was broadcast by radio throughout the continent and was carried to the thousands of participants through amplifiers along Pennsylvania avenue. Each block was set aside for a separate state, and the spectators along the line were invited to join the 140,000 registered Shriners and their visiting companions in the festival.

After the "Dance of the States," the homeward rush began, but the convention transportation committee avoided congestion and disorder with the aid of railroad experts.

Conrad V. Dykeman of Enchilya, the new imperial potentate, and his divan were inducted into office late today at the concluding business session.

SHRINERS HAVE HAD RUN OF THE WHITE HOUSE

Washington, June 7.—Accepting an "open house" invitation extended by the President and Mrs. Harding, nearly 20,000 Shriners and members of their families, here for the Shrine convention, visited the White House today, the largest number that ever called at the mansion in a single day during its history of more than 100 years.

White House attaches estimate that fully 50,000 persons have passed through the mansion since Monday when Mr. and Mrs. Harding ordered the door thrown open and the usual restrictions as to admission only by card removed. The visitors have roamed about the mansion at will, taking in everything from the long lower corridor to the state dining room. Only the private apartments of the president's household have been closed to them.

The visitors today became so numerous that the White House police had to devise a system of admitting them in groups of a thousand. Even then at times the line of those waiting extended away for several blocks under a broiling sun.

CLOSE OF CONVENTION OF CONNECTICUT F. OF L.

New Haven, June 7.—The thirty-eighth annual convention of the Connecticut Federation of Labor closed here today after a four-day session. The next convention will b eheld in Hartford.

Three projects suggested to the federation, a labor bank, a labor paper and a labor attorney, were referred to the executive committee, which will study them and report at the next convention. The afternoon session was given over almost entirely to a discussion of the proposed labor bank for the state, after vigorous debate resulted. The merits of such a bank were discussed for some time and it was decided to direct President Patrick F. O'Meara to appoint a special committee of five to investigate the question further.

James Martin, representing the striking shopmen of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, made an appeal for support by the federation. He declared that the strikers had lost only 6 per cent. of their number and that they were still in the fight. He also asked for help for needy strikers.

The committee on constitutional amendments made its report earlier in the day, recommending that the federation return to the custom of employing a paid secretary to care for its work.

YOUTHFUL BANK MESSENGER PROVED FALSE TO TRUST

New York, June 7—A roseate future, described by two strangers who supported their claims by acting as hosts at a hectic excursion and sumptuous dinner at Coney Island, proved too strong a temptation for James Foley, 18-year-old messenger for Charles Barney and company, brokerage house.

Arrested today charged with stealing $141,000 in bonds which re reported on Tuesday that he had lost, he declared that the night at Coney Island was all he had received from the strangers in return for the bonds. Accompanied by police, he toured the city today looking for the strangers to whom, he said, he had given the securities on their promise to dispose of them and split the proceeds.

Foley, police said, admitted that seven months ago he "lost" $8,000 in securities which he turned over to the two men. In payment, he said, they gave him $40, took him to Coney Island and told him he was a fool to work for a salary and promised to split with him proceeds of any securities he would give them.

Tuesday, he declared to the police, he met them again and was induced to hand over the bonds. He told his employers he had lost the securities, but a subsequent investigation disclosed facts which did not tally with his story.

CHILD KILLED WHEN TROLLEY CAR PLOWED THROUGH HOUSE

New York, June 7.—A runaway trolley car killed 13 year old Margaret McLaughlin and injured three other persons tonight when it dashed down the foot of a hill at 125th street and Amsterdam avenue and crashed into a five-story tenement house and lower floors of the building were wrecked.

The child was not a passenger in the car but was playing in the street when it struck her. Slipping, caused by a heavy rain, was said to have caused the accident.

The car was nearing the foot of the hill when it started to roll faster. At the bottom it struck a switch at the end of the grade it was derailed and crashed into the building while traveling at an hour. The car tore its way through the corner of the building and came to a stop on the sidewalk.

The McLaughlin girl evidently saw the rushing trolley but was helpless on the sidewalk and crushed to death by bricks from the tenement house.

All of the injured were passengers on the car. One passenger said that the motorman jumped to safety when it started on its downward flight. The motorman later told the police that the power failed and the brakes gave way when he attempted to stop the trolley.

Two passengers who jumped from the car when it started down hill were slightly injured, while a young girl who was in the basement of the building was struck by flying bricks. The proprietor of a hardware store in the tenement building also was injured.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

NORMA TALMADGE IS SCREEN BLACKMAILER IN "WITHIN THE LAW"

Sent to prison for a theft that another girl committed.

Initiated into a band of blackmailers working only "within the law."

Specialising in breach of promise suits.

Married to his son as a means of obtaining vengeance, but somehow this didn't work out as planned.

These are some of the dramatic and romantic things that happen to Norma Talmadge, as Mary Turner, in the screen version of "Within the Law," the First National picture directed by Frank Lloyd, which will be shown at the Bradbury Theatre starting Sunday. But Mary is a good girl at heart and everything, of course turns out well. It is said to be Norma Talmadge's biggest emotional role in motion pictures, and surrounding her is a cast of exceptional talent. Her leading man is Jack Mulhall, in the role of Dick Gilder, "victimized" son of Mary Turner's hated employer. Eileen Percy plays Aggie Lynch, the blackmailer, with whom Mary forms an acquaintance that sets her life on a new course. Lew Cody is seen as Joe Garson, forger, who sacrifices himself because of his love for Mary.

Other important parts are taken by such celebrities as DeWitt Jennings, Lincoln Plummer, Joseph Gilgour, Helen Ferguson, Wardo Crane, Lionel Belmore, Catherine Murphy and Thomas Meighan.

MUCH DAMAGE DONE BY LIGHTNING IN WILLIMANTIC

Willimantic, June 7.—Damage caused by Wednesday's electrical storm was severe and the bolts of lightning caused much harm in a number of ways in the towns surrounding Willimantic. Outside of cutting off the electric current of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company the city itself was practically immune from any damage. The various manufacturing concerns using electricity in the city were forced to suspend business for something like an hour and one-half while the current was off.

Only on one other occasion in the entire history of the Southern New England Telephone company was the service so badly affected in this city. Out of 3,000 telephones in the towns of Chaplin, Hampton, Mansfield and Coventry about 1,100 connections were put out of order.

The Norwich-Willimantic trolley car was put out of commission when it reached the top of Jillson Hill on Windham road at 3.25 o'clock in the afternoon. The lightning flash burned the wires out of the meters and Motorman John R. Fitzgerald received a slight shock. One woman fainted and remained unconscious for some time before being revived. An extra car was called to take the passengers along the trip.

One of a pair of horses owned by T. Frank Smith of the Back Road, Windham was struck by lightning and instantly killed. The large animal was thrown to the ground with such force that its head made an impression several inches deep in the ground. The other horse was unharmed. At the time of the accident Mr. Smith was engaged in doing repair work in Windham.

The home of Paul Lachappall on Trepelle road, off West Main street was struck by a bolt of lightning. The freakish flash made entrance into the building through the chimney and into the stove where it blew out the stove pipe and threw out a shower of soot which covered the kitchen and Mrs. Lachappelle and her baby, who were seated nearby. The bolt then bounded across the kitchen and into the sink where it disappeared down the drain pipe clogging the pipe with soot which it drew along. Some of the plastering was torn and the woodwork splintered in two adjoining rooms.

Two pedigreed cows on the H. F. Dimock farm on South street, South Coventry were killed by lightning. According to an eye witness, one of the cows ran wild after being struck and after twisting and turning it plunged headlong and died with its two horns stuck into the ground.

Considerable damage was done at the home of Edward Clock, South Windham where a lightning bolt ripped up the ceilings and walls in three of the rooms. Two women who were in the house were unharmed.

Damage to some extent was done at Storrs in a house owned by Homer V. Beebe and occupied by Henry S. Day, and a number of trees and telephone poles in that vicinity were reported as having been struck.

It was reported locally Thursday that a large barn owned by E. R. Jacobs of Pleasant Valley had been struck by lightning and destroyed by fire Wednesday but as all the telephone connections in that section were out of order, no authentic statement could be gotten in regard to the matter.

Popular Salesman Gives More Evidence [illegible] Tanlac

Fred E. Ross, 9711 Avenue D, Brooklyn, N. Y., popular salesman for the Eagle Roller Mills Co., has the following to say regarding his experience with the Tanlac treatment:

"I have taken Tanlac with such splendid results myself that I am glad to give the treatment my highest endorsement. At the time I began taking it I felt all out of sorts generally. My appetite was off, I was troubled with constipation, and tired so easily that my work was a physical effort.

"I was familiar with the merits of Tanlac through the experience of another person here in Brooklyn who had taken it, so I naturally turned to the medicine myself. As a result my appetite has become normal, constipation has ceased to bother me, I have plenty of strength and energy for my work and, all in all, feel one hundred per cent better. Tanlac is certainly great."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Take no substitute. Over 3 million bottles sold.

BREED THEATRE

In the new Rex Beach picture, "The Iron Trail" that will be seen at the Breed Theatre today and Saturday an exceptionally wide range of settings supplement the action of the play.

The exterior scenes run from ice-covered mountains, glaciers and snow-bound huts, through the thaw and the break of spring, to the same localities draped in foliage and bathed in warm sunshine.

The interior scenes show the rudeness of the shacks of the pioneer railroad workers, the crudeness of camp life, and the luxurious comforts of the wealthy men who back the workers with their money.

Actual railroad building through the wilderness and the feverish haste of the work that must be done in the short Alaskan summer, when manpower and efficiency are pitted against the elements, form stirring settings for the main action of the story.

The depth and range of the exterior scenes portraying the wilds of Alaska, furnish a comprehensive idea of this awe-inspiring part of the United States.

"The Iron Trail" is one of Rex Beach's strongest stories, and so produced under the direction of R. William Neill it is faithful in every detail to the spirit of Mr. Beach's writing.

The leading roles are portrayed by an all star cast that includes Wyndham Standing, Thurston Hall, Reginald Denny, Alma Tell, Betty Carpenter, Harlan Knight, Lee Beggs and Bert Starkey.

Pearl White will also be seen in "Plunder" and the Pathe News and a Sunshine comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

BROADWAY THEATRE

A very good variety of Keith Vaudeville was presented yesterday at the Broadway Theatre. Trella and Co. was easily the sensation of the bill. This trio closed with a cycling exhibition that included the loop the loop. Strad and Legate in a musical and singing offering opened the bill, following Harper and Clark who presented a variety of song, dance and comedy, was Prichard and Rock comedians. Mash and Marian filled fourth spot to advantage.

Dorothy Dalton's latest Paramount picture production of "Tog Bound", which delighted large audiences at the Broadway Theatre yesterday, is in every respect a capital picture. The scenes of the story are laid in Florida, and the heroine is the daughter of a revenue officer. The latter is slain in circumstances that point to the guilt of the girl's sweetheart but after many thrilling incidents, his innocence is established. David Powell gives an artistic portrayal opposite to Miss Dalton. The supporting company is highly capable. The picture is rare entertainment and well worth seeing.

"SLIPPY McGEE" ECLIPSES POPULARITY OF THE BOOK

"Slippy McGee," Marie Conway Oemler's delightfully human story that reached tenth edition popularity in book form, has been brought to the screen as a First National attraction by Oliver Morosco First produced by him as a highly successful stage play, Morosco found the quaintness of the people, the beauty of the Southern settings and the emotional conflicts even better adaptable to the screen.

"Slippy McGee," the feature at the Strand Theatre is particularly appealing to the changing moods of the day. It marks a departure from the atmosphere. Following closely the more familiar plots, treatments and Oemler story, "Slippy McGee" as a screen production is refreshingly free from the much-seen characters and situations.

It is an engaging drama revolving around a safe cracker—America's cleverest—and a priest, with a strong theme, leading to one of the most dramatic scenes which brings happiness to the girl of the story.

Wheeler Oakman is the "Slippy McGee" in his most noteworthy screen characterization, while Rose de Grasse contrasts the vigorous, impetuous, thrill-hungry stranger that fate has brought to him with a handy, unfailing faith and winning dignity. Colleen Moore is the Southern girl.

Round 6 of the Fighting Blood series was also shown and a News Weekly completed the program.

A poor man has to spend money to prove that he has a rich man does not.

ACADEMY TEAM WINS ITS SECOND VICTORY OF THE BASEBALL SEASON

In a loosely played game at the Academy campus yesterday afternoon the Norwich boys won their second victory of the season. After losing to the Academy seconds several weeks ago by the score of 6 to 2, the Lebanon boys again lost out in their tussle with the locals to the tune of 11 to 3. Every member of the Academy squad was given a chance to show what he could do, a fact which is probably the reason for the low score.

Starting off with a rush in the first inning, the locals secured three runs on a base on balls, errors by Valleau and Kashok and a double by Kilroy. Although they failed to hit Standish, the Lyman twirler, nevertheless the Academy boys took advantage of their opponents' errors and pulled off some fine base stealing. The other big inning for the locals was the seventh, in which they scored four runs on errors by Tashmann and McGrath, two bases on balls and a single by Segal.

Lyman's big inning was the sixth, in which they scored twice on an error by Fellows, a base on balls and a double by McGrath.

Among the features was the pitching of Segal. In the five innings he pitched only one hit was registered against him, and there was a doubt in the minds of some who saw the game as to whether or not this was an error or hit. Segal also hit well, getting a double and single in four times at bat.

MILLER'S HITTING TAKES SERIES FROM GIANTS

Chicago, June 7—Hack Miller, the strong man, was the hero of a hard fought nip and tuck game today, in which Chicago emerged victor over New York 9 to 7, and won the series from the world's champions, two games to one.

Miller's home run smash in the seventh after the lead had alternated, and his double in the eighth sent two runners home with the deciding runs.

YALE FRESHIES MAKE THEIR CONFESSIONS

New Haven, June 7.—The threatened cancellation of the Yale-Harvard freshman crew race at New London June 22, as a result of the riotous disturbance here Monday night, has been practically averted, it was learned tonight.

The freshmen response to the demand by the college authorities that they confess their individual share in the outbreak which called out 50 policemen was almost unanimous today and, although the class has until 4 o'clock tomorrow to report its derelictions, already 739 of the 839 members have "fessed up," and they were still straggling in tonight.

With the posting this morning of the notice by the freshman rules committee that the freshman crew would be recalled from Gales Ferry Saturday in the event of the failure of members of the class to tell of their participation in the outbreak, a steady stream of confessions made its way into the office of the freshman registrar, Joseph Ellis. The office was open two extra hours tonight and the freshmen kept coming in to tell their stories and to "take their medicine."

While Registrar Ellis would not discuss officially the question of the cancellation of the race, he declared that the response of the freshmen had been "splendid and gratifying."

The "confessions" made by the freshmen do not cancel official punishment and it is expected that a series of penalties will be inflicted on them next year, when they return to college, disqualification in athletics being the most probable one.

REDS MAKE CLEAN SWEEP OF BOSTON SERIES

Cincinnati, June 7—The Reds made a clean sweep of the Boston series by winning the final game today, 3 to 1, after a fast and well played struggle. Rixey held the Braves to one run, earned on two hits, a stolen base and a sacrifice fly in the eighth inning. Oeschger allowed ten hits and gave five bases on balls but was tight in the pinches and was assisted by four double plays which kept down the score of the Reds. Ford starred at second base for the visitors while Pinelli and Caveney made sensational plays in the Red infield. The score:

DEMPSEY INCREASES HIS TRAINING

Great Falls, Mont., June 7.—Nearly 15 miles were covered in the workout run taken by Jack Dempsey and his sparring partners today. Dempsey is gradually increasing his punch. The increase is accounting for the departure of several sparring partners who blossomed for a day, the latest being Rocko Stramalgia, of Chicago, 175 pounder, who butted the champion and opened a small cut over Dempsey's left eye. Stramalgia received a number of jolts which sent him to the mat and at the end of three rounds he was assisted from the ring.

Billy Wells, English welterweight, went two fast rounds with the champion. They traded blows, foot to foot, furiously and the Englishman was badly bumped with a couple of short jabs and he went weaving from the ring.

Tommy Gibbons, challenger of Dempsey, is located with his family in Shelby and will begin training tomorrow. This morning Gibbons took a long walk and stated he was pleased with his quarters and also with his prospects of annexing the heavyweight championship title, according to word from Shelby.

YALE OARSMEN HAVE AN EASY WORKOUT

Gales Ferry, June 7.—Despite the threatened cancellation of the Yale-Harvard freshman crew race in the regatta June 22, because of the disturbance in New Haven caused by the freshman class Monday night, the Yale freshman crew in training here went through its regular practice today in the confident hope that the race will take place.

The junior varsity went downstream to the three mile mark at a leisurely pace and returned without increasing the stroke, the combination crew going over the same course. The varsity went to the naval base and on its return picked up the freshman crew, which went to the four mile mark. Both crews rowed back at a moderate stroke, the freshmen increasing it enough at the finish to nose out the varsity.

CRIMSON CREWS HAVE A LIGHT DRILL

Red Top, June 7.—The four Harvard crews in training here had light workouts this afternoon, the driving rain interfering somewhat with practice. Coach Muller took Henry's place at No. 7 on the varsity and later Stroke Brown's on the junior varsity for a short time. He supervised a series of racing starts at the end of the afternoon's practice. Coach Haines took the freshman crew to the two mile mark and back.

In the morning practice the varsity went to the submarine base and back, Coach Muller trying out several positions. The freshman crew covered four miles, while the combination and junior varsity worked with Coach Muller for an hour.

ANOTHER YALE TENNIS STAR IS ELIMINATED

New Haven, June 7.—C. C. Hubbell, captain of last year's freshman tennis team at Yale, was eliminated today in the fourth round of the singles play in the state tennis championship tournament being held here this week on the courts of the Lawn club. Several of the afternoon matches were marred by a heavy rain.

As the result of play today Percy L. Knyaston, Rockville Center, N. Y., and A. H. Chapin, Jr., Springfield, will be the semi-finalists in the upper half of the singles draw, while G. M. Wheeler, Yale, and the winner of the Hall-Morse match tomorrow will be semi-finalists in the lower half.

NEW YORK WOMEN WIN OVER BOSTON

Philadelphia, June 7.—New York's contingent of women golf players today captured ten of the fifteen matches from Boston's representatives, thereby gaining a big advantage in the intercity competition for the Griscom cup. The Boston team will have an opportunity to redeem itself tomorrow when it lines up against Philadelphia. On Saturday New York will play Philadelphia in the final round.

WALKER MAY BE BARRED BY BOXING COMMISSIONERS IN OTHER STATES

Trenton, N. J., June 7—Boxing authorities in three other eastern states—New Jersey, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania—may uphold the action of the New York state athletic commission yesterday in declaring forfeited the title of Mickey Walker, welterweight champion, as well as reach an accord in other boxing issues.

This was indicated today by an announcement by Newton A. H. Bugbee, state comptroller and head of the New Jersey boxing commission, that ring officials of these four states would confer within a week or two on general boxing policies. Walker's status, he said, in New Jersey would depend largely upon the result of the conference.

Walker, whose residence is at Elizabeth, N. J., was indefinitely suspended by the New York authorities for failure to accept a challenge for a title match from Dave Shade, of California, within six months. The championship was declared forfeited to Shade under the rules of the New York commission.

New Jersey has no rule requiring champions to defend their title within a specified time, but Commissioner Bugbee declared he favored the principle involved.

AMERICAN GOLFERS BEATEN BY BRITISH COUPLE

Ayr, Scotland, June 7—(By the A. P.)—George Duncan and Abe Mitchell, the British professionals, today defeated Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen, Americans, 4 up and 3 to play, in a four-ball foursome on the Western Gailes course, which is adjacent to the scene of next week's open championships at Troon. The course is a stiff one and straight hitting is necessary. All the players were strangers to the course and frequently wandered off the fairways.

The struggle resolved itself into a pitching and putting contest. The Americans were one up in the forenoon after thirteen holes had been halved. The scores of the first round were Hagen and Sarazen 70, Duncan and Mitchell 71.

In the afternoon round Hagen was frequently off the line and had a hard time with the bunkers, and Sarazen had to play a lone hand with Duncan and Mitchell. Mitchell made two great yard putts and was driving exceptionally throughout. The scores for the fifteen holes in the afternoon were Duncan and Mitchell 54, Hagen and Sarazen 59. The prize was $150.

Experts on the course were impressed by Sarazen's style, and think that he is a greater danger so far as concerns taking the title back to the United States than Hagen.

TO MAKE TEST CASE OF RECENT CHICAGO BOUT

Chicago, June 7—Contending that the Illinois anti-prize fight law penalized promoters and witnesses of boxing matches but not the fighters, James Mullen, promoter of the recent Bennie Leonard-Pinkie Mitchell contest, which Leonard won on a technical knockout which was followed by a riotous demonstration by adherents of the fighters, declared today he was willing to pay a fine and go to a cell to prove that the law was unconstitutional.

Municipal Judge Barasa said he agreed with Mullen and continued the case until June 12 when he indicted he would find Mullen and John Callahan, a spectator at the bout, who also was arrested as a part of the test case, guilty after which the defendants could take appeal to the state supreme court for a ruling on the constitutionality of the law.

REIGER WILL PITCH FOR NORWICH TEAM

Freddie Reiger of New London, ex-Eastern leaguer, will oppose the West End team of Bridgeport here on Sunday. Reiger was not forced to extend himself Memorial day against the Rosebuds, but this week he will be up against a faster team and a team that will have a first class pitcher from the Bridgeport Eastern league club. Manager O'Leary will also have Davis, the Sub Base pitcher who beat Georgetown, in reserve for the game.

Joe Belair will do the catching and the remainder of the team will be Hart at first, Massey at second, Nap Liberty at third, "Shorty" Faulkner at short, Johnny Reiger left field, Edgar center field, and Jack Clabby right. This team should be able to stack up well against anything that Bridgeport can produce.

MRS. MALLORY AGAIN WINS FROM OPPONENT

Stamford, England, June 7.—In the third round of the open tennis tournament here today, Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, American woman tennis champion, defeated Miss Wilkinson, Great Britain, 7-5, 6-2., and in the fourth round defeated Miss Rodocanachi, Great Britain, 6-1, 6-0.

In the second round of the doubles Mrs. Shepherd Barron and Mrs. Covell defeated Mrs. Mallory and Mrs. Hale, 6-3, 6-2.

RICKARD COMPLETES CARD FOR FIRPO-WILLARD GO

New York, June 7—Tex Rickard today completed the card for the heavyweight boxing show at Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City, on the night of July 12, when Luis Angel Firpo, of the Argentine, and Jess Willard, former champion, will meet in a 12-round match to determine a challenger for the title held by Jack Dempsey.

Floyd Johnson, of Des Moines and Jack McAuliffe, II, of Detroit—the men conquered by Willard and Firpo in the heavyweight carnival at the Yankee stadium for the benefit of the milk fund several weks ago—have been matched in the 12-round semi-final contest.

Two eight round encounters have been arranged, the first between Jim Herman, of Omaha, and Cliff Kramer, of the Pacific coast, and the other between Young Bob Fitzsimmons, of Newark, N. J., and Tom Roper, of Chicago.

ALUMNI OFFER PRIZES FOR PUNTING ABILITY

New Haven, June 7.—In the hope of developing punting ability among Yale football men, it was announced last night by the class of 1904 that two prizes will be given annually by it to the men on the football squad who show the greatest improvement in punting ability within any year. The prizes will be known as the "Ledyard Mitchell prizes," and will be awarded through the Yale football association. They will be given this year on the basis of actual performance.

The purpose of the prizes is to "develop a more general interest and proficiency among Yale students in the art of punting and particularly to emphasize the determination for self-improvement that was exemplified in Ledyard Mitchell's extraordinary punting ability."

RAY TO MAKE EFFORT TO BREAK RECORD

Cambridge, Mass., June 7—Final arrangements for the race against the world's record for the mile on Saturday at the Harvard stadium when Jole Ray has promised to make his superlative effort were completed today. Four mile specialists will attempt to set a pace which will enable the Illinois speedster to break the record of 4 minutes, 12 3-5 seconds, established on the same track in 1915 by Norman S. Taber.

Ray will run from scratch while Patrick Kennedy of Yonkers, N. Y., will start from the 35 yard mark. The other competitors and their handicaps follow:

SHELBY CLOSES DOWN THE LID TIGHT

Helena, Mont., June 7.—"Shelby has been closed up tight," Sheriff H. E. Benjamin of Toole county advised Attorney General W. D. Rankin by telephone this afternoon. The sheriff stated that a raid began last night at 10 o'clock and continued until noon today. A number of arrests were made, he said, and men without visible means of support and undesirable women were told to leave town within 24 hours.

CROSSING THE STREET.

To the very same extent that the increasing number of automobiles are adding to the dangers of the highways they are making it more and more necessary for those who are obliged to cross the street to take added precautions.

However easy it may have been in days past to dodge the horse-drawn vehicles or to force the drivers of such to avoid the pedestrian such days are apparently gone forever. Along the streets today there are great lines of autos. He who steps out into the street from between such cars in his desire to cross the street invites an injury unless he stops, looks and listens before plunging across.

While there may never have been a time when safety could be disregarded, the need of self protection is greater than ever today. Whether it is the adult or the child that attempts to cross the street there are conditions beyond their control that need to be taken into consideration. It is most unwise to undertake to disregard the danger and foolhardy to defy the motor traffic. Conditions are not what they were and they will become less so as time goes on. However much one may insist upon respect for the individual's rights nothing is gained by inviting a shaking up, a broken leg or a fractured skull when a little foresight and a bit of care properly exercised will prevent it.

The same care that should govern the operation of automobiles should be the guide for the pedestrian. Take your bearings, watch your step and proceed with caution. Enough accidents are bound to happen without running into them heedlessly. Those afoot may not like the way they are treated by those in motor cars but that doesn't justify them in disregarding their own welfare. Neither does it impose all the responsibility upon the pedestrian. It is becoming more and more evident that each must look out for the other and place a higher regard upon safety than upon speed.

THE NEGRO MIGRATION.

A problem that has possibilities of increasing before it decreases is that which surrounds the migration of the Negroes of the south in large numbers to the north. The demand for labor has been responsible for the change in many instances, while the ravages of the boll weevil and other conditions in the south have made it easier to draw the Negroes away.

The climatic and agricultural conditions in the south clearly show it to be the place for the colored people, and especially those who have become so closely identified with it. There have been other times when such southern labor has been attracted into the north, but it means a radical change of conditions and invariably a radical change in employment which few of them are disposed to accept. Coming from agricultural regions it is evident that their place is not in the cities. There they fail to meet requirements and become a burden, and too often it is the case that there is no employment for them in their line and no facilities for taking care of such an element, either as to housing or employment.

On the other hand this migration is taking labor away from the very points where it is needed and where that particular labor can give the best account of itself. Many who have moved into the Carolinas from the far south are not required and have become stranded, while the agricultural activities of the far south have been seriously affected.

That the boll weevil has caused discouragement in cotton growing in some sections ought not to mean the abandonment of all agricultural effort. The south as a matter of fact should not be dependent upon one crop. There is no good reason why it should not devote its efforts to producing a greater amount of the foodstuffs it consumes, and certainly the agricultural opportunities of the south are not what can be considered as overdeveloped.

IMMIGRATION LAW CHANGES.

The immigration problem is one that is bound to get much agitation. There are angles from which it is possible to see how much improvement might be made in the existing restrictive laws, and there are others from which it is not difficult to argue for a lifting of the present restrictions and make a reasonable plea. What the result will be no one can tell, but it is evident that the matter of immigration is certain to receive attention for some time.

Laws are put into operation many times without taking into consideration the many curious possibilities developing from strict application. It comes frequently where marked changes are brought about; and it is most surprising that it should show up in connection with the admission of newcomers. From the study which he has made of the present situation Immigration Commissioner Tod advocates the abolition of the arbitrary rule which forces the quota decisions to be based upon the place of birth of the applicants. He would give larger discretionary powers to the officials at the ports of entry and he sees the need of coordinating the work of the bureaus dealing with immigrants at home and abroad.

These are recommendations that come from experience in putting the law into effect. They must of course be added to the numerous other ones which have been urged from time to time, such as the selection of the fit before departure from the other side instead of waiting until they get here, the increasing or decreasing of the percentage of admissions and the changing of basis of admission from the census figures of 1910 to 1890 that a larger proportion of the more easily assimilated nationals may be admitted.

The attitude relative to immigration depends to a large extent upon industrial and employment conditions in this country, and such is bound to be an important factor in advocating or making any change that will result in lifting the bars or putting them up still higher.

UNDER THE SEARCHLIGHT.

When it comes to turning still more light upon the report of the mayor of Detroit to the effect that the operation of the municipal street railway in that city would show $1,000,000 profit for the first year a better understanding of such a claim and a better knowledge of conditions there is obtained. It makes a big difference whether all the obligations of the street railway as operated by the city are taken under consideration or ignored.

Under the charter by which the city took over the car lines of Detroit it is provided that the rate of fare should be sufficient to pay among other things the "operating and maintenance expenses including paving and watering between the tracks."

Investigation shows that there has been little paving done and it is the estimate of engineers that if such work was carried out as the road is obliged to do it would mean an expenditure of from six to eight million dollars. Also in the keeping of its accounts the municipal road has made no allowance for depreciation. Had this been done and five per cent allowed on its valuation of more than $40,000,000 that item of $2,000,000 would be completely wiped out in that instance alone, while consideration is not given to the loss in taxes which the city has experienced under municipal operation.

Detroit has had the benefit of a five cent fare, but if it had kept its books as other corporations do and met its charter obligations it would be showing a substantial sum on the wrong instead of the right side of the ledger. Detroit may be willing to accept such a report as that given and it may be satisfied to have a five-cent fare and make up the difference in taxation, but it doesn't necessarily follow that unusual efficiency has been accomplished in the operation of that municipal line the first year just because the report proclaimed a two million dollar profit.

WORKING FOR HUMANITY.

The work of the Rockefeller Foundation during the past year is one that cannot fail to interest all those who are concerned with humanitarian efforts throughout the world. Within the past few years this and other countries have been called upon to give aid in larger volume and different ways than under normal times. In this the Rockefeller Foundation has played its part, but it has also maintained the various other activities in which it has been engaged for a number of years and in which it has made remarkable progress.

There isn't anything of much greater importance than health and it is in the work for the conquering of disease that magnificent results have been and continue to be made by the agencies of the Foundation.

When we stop to think of the great relief that has been obtained by the successful fight against yellow fever, the helpful steps that have been taken for the control of the hookworm disease in this and other countries and the control that is being established over malaria at a low cost in some of the countries where it has had serious effects there cannot fail to be appreciation of the service rendered.

It is not only in the results gained, but in that initiative which set out to correct these deplorable conditions and which has worked in cooperation with the various governments, that due credit must be given. Such a world wide campaign means a lasting benefit of which it is impossible to make any measure. It has tackled a hard, tough job but with determination and gratifying results.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Now of course we hear the interesting stories as to how the election result happened.

As fond as some people are of roses they fail to show it any more conspicuously than do the bugs.

The man on the corner says: We are rapidly approaching that vacation weather so longingly anticipated last winter.

The German mark continues to fall. But how much farther can it go before it reaches that point where there is no chance to fall?

One New Yorker boasts that he is going to make $10,000,000 before the end of the year in Wall street. Have a care that you do not help to swell his pickings.

Sir Conan Doyle has a message from Lord Northcliffe's spirit predicting a great catastophe. Can it be possible that the rest of the world is going in for prohibition?

Somehow the German marks do not have the same attractions that they did directly after the war and yet there's one case where there's been no increase in price.

TOO MUCH KINDNESS

"I have a book here that you may enjoy reading," said the out-of-town customer. "Somebody gave it to me just as I was starting away from the office, thinking I'd like to read on the train."

"Thanks," said Wilkinson drily. "So many people give away the books they are particularly fond of."

"I had to change cars a lot of times," explained the out-of-town customer, taking a cigar from the box on the desk. "And the first time was at a dinky little village out on the prairie. I had finished the story, so I left it on the seat and was waiting on the siding for my other train when the conductor came tearing along after me with that book in his hand, saying that I had forgotten it. Of course I was delighted to see it and thanked him profusely, presenting him with a good tip in addition."

"Funny how delight a person is to do you a favor you don't want a bit," said Wilkinson.

"After I got in the other train," the out-of-town customer went on, "I waited my chance and threw that book out of the window just as we were starting up. I thought I was perfectly safe, but I wasn't. It seems that the porter was standing close to the car and caught the book as it dropped and the next thing I knew he came in and presented it. He said it had fallen out of the window. Of course that meant another tip."

"Getting to be a rather expensive hook," said Wilkinson, amused. "I am flattered that you are willing to lend it to me."

"You ought to be," growled the out-of-town customer. "But that isn't all, by a long shot. The next place I left it was in a way station and I thought I was relieved of it then for good and all. It was a small place and I knew there wasn't a porter anywhere about to run after me with it. I was feeling quite cheerful as I sat in the train waiting to pull out, but I looked out of the window and saw a little boy holding the book up to me and I had to take it. His mother had found it in the depot and she had sent him after me because the telegrapher had seen me reading it. Of course the kid didn't require a big tip, but he was pleased with some money for candy, you may be sure."

"They'll always take it," laughed Wilkinson. "If their mothers don't see you give it or get it first. I had a cruel parent who wouldn't let me take pay for errands and things, so I have never become a millionaire."

"Well, this kid may be one," said the out-of-town customer, "for I had the impression that he had expected more! Anyhow, there was the book and I was beginning to hate the sight of it. In the next town I walked down to the river and threw it into the water, strolling away as if I had never had a book in my life to bother me. Two minutes later a tramp came hurrying after me with that blessed book in his hands, quite eager to return it to me. It seems that it had slid into his boat as he sat fishing and had not hit the water at all, so he took great joy in returning it to its rightful owner, the gentleman who had dropped it."

"Great Scott!" chuckled Wilkinson. "How pleased you must have been to see it again!"

"I was mad enough to say something emphatic," said the out-of-town customer. "But, of course, you can't tell a man that you don't want the old thing when he has been so proud of returning it to you. Anyhow, I couldn't, and I tipped him gracefully and with considerable liberality because he did look such a miserable specimen. I am easy, I suppose, but I hate to turn down anybody who thinks he is helping me."

"You must be a mark for porters and beggars," exclaimed Wilkinson. "If you are going to stay in this burg you'll have to be harder of heart than that or you'll never have a cent."

"Well, when I got into Chicago I thought I was all right," the out-of-town customer continued. "I am not slamming your fellow citizens, but in a busy city like this they can't all take the time to be honest. I had my lunch in the hotel and I left that book on the shelf of the breakfast table, thinking I was well rid of it, and, lo and behold! the chambermaid brought it to my room a few minutes after I got back! So, as the most expensive book I ever owned, I present it to you with my compliments."

"Thank you so much," said Wilkinson, with a twinkle in his eye. "I am certainly most grateful to you for thinking of me, but I am very much afraid I shall not have time to read it. So I hereby return it to you with some more compliments." — Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

"The World for the Workers" is the motto of Frank Hodges, who is coming to America this fall to represent British labor at the convention of the American and Canadian general labor organizations. Mr. Hodges is a member of the British parliament and secretary of the Miners' Federation. He is only 35 years old, but the million odd miners who belong to the federation regard "young Frank" as the best man who has ever occupied this responsible post. His career provides a remarkable romance of endeavor. Starting work as a boy of fourteen in the pit, he educated himself, winning a scholarship for a course of study at Ruskin college, Oxford, when he was twenty. He went to Paris to perfect his French and afterwards returned to work in the mines, earning a few extra shillings by teaching French at evening classes. His ability soon attracted the attention of his fellow-workers. They made him their agent when he was 25, and six years later elected him general secretary of the federation.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Great Fun, and the Unfitness of Things.

Mr. Editor: It seems to this writer that the opportunity for the legitimate moral teacher, whose business it is to inculcate the importance of virtuous living was never so inviting as at the present time. Just when the temptation to violence and the practice of law-breaking is so popular.

At the risk, however, of the odium of the seeming majority on the wrong side, but with the consciousness of striking a harmonious cord in many other hearts ,we take up the pen to awaken a real need if it may be attempted with hope in this way at such a time.

No wonder the respect for all constitutional and legislative authority is being disregarded to an alarming extent when the public reads the ribaldry and "great fun," attending the closing up of our state lawgivers. Contrast this with another scene which history furnishes to the serious student.

There was once a "dark day," when the Connecticut legislature was in session, so dark that the fowls on the farms went to roost, and it was moved that the body adjourn. A man named Davenport—honor to that name—arose and said, "Either this is the end of the world or it is not; be it so, I wish to be found doing my duty, and I move that candles be brought in, and that we proceed with action."

Here was a type of man that is worth imitation, and the type of man that made Connecticut. We have electric lights now, and white way proposals, but what we need most is some more practical instructions on the ethics of fitness and manhood—and no more of this "little boy" nonsense.

A graduation of nurses, not one hundred miles away, is opened with prayer and moral lessons and ends with a dance. Surely watchers over the sick and dying should have something finer and higher in their heads and heels, than tripping the fantastic toe.

The Scripture makes allowance for dancing, but it says "there is a time to dance." In fact the Scripture is a wonderful guide to all the proprieties and has yet a mine for sermonizing yet untouched, and apparently undiscovered by many.

We need not wonder if violations of the liquor laws prevail, when we read of the hands of a clock in a Congregational church in New Britain being removed by its ecclesiastical society, rather than conform to the standard set by this legislature, just closed, the violation of which was made a penal offense.

Great fun, also, in West'erly over a public community clock, among tricksters who ought to be fined or imprisoned for their acts.

All this seems to be in line with the popular notion of progress and up-to-dateness.

Lord save us from all such progress before we are perpetually "set to the fitness of things, both body and soul.

Sees a Literal Fulfilment.

Mr. Editor: It would be interesting to know how many of your readers have thought on the wonderful possibilities of the radiophone, the greatest miracle of the age, and its significance, in the light of the Bible. As all Bible students know that "angel means messenger, therefore we get a clear and wonderful picture of this great angel flying through the heavens carrying the true gospel to the people all over the earth, "Soon." In Luke 12:2-3, the Lord, in speaking of the time we are now in, says—That things not then revealed, would be proclaimed from the housetops. Thus we see a literal fulfilment of revealing things over the radiophone from the housetops. As we know the radiophones are about all installed from the housetops.

"Hear attentively the noise of His voice, and the sound that goeth out of His mouth, (the Lord speaking over the radiophone). He directeth it under the whole heavens, and His lightning unto the ends of the earth," (it sure will lighten the minds of the people). Job. 37:15. "The Lord will roar from Zion and utter His voice from Jerusalem (over the radiophone), and the habitations of the (false) Shepherds shall mourn, (these will surely feel like crying when they learn the 'little flock alone' had the true gospel, and they the false), and the top of Carmel shall wither," (those who are now in the Lord's vineyard reaping pay for false work will wilt when they have to go farming)." Amos. 1:2.

"And I saw an angel (the radiophone) fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach to them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation kindred, tongue, and people," (over the radiophone). Rev. 14:6. Then all can, and will hear the message, even the illiterate, and none can stop the truth from them, filling the earth as the waters cover the great sea. Then the timid ones who are afraid to offend the worldly class, or are afraid of losing worldly prestige, can listen in, and get what they now lack, and do not now understand. The great time of trouble is nearing a crisis and according to scripture the last struggle will be the hardest. Let us take the advice of the Good Book, and seek meekness. Seek righteousness, that we may be hid in this day of the Lord's anger. Zeph. 2:3; this verse also shows that some will be saved, and come through the fire of God's wrath (fire is a symbol of destruction). And those who believe in eternal torment (if they believe the Bible) must own that it is only a symbol when they read Rev. 21:8, also 20:14. Where it tells that satan, the one who is supposed to keep these fires of hell burning, is also destroyed in the lake of fire and brimstone (and the end of the verse says) which is the second death (utter destruction). I am longing for the day to arrive when the "Great King and Master" and eternal Father (by right of bringing the life rights of all) will speak peace to the nations, and all the restless sea (the peoples will in anarchy and strife will settle down to calmness). And the desire of all nations will come to the poor world. Sinsich and weary, for if we pray, as the dear Lord taught us to pray. "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done on 'earth' as it is done in heaven."

BACKGROUND

When times are as tough as times can get
And you're feeling their bitter brunt;
When the wallet's thin and it's hard to grin
At the long, hard pull in front.
When it seems—no fun—that your chance is done
And the task for a bigger man,
Do you doubt you can win if you go right in?
There's something to show you can.

Remember the Argonne's back of you,
Its muck and its maze of wire;
When the skies roared red and the ground ahead
Was a cauldron of lead and fire.
There wasn't a tougher job on earth
Than to win to the last long mile,
But you crashed clean through when the whistle blew
Remember that now—and smile.

When everything looks like a bad misdeal
And somebody else has trumps;
When the plans you try get a blow sky-high
And you know only bumps and bumps;
When the future runs in a ragged road
The patterns its course uphill,
Why ever exclaim, "Can I beat this game?"
You've something to show you will.

Remember the North Sea's back of you,
The smash of its crests upcurled,
As the sleet cut cold and the wagon rolled
In the Black of a pitching world.
The galleys under a flood of foam,
No sleep on patrol in style,
Yes, that was a job, and you did it, gob,
Remember that now—and smile.

"High Blood Pressure Is Not a Disease," Says Physician

A well-known physician who has made an extensive study of the subject of blood pressure emphatically states that it is not a disease. He says, "It is a symptom and a most significant and important one at that." Its presence is and should be a constant warning to the medical man to search for the real cause. High Blood Pressure always means Danger. It is an early warning of worse to come if the signals are not heeded.

If you suffer from headaches, have attacks of dissiness, vertigo, shortness of breath on exertion, sleep poorly, wake up frequently and get up always tired; if you are low-spirited, prone to worry, have occasional attacks of neuralgia, neuritis, or muscular pains, if your heart palpitates, you may be suffering from high blood pressure. And the presence of high blood pressure means you are absorbing poisons from wastes that lie too long in the intestines.

This same physician has discovered a way to treat high blood pressure that has been universally successful in thousands of clinical cases. He has discovered a formula that stimulates the bile which is Nature's great antiseptic and regulator. With the bile in a normal healthy condition, the body throws off the poisons quickly and good health is the natural result.

Now that thousands of tests have proved the efficacy of this treatment, it has been put up in convenient tablet form and is dispensed by druggists under the name Bi-a-lin.

It is absolutely harmless, easy to take and is wonderfully quick in its results. The American distributors have authorized local druggists to dispense Bi-a-lin with an absolute guarantee to return the full purchase price if you do not get wonderful relief from the use of the very first bottle.

BAPTIST CHURCH OBSERVES PASTOR'S ANNIVERSARY

The Thursday evening meeting at the Central Baptist church was varied with a special programme, that followed the regular prayer meeting, to signalize the second anniversary of the coming of Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt to the church as pastor.

The prayer meeting room was filled to its seating capacity and several rows of chairs in Bushnell chapel were occupied. Large basket of flowers made attractive decorations.

After the prayer meeting Deacon Shepard B. Palmer presided and expressed to the pastor the appreciation which the church felt for his work in the past two years. Rev. Dr. Pitt responded with an impressive acknowledgement of the co-operation which the congregation had given him, declaring that never before in a two year period had he known such a response to be given to a pastor as the Central church had given him. He spoke of his hopes and plans for the future with the church to which he pledged his best endeavors.

When called on by Deacon Palmer to address the gathering, C. D. Noyes made a pleasing reference to the place that Dr. Pitt had won in the hearts of his congregation and went on to speak of a quiet canvass that had been made recently in which a considerable amount of money had been pledged for the purpose of providing an automobile for the use of the pastor. This had advanced now so far, said Mr. Noyes, that the automobile is practically assured, but the way is still open for contributions towards this purpose from members of the congregation.

A social hour closed the evening, during which music was furnished by Miss Olive Linton at the piano and Miss Elizabeth Lane, violin. Ice cream and wafers were served. The decorations for the evening were in charge of Mrs. Allyn L. Brown and the refreshments were in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Burton.

STREET DEPARTMENT SHOWS THAT APPROPRIATIONS HAVE RUN SHORT

As the city's fiscal year is drawing to a close, it is shown that expenditures in some of the departments have exceeded the appropriations made, particularly in the street department. City Treasurer Charles S. Avery's monthly report up to May 15, 1923, showed a total of $18,148.75 in overdrafts, of which $15,617.56 was in the street department. This figure will be increased by the money that it has been necessary to use since then in city work.

In the street department, where there was $48,017.26 appropriated for ordinary repairs and expenses, there has been an overdraft of $18,521.46. Outside work has used $64.74 more than the $5,233.83 that was appropriated, and the expense of removal of garbage and ashes has been $1,605.04 more than the $22,000 that was assigned for this work. In the item of parks and trees, for which $1,800 was appropriated, the expense has run $90.63 over this amount, while for liability insurance $335.16 over the $2,167.61 appropriated has been spent. The entire unexpended balance on several items of the street department's work, according to the treasurer's report on May 15, was $120.79.

The finance department has used all of the $16,000 in the contingent account besides $2,146.39 more, and it also has an overdraft of $80.69 on salaries and tax commission and of $29.82 on election expenses. The appropriations for these were $6,300 and $2,000, respectively. General expenses of the police department were also shown in the treasurer's report to have exceeded the $2,000 appropriated by $268.45.

JUDGE BEACH'S OPINION IN PFEIFFER VS PFEIFFER

The opinion written by Judge Beach of the supreme court in which the other justices concur in the Thomas J. Pfeiffer vs Luella Pfeiffer case has been received at the office of Judge George E. Parsons, clerk of the superior court.

T. J. Pfeiffer of this city brought a habeas corpus action against his wife to determine the custody of their daughter, and he took an appeal to the supreme court from the superior court's judgment on the habeas corpus case. The supreme court sustains the superior court.

The plaintiff and defendant intermarried Feb. 20, 1917 and a daughter was born of the marriage who was four years old when these proceedings were instituted in December, 1924.

In the spring of 1921 the defendant had brought an action against the plaintiff for divorce on the grounds of intolerable cruelty, and the action was dismissed on its merits. At that time the child was in the custody of the mother and the father then brought this action. At a hearing in December, 1921, the parties with the advice and agreement of the court, entered into a stipulation apportioning the custody of the child for the period up to the opening of the public schools of Norwich for the fall term of 1922 "upon which day said Thomas J. Pfeiffer shall deliver and return said child to its mother, Luella H. Pfeiffer, when said parties hereto shall agree as to the further custody of the child." The cause was continued pending performance of this stipulation. It was duly performed up to the day when the plaintiff was to return the child to its mother, which he refused to do and has since retained its custody.

The defendant first asked for a ruling to show cause why the plaintiff should not be adjudged in contempt for refusing to perform the stipulation, but at the suggestion of the court the cause was heard on its merits with a view to determine the custody of the child. The court has found that both parties are devoted to the child, that both are suitable persons to have the custody of the child and that the best interests of the child will be served by awarding the custody to the mother, but allowing the child to visit the father for the Christmas and summer school vacations in each year. Judgment was entered accordingly.

The assignments of error pursued on the brief are that the court had no jurisdiction in this action to disturb the plaintiff's custody of the child, that the exclusive jurisdiction to remove the plaintiff as guardian was in the probate court and that the court erred in finding and refusing to find certain facts.

We have examined and see no reason to correct the finding. The finding that both parties are so situated financially that they can care for the child is not inconsistent with the other facts found; and other corrections asked for, so far as they are material, are based on conflicting evidence.

The argument against the jurisdiction of the superior court is based on the theory that the joint guardianship provided for in Section 4861 cannot be exercised while the father and mother are living separate and apart, that in such case the statute is inoperative, and therefore the rule of the common law survives, that the father being a suitable person, is entitled to the sole custody even as against the mother. It is, however, too late to invoke the common law rule in this state. The plain purpose of the statute was to make the legal rights of the father and the mother equal as joint guardians. Though they live separate and apart their legal rights as guardians remain equal. But if they cannot agree as to the custody of the infant, and appeal to the courts to determine to whom the custody of the child shall be awarded, their legal rights will be subordinated to the paramount consideration of the welfare of the infant. If the question of the custody of the infant be presented in divorce proceedings, or by writ of habeas corpus, the superior court is the proper forum. Otherwise the probate courts have exclusive jurisdiction. Dunham vs Dunham, supra. In either count, as we have said in that case, "the welfare of the ward of the state is the paramount consideration whether the controversy be between parent and parent, or between a parent and a stranger."

The determination of the custody of an infant, especially when both parents are suitable custodians, rests largely in the discretion of the trial court which sees and hears the contending parties; and in this case there is no claim that it has misused its discretion.

It is perhaps unnecessary to add that the superior court has not by this judgment removed the father as joint guardian of the infant.

There is no error.

BEACH.

THREE BEFORE COURT FOR CEMETERY RIOT

Nunsio Tempesta, Louis Tombari and John Guastamacchia were before the police court Thursday morning on the charge of breach of the peace at Maplewood cemetery last Tuesday morning when it is alleged they were members of the party of striking laborers who attacked workmen at the cemetery with shovels and picks, driving them from the job.

The cases against three men were continued to Saturday.

Paul Skindger paid a fine of $5 and costs for violation of the liquor law at the Newmarket hotel where the police seized several cases of home-brew beer in a raid Wednesday night.

PARK CHURCH LAWNS BECOME WAYSIDE FAIR

The downpour of rain Thursday afternoon interfered considerably with the patronage at the wayside fair given on the grounds of Park Congregational church and adjacent lawns under the auspices of the Parish House association of the church, Miss Louis Howe, chairman. However, in spite of the rain, the many attractive booths were fairly well patronized although the patronage was not as great as it would have been had the committee been favored with sunny skies.

The decorations were elaborate, much pains being taken to have the colors harmonize. The grounds presented a very striking appearance and attracted the attention and favorable comment of all who passed by.

One of the prettiest booths on the grounds was the candy booth. This booth was in the form of a huge pink May basket and was located on the lawn at the left of the center entrance to the church.

Hot waffles and coffee were sold at a booth located at the right of the entrance to the Osgood Memorial parish house. Two electric waffle irons and two electric coffee percolators were used in preparing waffles and coffee.

A very attractive feature of the fair was the Japanese Tea Garden on the front lawn of the residence of Dr. W. Tyler Brown, adjoining the church property. The decorations were of wisteria and iris with gaily colored Japanese umbrellas.

At the northeast corner of the church parsonage, across the street from the church, was the auction booth in charge of George L. Ingalls. The color scheme at this booth was red.

An ice cream booth was located on the Broadway side of the parsonage. The booth with canopy top was a bower of color with green, pink and white decorations.

All kinds of spring flowers were on sale at the flower booth near the parsonage entrance. This booth was of pergola shape.

Childrens books were found on sale on the rear porch of the parsonage. Etchings by Osias Dodge were also displayed for sale at this booth. Chairs and reading tables for the children were arranged nearby.

The fair came to a close with the serving of a supper at 6.30 o'clock in the dining hall of the parish house. Nearly 120 were served, the menu being as follows:

Fruit Cocktail
Cold Boiled Ham
Boiled New Potatoes, Drawn Butter and Parsley
Native Chicken Salad with Seidner's Salad Dressing
Rolls Butter
Ice Cream with Macaroon Garnish
Plain Cake
Coffee

The color scheme was pink and white and there were prettily arranged center pieces on each table.

On the property recently acquired by Clarence Wimpheimer, of New York, who is part owner of the American Velvet company's mill with his father, there will be erected three new cottages.

This property was purchased a few years ago by Mr. Killars, and Mr. Wimpheimer, who have laid out new roads running north and south of the velvet mill. A few years ago this land was pasture land. With the two houses that have been underway this year and the four new ones to be built soon, six new homes will have been erected there this year. City water has been extended over this section by the Mystic Valley Water Co., and electric light poles have been placed along the "highway" by the Mystic Power Co.

J. F. Joseph's pleasure yacht, Flavia, has been taken to the West Mystic works where she is to be painted and repaired before being put into commission for the summer season.

When the Pawcatuck post office is opened it will serve approximately 5,500 people, taking in as it does Clark's Falls, Laurel Glen, North Stonington, Wequetequock, Pendleton Hill and Anguilla, which now depend upon a foreign state for service. It is very certain that an office having that volume of patronage may not aspire to a second class rating, with free delivery, when the borough of Stonington with one-half of the population, has it all. This project of having a post office in Pawcatuck was started several years ago by the late Jack Vose. By having a post office there in Pawcatuck, it will eliminate the necessity of the business men who have a business that requires their mail to be posted from a Connecticut post office having to come over five miles to Stonington, to have it go out.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Atwood have arrived home from their trip to Japan, after an absence of several months. Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Bradley, are expected to return Saturday, as they stopped at Milwaukee, returning by another route.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dodge and son John returned home from Camp Forestholm in Main, Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Garity are spending a vacation of two weeks on a visit to Washington, Niagara Falls and other places.

Mighty Healing Power of Peterson's Ointment

"I wish I could publish all the grateful letters I get every week," says Peterson. "I don't believe anyone on this earth has such a happy time at work as I have. All I do is make Peterson's Ointment and read letters like these that come right from the heart.

"I had an ulcer on my ankle—had it 30 years and could not get it healed. For the last six years I had several doctors. I got one box of your ointment and it almost healed it and it was entirely healed before I had used the second one. I don't think there is a better remedy on earth." Mrs. J. C. Henderson, 620 Sprague St., Winston-Salem, N. C.

Peterson's Ointment is just as good for piles as it is for old sores. It stops itching of eczema almost instantly. There isn't anything in the way of pimples or face blemishes that it won't chase away, and for sore feet, chafing, sunburn, scalds, cuts and bruises there is nothing so sure or speedy. 35 cents, 60c, $1, $2.50, $5.

DANIELSON

A minor accident last Sunday in which two automobiles were in collision at the junction of Reynolds and Main street has resulted in representations being made to the Congregational church that parking about that edifice, which is at the junction of these streets, during Sunday services is regarded as a menace to the heavy traffic now converging off two important state highways at this point. Without any attention to impose any undue restrictions on anyone Chief John McFarland of the police has called attention to the fact that the fairway at Main and Reynolds streets should not be blocked by parked cars, because such a practice by good citizens come to Sunday worship is dangerous on account of the heavy traffic at that particular corner, where two of the main arteries of traffic in Connecticut. This junction is a danger point on any day, but is especially so on Saturdays and Sundays, when traffic is especially heavy and brings hundreds of cars to the point in question from all points in southern New England.

Special sale of new bedsteads, springs, mattresses and floor covering at Witter's auction rooms, 42 Main street, Danielson, for the next ten days only.—adv.

Total number of patients 304, medical 147, surgical 23, obstetrical 38, tuberculosis 43, child hygiene 56, nursing visits 1216, social service 387, prenatal and child hygiene visits 227. Total number of visits 1630. Number of paying patients 97. Number of free patients 207. Money received from patients $150.85. Articles loaned from store closet 38. Relief given: garments 315, shoes and rubbers 41, hats 3, blankets 6.

Groceries, fruit, medicine, candy, toys, games, books, sleds, magazines, flowers, food, ice cream, eggs, vegetables, talcum powder, tooth paste, and tooth brushes and quantities of old linen have been given to the poor sick and shut-ins.

These things and the money to buy them have contributed by the following people: Mrs. E. R. Warren, Miss Ada King, Miss Louise Danielson, Mrs. J. C. Williams, Mrs. W. E. Labelle, Mrs. W. K. Knowles, Mrs. A. V. Thompson, Mrs. Fred Armington, Miss Annie Day, Miss Ethel Tillinghast, Mrs. A. P. Burns, Mrs. H. D. Crosby, Mrs. D. H. Arnold, George Guild, Mrs. Herbert Briggs, Mrs. William Litch, Mrs. James Danielson, American Legion, Mrs. A. H. Armington, Mrs. Clarence Bacon, Miss Laura Jacobs, Mrs. W. I. Bullard, Mrs. George Call, Mrs. James Paine, Eastern Star, Mrs. Simeon Danielson, Mrs. E. H. Keach, Mrs. E. M. Marlar, Mrs. Alfred Reed, Mrs. Henry Burgess, Mrs. Thomas Kidd, Mrs. Casalus Tourtellotte, Miss Eva Viens, Miss Emily Williams, Mrs. Mary Salotti, Miss Frances Danielson, Mrs. Sabin Russell, Mrs. Maurice Heiman, Mrs. John M. Paine, Mrs. Burton Spencer and several anonymous contributors.

A summary of the work done in the public schools 1921, 1922, unfinished at our last annual meeting follows: Number of children examined 878, pupils reported as needing attention 261, cases of tonsils referred to doctor 101, adenoids 25, defective eyes 70, teeth 34, swollen glands 7, skin diseases 12, deafness 2, pediculosis 15, rickets 1.

Owing to sickness during last summer the nurse was unable to assist in getting the children to attend the clinics at Day Kimball hospital, but about thirty cases of diseased tonsils received attention. A good number of children have been fitted to glasses, and other things have been attended to.

The work for this year is nearly completed but not quite ready for report, 41 half days have been spent in school. Improved condition in cases having received attention, only emphasize the need in other cases.

The children do not get sufficient encouragement from the regular dentists who are too busy to give them the time they need to have corrections made in their teeth and many cases are going without the care they should have which proves we very much need a dental clinic. Interest in tuberculosis work has been kept up through the year. Clinics of which we have had ten have been well attended. One hundred thirty-two people have taken advantage of the expert opinion of Dr. Campbell. This is an average of 13 1-5 each clinic of which an average of 5 were new cases. Of these there were found 18 cases pulmonary, 1 cases glandular and 2 cases laryngeal tuberculosis. Of these 10 have been hospitalized. About 40 have been under observation.

Milk has been furnished to four families in which are 17 children. The expense being met by the Christmas Seal Fund. An effort is made to keep watch of the babies and small children, and help the mother with the diet and care. This is meeting with satisfactory results.

The nurse attended the N. E. Tuberculosis Conference held in Augusta, Maine, September 28-29, which was very helful and interesting. She also attended prenatal and child welfare institute in Hartford Dec. 6 and 7.

The visits to the town farm have been made every month. These have become a real feature of the social service work. Gifts of fruit and candy, magazines, gifts and favors appropriate to the season are always joyfully received.

In giving this my sixth annual report I want to thank the Civic Federation and the public for the hearty cooperation manifested in my efforts.

It is not customary for The Bulletin to boost via the propaganda route any event in which the promoters may attain a profit, but no limit may be placed on the publicity to be given the set of boxing bouts to be staged here Friday evening of next week, June 15, by Frank Barber of the Casino Amusement company for the benefit of the Nurses' Home fund of the Day Kimball hospital. Every net penny accruing from these bouts will be turned over to the nurses' home fund. There will be no state tax to pay. The boxers will work for far below their usual compensation. The advertising in the press of eastern Windham county will be free. Everyone will boost the event to the utmost without charge in order that the home for nurses may be given a great push forward in the unusual effort of raising $20,000. Boxing fans from far and near will patronize this event and it is already assured that many women will be numberd among those who see the contests.

Promoter Barber said Thursday afternoon that he has booked Bobby Mays of New Bedford to meet Samuel Leonard of Fitchburg in a star bout of 12 rounds at 120-122 pounds at this show. These are remarkably fast boys and should provide real entertainment for all interested in athletic events. Then there is to be Bobby Kelley of Waterbury meeting K. O. Dinsdalle of North Scituate in an eight-round go at 150 pounds. Another event will be between Steve Ketchell of Providence and Frank Bush of Norwich, a 6-round affair at light heavy weight poundage. A preliminary event will bring forth Joseph Brosseau of Norwich vs Young Bernier of Danielson.

Without doubt next Friday evening's card will be the classic event of the boxing season in Danielson. It will bring the boxing fans from far and near and numbered among them will be many in official position, many who will be interested in boxing as a novelty and the dyed-in-the wool fans that will congregate from far and near the cheer for their favorites. The series of bouts are being staged by Promoter Barber in conjunction with the Killingly committee for the Nurses' home fund of the Day Kimball hospital.

A wedding of interest at Wauregan Monday was that of Miss Beatrice Kerouck and Joseph LaBonte, James LaBonte was best man and Miss Alice Campbell bridesmaid. Rev. J. C. Mathieu was celebrant of the nuptial mass and performed the marriage ceremony at Sacred Heart church.

The bride, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Kerouck, was given in marriage by her father. She was gowned in white satin, her gown with a court train, and she wore a veil caught with a spray of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was a shower arrangement of roses and lilies of the valley.

Following the marriage there was a reception and wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents, 75 guests being present. During the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. LaBonte left for their wedding trip. They were trailed in their motor car to New London and showered with confetti by enthusiastic friends of the wedding party. After their honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. LaBonte will make their home in Wauregan. The bride received many beautiful gifts, including silverware, linen, cut glass and many other beautiful things that will add beauty to the home the newly established pair are to set up.

Harry Duquette of South Killingly has purchased the business of John B. Lucas, who recently announced he was to retire for the time being from the line of endeavor in which he has been engaged for the past 22 years. Mr. Lucas has been successful and has built up a profitable business, but he has devoted himself too closely to his affairs and has been advised to take an extended rest. Mr. Duquette is well known in this vicinity and will not join Danielson business circles as a stranger.

PUTNAM

Four Putnam people—A. Newton Vaughan, Joseph Ryan and Mr. and Mrs. George Sampson—were passengers on the State of Maine express when it was wrecked at Burnside station, near East Hartford, late Wednesday night. No one of them was injured, but their experience was a terrifying one. For a few seconds after the two giant locomotives that were hauling the train went off the iron at a switch, one rolling over on its side in one direction and the other toppling in the opposite direction, it appeared to the people in the day coach in which the Putnam people were riding that their end in this life was near at hand. The coach was fourth in the train from the locomotives, three baggage and mail cars being at the head of the train. When the locomotives left the rails the coach threatened to break up as it swayed and the roof seemed to buckle under the tremendous pressure being exerted upon it. Passengers in the coach were thrown about, but no one was seriously injured.

Mr. Vaughan said Thursday morning that he felt no ill effects from an experience he had no desire to repeat. All tracks in the vicinity of the wreck were torn up, he said, and holes into which one might drop shoulder deep were dug in the roadbed as the locomotives and cars plunged along wildly before coming to a stop.

Passengers on the train did not reach this city until about 6 o'clock Thursday morning, when they came through on a special. The State of Maine is one of the night expresses operating between New York and Maine points and, eastbound, is due in this city about midnight.

Arthur J. Maloney of this city, a World war veteran in an overseas railroad command, was baggagemaster on the wrecked train. He escaped uninjured.

Two clean-cut young men, giving their names as Robert Fyfe and Thomas Kelley, both 21 years of age, and claiming Haverhill as their home city, were brought to the police station here during Thursday forenoon by Charles Satt, Webster, a member of the New Haven railroad police, and locked up to answer to a charge of train riding. Officer Satt happened to be in this territory when he noticed the two young men stealing a ride on a freight train. He arrested them and brought them back to Putnam from near West Thompson, though he arrested them within the limits of the town of Putnam, being carried out of the local jurisdiction before the train came to a halt.

It was apparent to local officials that the young men were not of the hobo type, so a late morning session of the court was called for the disposition of their cases and they were released after being fined $5 each and upon their promise to forward the amount due the court. They were appreciative of the fact that Putnam officials went out of their way to quickly close up the cases in order that the prisoners might not be obliged to languish all day and over night in the police station, awaiting the session of the court that ordinarily would be held at 9 o'clock in the morning.

Thursday brought the first weekly half holiday of the season for the business men and clerks in mercantile establishments in this city—and as has been the rule on the first of these holidays for several years it rained for a while, putting a kink in various plans for outings that were to have taken parties out into the country or on other brief holiday jaunts. The Thursday half holidays will continue through the months of June, July, August and September. This arrangement has been in force here for several years and is now so well known throughout the territory for which Putnam is the trading center that few out of town buyers come here during the summer season on Thursday afternoons.

What will be the outcome of the strike of workers at the Manhasset Manufacturing company's big plant? That is a question that is being asked many times each day now, since the strike has entered its fifth week, and brings forth two interesting answers, framed according to the viewpoints of two large divisions of the city's population that are interested in the strike chiefly as on-lookers. One group will tell you that the strikers are going to win because they are of sufficient number to hamper production at the plant to a point where operation is not profitable and that the company cannot stand that forever; that the strikers have excellent financial backing and can hold out until the company is forced in its own protection to grant the increase in wages asked for by those who are remaining away from work; that many of the strikers have found work elsewhere and are not suffering any vital inconveniences because of the labor difficulty here.

The other group will answer the question by pointing out that the mill company is steadily recruiting a new organization to take the place of the one disrupted by the strike; that a big increase in the number of workers at the plant is noted since the strike was first called, and that a further increase in the number of employes will soon bring the number of the mill's workers back to the normal complement and that the strike will peter out as a lost cause.

There, in a general way, is the strike situation as the public here sees it from different viewpoints. The strikers continue to hold out and the mill continues to operate. The mill company has said it will not grant the demand for a further advance in wages and is gradually filling its employment wants with workers willing to accept the existing scale. The strikers are also adamant about going back without getting more money. One who has followed the strike closely said Thursday that he does not look for the mill company to make any concession nor the strikers to go back unless their demands are granted. That situation constitutes a deadlock. A straw indicating which way the wind blows is that the strikers are finding work in other plants and that others will do so in the near future. Following out this program to its logical conclusion, all of the strikers who care for other employment would in due time be employed in other plants and their interest in the Manhasset strike at least greatly reduced, while in the meantime other labor will have taken the vacant places at the Manhasset plant. This appears to be the destiny of the strike here at the present time and only very unexpected concessions from either side can change it.

A team match between Putnam and Southbridge will be played on the links of the Putnam Country club Saturday afternoon. Owing to the difference in time, it is necessary to start this match not later than 1:30 p. m., eastern standard time. The tournament committee expects a large attendance at the club for the match.

No appointment of a successor to William J. Jarvis, just named for captain of police in Putnam, will be made by the commissioner on domestic animals, it was stated Friday. Captain Jarvis has been acting as a special deputy commissioner for nearly a year, and there are many applicants in this territory for the position he is to vacate by resignation at the end of this week. It was stated Thursday that Chief Special Deputy Howard A. Elliott is again to take charge of operations in the eastern Connecticut district.

A big delegation from this city will be at Danielson Friday evening of next week to attend the boxing exhibition that is to be staged in the interest of the nurses' home for the Day Kimball hospital of this city. Promoter Frank Barber of Danielson has arranged an all-star card of bouts—four in number—for this big event, and every cent of profit from the affair, which will be certain to attract several hundred boxing enthusiasts, will be given to the home fund. Newspapers will give free advance notices of the affair, officials will work without compensation, and all the real money that comes through the box offices will eventually revert to the nurses' home fund.

New London, June 7.—That thievlag among the juveniles in New London is on the increase is evident from the frequency in which burglaries and thefts are traced to youths of ages ranging from eight to fifteen years and the frequency with which Judge Victor Prince has to preside to hear cases where juveniles are concerned. Two instances of juvenile thieving were revealed this afternoon and in one case considerable plunder was stolen by the youthful culprits, although it was recovered.

Late today Charles A. Williams, proprietor of an antique shop at No. 16 Truman street, reported to the police that a storehouse in the rear of his establishment had been entered and some of the contents of the place stolen. Motorcycle Officer John Cavanaugh was assigned to the case and in a short time had the culprits in custody and the plunder they obtained stored at the police station. It developed that the boys, four in number, and residing in the vicinity of where the antique shop is located, forced an entrance to the storehouse last night, by smashing the door. Among the articles stored in the place were a quantity of silverware, bronze statuary, a sword and an old time revolver, all in excellent state of preservation and being stored there by a customer of Williams. The silverware, sword and revolver were taken and the statuary destroyed. After a brief investigation, Motorcycle Officer Cavanaugh rounded up the guilty boys, who told their story of entering the place and where the stolen articles had been secreted, which was beneath the verandas of their homes. The boys were taken to the police station and turned over to Prohibition Officer Richard W. Mansfield, who will cause them to be arraigned in juvenile court within a few days.

The other theft occurred this afternoon when Mrs. Edward Mason of No. 95 Shaw street, deposited $13 in one of the rooms of her home. During her temporary absence from the house two boys, whose ages ranged from nine to eleven years, entered the house and stole the money. Mrs. Mason soon discovered her loss and reported the theft to the police. Detective Sergeant Charles Hammond was assigned to the case and quickly rounded up the boys, who returned the money they had taken. These youths will be among those to receive a reprimand when the juvenile court holds its next session.

The condition of James O'Neill, who has been under treatment at a private hospital here several weeks, is somewhat improved, but it will be some time yet before he is able to return to his apartment at the Hotel Mohican.

The Elks will conduct their annual Flag Day exercises at the home of the organization on Washington street next Thursday afternoon and that the affair will be an elaborate one is evidenced by the arrangements being completed.

The annual meeting of stockholders of the Union Bank & Trust company was held this morning in the banking rooms of the institution and following directors elected: Carlos Barry, Alfred Colt, Lucius E. Whiton, Charles E. White, Benjamin L. Armstrong, James Bathgate, W. Kyle Sheffield, Laurence W. Chappell and Joseph A. Stanners. At a meeting of the directors immediately following the stockholders' meeting the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Alfred Colt; vice president, Lucius E. Whiton; vice president and cashier, Carlos Barry; assistant cashier, Edward Bull, Jr.; assistant cashier and trust officer, Joseph A. Stanners; paying teller, Malcolm M. Scott; receiving teller, John Masterton.

Bids were opened this morning at the municipal building for the erection of a new pier at Ocean Beach, the only bidder being the Merritt-Chapman-Scott Wrecking Company of this city. The lone bid was for $7,475 and called for the erection of a wooden pier to replace the present one. The new pier, if the contract is awarded, and it probably will, will be 250 feet in length and twenty feet wide, with a wing at the end for the landing of the larger type of river craft and a low landing on the north side where smaller type of boats may land.

The remainder of the stock of booze, comprising seventy-four cases of whiskey, that was a part of the cargo recovered from the launch Thelma when the craft foundered off Fishers Island several weeks ago and which has been stored since at the coast guard station there, has been removed to New London and is now stored at the custom house.

James J. Pappas, of Philadelphia, and Miss Almeda Branch of New London, were joined in wedlock this afternoon, the ceremony being performed by Justice of the Peace Perry F. Hollandersky. The couple will reside in Philadelphia.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Edmund J. Downey of Jay street to Miss Carol Cecelia Perkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Perkins of Coleman street. The wedding will take place the latter part of this month. Mr. Downey is an architect in the employ of Dudley StC. Donnelly and Miss Perkins is one of several operators in the employ of the Southern New England Telephone Company, who will become brides the next two months.

A big party of Antlers, an association composed of members of the order of Elks, came to New London from Fisher's Island last evening with their wives, their children, and their lady friends, and had a good time at the Elks' home on Washington street. Thy marched from the teamie Nelseco, Capt. Eddie Quarry to the Elks' home, headed by a band and at the home the band furnished music for dancing until midnight arrived. The party feasted, and in a general way had a most enjoyable evening.

Raymond Leary of No. 54 Howard street, complained to the police last night that his bicycle, which he had placed in the yard of the New London Ice Company on Howard street, had been stolen.

A team owned by Wolf Rich of Waterford, was damaged on Bank street this afternoon when an automobile, owned and operated by Mrs. Ida M. Cook of No. 50 Pall Harbor place, crashed against the vehicle and because the steering gear of the automobile was defective. Both Rich and Mrs. Cook reported the accident at the police station.

Rich left his horse unattended near the corner of Truman street and the animal wandered to a watering trough nearby. In doing so the team extended to the path of traffic on Bank street. While the horse was quenching its thirst the automobile operated by Mrs. Cook, headed southward, came along.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel has caused the operator's license of Lieut. R. D. Erdman, of the submarine base to be returned to the owner. Commissioner Stoeckel has also suspended the operator's license of L. K. Powell, a chief petty officer, stationed at the submarine base and has caused the license of Thomas Oddo of Shaw street to be returned to the owner.

Frank Saunders of No. 14 Whittlesey street, is the latest complainant to the police of the theft and destruction of building material. Mr. Saunders is causing a house to be erected on Whittlesey street and of late youths have visited the property and stolen some of the lumber stored there, while other building material has been mutilated.

A sneak thief operated in the lodging house at No. 22 Pearl street, operated by Mrs. Ferguson Rennie, this afternoon and but for the timely discovery of the crook in the place, he would have gotten away with a quantity of men and women's wearing apparel. The thief was discovered by Mrs. Rennie in the act of stuffing the clothing into a suit case. He made his escape before an alarm could be given. Mrs. Rennie has furnished the police with a description of the man.

State Police Officers Sterling and Brank continued their investigation today into the obtaining of a quantity of liquor from a Mystic man by a gang of local bootleggers and rum-runners recently upon the representation that they were agents of the revenue service, were aided in the search for additional evidence today by a department of justice officer of the New York district. The investigation will continue a day or two longer, when it is understood, that warrants will be issued for the arrest of one or two of the gang. The state police and the department of justice officer will co-operate and it is understood that the owner of the liquor, who resides in Mystic will be further quizzed tonight in an effort to obtain additional information.

Stephen Patterson of State street was fined $5 for not having an operator's license in his possession when he moved his car from the curbing to the street in front of a State street restaurant. The operation of the car nearly caused a collision, and Officer Sheban, who was at hand demanded that Patterson should show his papers giving him the right to operate a car. These he could not show. So his fine came for carelessness. He had a license, but he did not have it with him when he was driving a car.

NEW LONDON COURT HAS PECULIAR CASE TO DECIDE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 7.—The police court of New London must decide a case that will be a precedent perhaps for future cases of law violation. It may establish whether men in the service of the army or navy can be punished by the civil courts when such men are performing duty for the branch of the service in which they are located. A navy truck operated by one William S. Codd, stationed at the submarine base, was coming along Bank street yesterday as a trolley car stopped at Golden street to allow passengers to leave the car. Ludwig Mann, proprietor of the New England Cigar Stores, left the car and was to proceed to the sidewalk when some one yelled, "Look out!" This led Mr. Mann to halt in his tracks. Then he discovered that the navy truck was upon him and that he was picked up by it. He was carried along, but fortunately was not hurt. He sustained a shock because he realized he was in imminent danger. Mr. Mann sought an explanation and was told that the brakes of the truck failed to hold it. He went to the police station as did the operator of the truck and related the circumstances attending the accident. Codd was ordered into the court this morning and appeared there with a lieutenant representing the commandant at the base. Codd was charged with violating that section of the automobile laws that forbid the passing of a trolley car discharging or receiving passengers unless the motor vehicle shall have stopped ten feet from the trolley car. Codd pleaded guilty, but it was urged for him that he was not amenable to a penalty from the civil court and that his punishment should come from the authorities at the base. This did not meet with the approval of the court for it was pointed out that a man in the service of the government in its army & navy could not be held for any crime that he might commit. The reasoning of the navy people did not seem to be good law so Judge Crandall, who was on the bench decided that he would fine Codd and permit him to get a writ of habeas corpus if Codd decided that he was not rightly treated. To make sure of the position of the court judgment was suspended and the matter will be thoroughly studied that the final disposition may be according to law. The motor vehicle department was also notified of the facts in the case.

WAS ALMOST A NERVOUS WRECK

Says Wincarnis Restored Her Health

"Ten months ago I began to lose my strength. My household duties became burdensome. I felt exhausted after the slightest exertion. Then my nerves got so bad that at the slightest noise I used to tremble, my legs would shake and my heart beat violently causing me to gasp for breath. One afternoon a friend called to see me and she was shocked at my pitiable condition. She went out and bought a bottle of 'Wincarnis' and gave me a dose right away. I continued taking 'Wincarnis' three times a day and its effect has been almost miraculous. Gradually but surely my strength came back, a color came into my cheeks, my nerves grew steady and it seemed as if I had taken a new lease on life. Today I am a very happy woman because I am well."

JEWETT CITY

Reuben Barrett and Miss Laura M. Cole of Griswold were married at the Methodist parsonage by Rev. H. F. Walker on Thursday afternoon. The bride wore her traveling suit of blue poplin twill with gray hat. The bridesmaid was Miss Lillian Cole, the bride's sister. The best man was John Gerstin. A reception was held and dinner served at the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Cole. Mr. and Mrs. Barrett left by auto for a wedding trip and on their return will live in Pachaug. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Burgood of Pachaug.

Arlene Burdick received the first prize and Ellen Prior honorable mention for the best paper on "What does it mean to be a good citizen of America." The prize, a five dollar gold piece, was given by Anne Brewster Fanning Chapter, D. A. R. The judges were Mrs. A. M. Brown, Mrs. A. H. Anthony and Rev. Howard Stephenson. As Mr. Stephenson could not serve Mrs. B. C. Bliss was asked to take the place.

A. W. Buchanan, state agent, will be at Riverside Grammar school at one o'clock on June 12 to issue work certificates. Each child should be accompanied by a parent, and have all the necessary forms ready. The superintendent of schools will supply the forms, upon application for them.

Alfred L. Spencer, 70, died Tuesday at his home in Griswold, after many months of suffering from a malady that became acute recently. More than 50 years ago Mr. Spencer lived in Griswold, then with his family he removed to New London returning to his native home here, a few years ago. He was a carpenter and builder by trade, and was possessed of more than the ordinary skill. While living in New London, his only son was drowned. His wife, whom he married as Miss Northrop, survives him.

Speaking of new an dadvanced conditions in the postal service and evidence that the world does move, Postmaster D. F. Finn has received a copy of the trans-continental aerial mail service, which flies between New York City and San Francisco, leaving either city every day except Saturdays and holidays.

One of Miss Katherine MacNamara's pupils brough in Thursday, the blossom of the American linden, which in its formation is most peculiar, the small clusters of flowers, are at the end of a small green stem that grows part way, attached to a leaf like bract, then leaves it at a sharp angle. The tree is commonly called basswood, and sometimes whitewood.

Mrs. F. C. Whiting, has the only copy known to exist of the famous and extremely unusual poem, written by the late N. L. Reade of Lisbon, on the dedication of Liberty Hall, in Jewett City over seventy years ago. It was printed in the first issue of the New York Ledger. The editor, Mrs. Bonner and Mrs. Reade were friends. The poem has 500 lines and in its story telling of its original uses, and then its relegation to the humble office of a meat market, is told in Mr. Reade's inimitable style, with touches of original color, which he knew so well how to apply.

COLUMBIA

The closing exercises of the schools in Columbia will be held on Thursday at 7.45 p. m. in the Congregational church at the Center. The children will endeavor to show some of the things that they have learned during the past eight years. Practically all of the essays are a result of regular class work and study.

R. S. Russell, the supervisor, states that while the local contestants at the contests held in Willimantic did not win, they made an excellent showing. He states that the field meets were a great success in his district, as has been shown by the letters and messages received from parents and friends, and that the teachers deserve the credit, since their careful instruction, interest and co-operation rendered the meets a success. Nearly $1,000 has been saved by the children during the present school year.

Circulars on health essentials for rural school children and the minimum health requirements for rural schools, proposed by the joint committee on health problems in education, by educational and medical associations, have been put in circulation in this school district.

John Demesko, a member of the Windham High school dramatic club, went with the club to South Willington on Friday evening last when they gave the play Come Out of the Kitchen with great success.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Townsend and child of New Haven spent the week end at the lake with Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Brown, it being their intention to return later for a longer period.

NORTH STONINGTON

The Women's society of the Baptist church met on Thursday afternoon of last week for sewing at the home of Mrs. Henry L. Allen. An unexpected feature was a delicious supper prepared and served by Mrs. Allen.

A large number from the Baptist church, both delegates and non-delegates, will attend the meetings of the Stonington Union association at Stonington next week.

The thunder storm of Monday evening was severely felt here. Both electric lights and telephones were put out of commission. A large tree near Wheeler school dormitory was struck by lightning. The barn of Chester S. Maine was struck, but was only slightly damaged.

Mrs. B. L. Longnecker of Bertanna farm entertained Dr. and Mrs. Frank B. Longnecker, Mr. and Mrs. Colin D. Mawer, Miss Shirley Mawer and Master Colin Mawer, all of Brooklyn, N. Y., over Memorial day and the week end.

Mrs. H. M. Pendleton and daughter and Miss Della A. Wheeler of New London were in town last week.

Mrs. E. B. James of Ashaway, R. I., was a caller in the village Tuesday.

SPRING HILL

The time of the regular morning service at the church next Sunday will be devoted to exercises with special music appropriate to Children's Sunday. Prof. Seckerson of the C. A. C. will be present and speak.

The exercises at the Spring Hill cemetery on Memorial day were brief this year, as usual. A goodly number assembled about 3 o'clock and, after singing one verse of The Star Spangled Banner, listened to a very able and interesting address by Prof. Denlinger. The school children then placed flowers on the graves of the old soldiers and the exercises closed by singing America.

The Women's club was entertained on Friday of last week by Mrs. Littleworth. There was a good attendance of members. Refreshments were served.

Those present from out of town at the Memorial day exercises were Walter Cummings and family of Webster, Mass., and Mrs. and Miss Atkins, of Taftville.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson White of Winsted and Byron Hawkins and family of Willimantic were at the Flaherty home on Sunday.

BORROWING TROUBLE IS A BAD PRACTICE.

(Written Specially For The Bulletin)

Said The Old Farmer: "I am an old man. I have had many troubles—and most of them never happened."

Commenting on which one of those breezy western writers remarked that after all there are only two alternatives for those troubles which actually do happen: you either live through them or you don't.

The plain intimation is that, if your trouble kills you, that will end it, while if it doesn't kill you, it will end itself. In either case, you'll be shut of it.

Moral: Why Worry?

I have a neighbor whose name, as it appears on the voting list and tax-tables, is a commonplace one enough. But it ought to be Timid Thomas Troublehunter.

For he is all three. He is as timid as a half-grown rabbit venturing for the first time into the farmer's garden. He is ready to start at his own shadow and jump a yard high at the rustle of a dried leaf. After he has looked up for the night and gone to bed, he gets up again and cautiously goes all over the house once more, fearing that he may have forgotten to bolt this door or spring that catch or wind the kitchen clock.

He's also a veritable Doubting Thomas. He listens to you attentively enough. But all the while you are acutely conscious that he doesn't really believe a word you're saying. He doubts it all. He assumes that you're trying to sell him oil stock, or a frog pond building lot, or a spavined horse. He doubts not only you and all the neighbors, he also doubts himself. After he has "made up his mind," as the phrase goes, he lies awake half the night doubting his own judgment and wondering if he hasn't made a big mistake. If he should find a pot of gold buried in his back pasture, I think she would doubt the yellowness of the metal, and carry it home grumbling that it was probably brass.

And a trouble-hunter? Well, I should say so. He usually has little difficulty in finding it. He has so accustomed himself to the search for it that it bobs up serenely the minute he sticks his nose out from under the morning bed clothes. But, if it doesn't appear of itself, at least before breakfast is over, he will promptly start on the hunt for it. Like the soapy infant in the advertisements, "He won't be happy till he gets it." And of course he can't be happy after he catches it. For that isn't the character of trouble—to make one happy. So there he is. Wretched when he is full of trouble and restless as a fish out of water when he isn't in trouble. Unhappy all the time, hopeless of ever attaining happiness, and himself acting like a wet blanket of gloom on all his family and neighbors.

What are you going to do with or about such a critter?

He's the kind of chap who begins to hear queer rattles the minute he starts his car, and spends the entire journey gloomily wondering whether the gears are stripping or the magneto burning out.

He's the kind who looks up at the sky when those around him are exclaiming over the serene beauty of the day and says, slowly and dully, "Yep, good enough now; but it's a weather-breeder. Rain tomorrow."

He's the kind of farmer who plants his corn expecting it to rot in the ground; expecting the crows to pull up what happens to germinate; expecting the cut-worms to eat down what the crows leave; expecting a late frost to clean things up completely; expecting to have the mumps or the measles just when he will need to re-plow the corn-patch in order to sow buckwheat.

He's the kind who, if all his prognostications of trouble fail, and his corn all comes up, and grows like weeds, and ripens in fine shape, and is husked in A No. 1 condition, still expects the market to slump on him so that he will have to sell it at a loss.

Where the ordinary man, seeing trouble coming, dodges under cover or takes to the tall timber, T. T. T. runs to meet it and takes its buffetings as if he were being paid big wages for acting as whipping-boy for the universe.

He isn't a ready conversationalist but, when he does talk, his theme is always a rehearsal of his own past misfortunes or a prediction of future ills, in whose embrace he will usually include his hearers as well as himself. His speech is a combination of doleful didacticisms, mixed up with woeful warnings, and wet with the unshed tears of a life-long Jeremiad.

I don't recall that I ever knew him to starve to death, though he is annually expecting to. I don't even remember his ever breaking a leg, though he seems to anticipate something of the sort about every day. He never, to my knowledge, fell off a ladder, though he always expects one of the upper rounds to break when he puts fobt on it.

If, in the ordinary course of nature, he does some day happen to stumble coming from the hen-house and break an egg, even as you and I do, he makes the trivial incident the topic for a whole new Book of Lamentations.

If by some perversity of luck he happens not to be a he at all but a she, then heaven help the indoors! When worst comes to worst and T. T. T. becomes absolutely unendurable you can slap him over the mouth or kick him off the front porch. But convention forbids you to treat Mrs. T. T. T. that way. All you can do when the flood-gates of her self-pity are opened is to sit still and gasp for air. Unless you hire someone to set the house afire, so as to afford a reasonable excuse for departing in permissible haste.

I used to "make allowances," as the saying goes, for the queer twists of these trouble-hunters. It was easy to say, "Oh, well, we're not all alike. Probably they were born that way and can't help it." That was when I was younger. As I grow older this comparatively easy begging of the question somehow fails to satisfy me. It is undoubtedly true that we are born with certain varying aptitudes, just as with different shaped noses. But modern surgery can rebuild an undesirable pug nose into the most aristocratic Roman proboscuium ever seen. It's all just a question of time and pains.

D'ye mean to tell me that a mental blemish, if anything short of actual insanity, can't be made amenable to treatment as surely as an ill-formed nose?

One of the bravest soldiers that ever fought, one who was wounded twice in desperate charges, who was three times captured and twice made seemingly impossible escapes, went into the army a shaking, shivering gun-scared coward. When he heard the first shot fired at him by the enemy he fell to the ground, in a quivering huddle of uncontrollable terror. But even while he lay there, trembling and sweating in panic, his brain indignantly reproached his cowardly body for its unworthy weakness. It finally forced him to his feet and back to his place in the ranks. It held him sternly to his duty, no matter how dangerous, during the whole long campaign. He never wholly outgrew that inborn timidity. But he so overmastered and ruled it that no one else ever suspected it.

Now, reacting on that man's career and those of others like him who have molded perfect lives out of inborn and malformations, I can't help wondering if Timid Thomas Troublehunter couldn't make a fair imitation of man out of himself, if he should really attempt the transformation in earnest and with determination. "Every man is as heaven made him, and sometimes a good deal worse," said wise Sancho Panza. But why? Why should his only change of heaven's plan be for the worse? Why isn't it possible to change an inborn tendency for the worse? Why isn't it possible to change an inborn tendency for the better, as well as for the worse? Since we can admittedly make ourselves worse than we were born, why in the name of common fairness can't we make ourselves better? It is manifestly no harder to make a Roman nose out of a natural pug than it would be to make shapeless pug out of a clean-cut Roman. If a natural born coward can transform himself by sheer power of will into a hero and a medal winner, why can't a Thomas Troublehunter change himself into a Jollyboy of Jollyboys' Hall?

The more I think about it, the more I grow convinced that he can, and that the only reason he doesn't is because he hasn't been made to appreciate what an abomination he is to his neighbors and his family.

It is just as true now as two thousand years ago, that no man can, by mere thinking, add a cubit to his stature. But by practice and training, he can add several inches to the girth of his biceps. The weak-eyed, thin-chested, anaemic boy Theodore Roosevelt made himself over into an expert boxer, a successful hunter, a rough rider on western ranches and Cuban hills, a seemingly tireless administrator of a great nation's affairs. And he never failed to poop-pooh those of his admirers who declared he had done something wonderful. The transfomation he had effected was nothing more, he retorted, than any man could do, given sufficient incentive.

The difficulty with both Mr. and Mrs. T. T. T. seems to be that they are perfectly satisfied with themselves just as they are. Instead of recognizing the fact that they are big bores and frequently intolerable nuisances, they apparently regard themselves as valuable members of the community. I am not an expert in penology or reformatory uplifts of any kind. But I wonder what the effect on them would be if their associates and neighbors should suddenly stop cuddling them and give them the coldest sort of a cold shoulder, instead? I wonder if anybody else could possibly make and hold up to them any sort of true mirror which should show them their own deformities in all their native ugliness? If such a thing were possible, wouldn't it be worth trying?

Perhaps I'm wrong in thinking that there are rather more members of the T. T. T. tribe in farm houses than anywhere else. My travels, these latter days, are not extensive and I may fall into error of limiting the world by my own horizon. The things which are nearest to us always look larger than those at a distance. But anyway, there are surely too many of them on the farms within my "hello range."

Sometimes, when two or three of 'em have been bedewing me with their mournfulness, I become so down hearted as to despair of the world and all its inhabitants. One can't help absorbing some tint of blueness from an indigo bath. At other times I get so hot inside that I have to go out back of the barn and kick cobble-stones to reduce the mental temperature. I own up that I haven't, myself, the nerve to give the T. T. T.'s the treatment I am suggesting.

But I honestly do wish some plainer-spoken chap would try it a few times, and report as to results.

For a fully developed trouble-hunter and trouble-finder and trouble-retailer on the farm is about the most depressing and suicide-provoking ailmile on this otherwise fair earth.

And they might be such might good fellows, if they would only turn about-face and front the sun-rise!

WESTERLY

The last scheduled baseball game for the Westerly High school will take place on the field of the new playgrounds off High street Saturday afternoon when bats will be crossed with the South Kingstown High school. In the game played with the South Kingstown High at Wakefield on April 25, Westerly High school players were victorious by the score of 9 to 6.

At the regular conclave of Narragansett Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templar, on Wednesday evening, a committee, consisting of Arthur N. Nash, Harry L. Bolles, Carl E. The committee will report to a special commandery conclave, at which time the details will be decided upon.

Entry of a special appearance has been filed with the clerk of the superior court at Norwich by Attorney John F. Gallagher of Westerly in the suit of the Lorraine Manufacturing company against local 1495, United Exrtile Workers of America et al. The defendants filed a plea in abatement setting forth: 1. That the plaintiff described in the writ is a Rhode Island corporation, and is a foreign corporation and is not therefore an inhabitant of Connecticut. 2. Plaintiff as such foreign corporation has not complied with Section 5746 of the General Statutes of Connecticut in that it has not entered into a recognizance to the defendant with some substantial inhabitant of Connecticut as surety nor has any substantial inhabitant of Connecticut entered into a recognizance to defendants, that the plaintiff shall prosecute its action to effect and answer all damages in case it makes not its plea good.

Piles

Can't Be Cured From the Outside.

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., set at work some years ago to find a real internal Pile remedy. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It's easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood's, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

MARKET WAS DULL

New York, June 7.—Prices in today's stock market yielded moderately to profit taking and short selling, which was most effective in certain of the steel, equipment, oil and motor shares, while reactionary tendency reached to most of the usual leaders. There were several specialties which showed net gains of from 1 to nearly 5 points on the day. Business was again on a considerably reduced scale owing to the absence of any effective public participation.

New lows for the year were established during the session by American Express, International Harvester, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Virginia Carolina Chemical preferred.

Railroad shares enjoyed a brief period of strength on reports that April earnings of class 1 roads showed an averaged net return of 6 1-2 per cent. on tentative property valuation. Just before the close there was a good demand for some of the low-priced carriers, Pere Marquette establishing a new high for the year at 45 3-8.

Heaviness of Studebaker which closed more than a point lower at 113 1-2, extended to most of the other motors and motor accessories. Hayes Wheel, however was strong on reports that the full year's dividend of $6 a share was earned in the first four months and that gross sales and net earnings in May exceeded the turnover of any previous month in the company's history.

Regard breaking crude oil production continues to have a depressing effect on the oil shares although with the exception of Royal Dutch off 1 1-8, today's recessions were held to fractions. Houston oil moved against the current trend, rising 2 points.

Twin City Rapid transit issues showed big gains on the announcement of an increase in the semi-annual dividend. Recent activity of American Smelting is said to be based on the prospect of a $5 dividend rate being established at next week's meeting.

Call money held steady today at 4 1-2 per cent. The demand for time money has improved with brokers bidding 4 1-4 per cent. Commercial paper was more active on increased bank buying, prime names still commanding 5 per cent.

Foreign exchanges were slightly reactionary. Demand sterling was quoted around $4.80 1-8 and French francs around 5.45 cents. German marks again fell below .0023 cents. Spanish exchange dropped 5 points to 16.10 cents, a new low for the year.

TAFTVILLE

The committee appointed by the Taftville Congregational church to make recommendations for a suitable pipe organ for the church were in Mystic Thursday afternoon to see an organ in one of the churches in that place. Last week they visited East Hartford. A meeting of the congregation will be held Sunday following the church services, when the organ committee will make its report and the church will make its decision.

Mr. and Mrs. Terrance Buckley of South B street are spending a short time in New York.

Insurance adjusters were in town Wednesday and Thursday to investigate the damage done by the fire that destroyed the garage of Dr. George M. Thompson with six automobiles early Tuesday morning. This is the second fire in the village within a short time, the garage and automobile owned by Dr. Louis I. Pratte being destroyed a few weeks ago.

A movement is on foot in the village to have a big celebration and horrible parade to usher in the glorious Fourth. Many of the local clubs are planning to combine and make the occasion one of the biggest celebrations in the history of the town. This year it is hoped that there will be several floats in line, as well as the horribles, who hold their parade annually. Three or four of the town's social organizations have already signified their intention of participating in the event.

Miss Noella Boileau of Providence street has resigned her position in the No. 1 weaving department of the Ponemah company.

Union St. Jean Baptiste society met Thursday evening in their rooms in St. Louis hall on Dion street.

COMPENSATION MONEY TO BE DEPOSITED IN BANK

In the workmen's compensation claim of John DeWolfe of Colchester, employe, against F. C. Rawolle of Salem, employer, Commissioner J. J. Donohue has made a finding awarding a lump sum. The hearing was held on the question of permanent injury.

It was determined that DeWolfe had lost the use of 40 per cent. of the right leg, at and above the knee, from an injury on April 14, 1920, amounting to 72.8 weeks.

The lump sum of $538.65 is to be paid to his father, covering 22 weeks from Jan. 8 to June 8, plus compensation for the remainder of the 72.8 weeks, commuted at 4 per cent.

The money is to be deposited in a bank in the name of the claimant so that it may be available in case of need.

GILLETTE APPEAL IS IN HANDS OF JUDGE

The trial of the appeal of William Gillette, the well known actor and playwright, from the board of relief of the town of Lyme in the valuation of his estate in Lyme was completed before Judge George E. Hinman in the superior court here Thursday. Mr. Gillette appeal from the action of the board of assessors in increasing the valuation of his property from $25,000 to $71,630 and later from the board of relief which reduced it to $53,300.

Witnesses for the defense Thursday morning were H. R. Douglas and John J. Ryan, contractors; Robert M. Thompson, Hayden L. Reynolds and J. Lawrence Raymond of Lyme and Richard R. Morgan of New London.

FAREWELL SURPRISE FOR BOZRAHVILLE TEACHER

A farewell surprise party was held Wednesday evening at Fitchville in honor of Miss Llydia Freitag, who has been teacher at the Bozrahville school for the past two years. In behalf of the school children and friends Miss Freitag was presented a beautiful silk umbrella and $10 in gold by John Fields, chairman of the town school committee. Dancing was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

PRIMARY TEACHERS MAKE GIFT TO MISS ROYCE

STATE HOSPITAL INMATE MADE DASH TO ESCAPE

But for the quick wittedness of Frank Ryan, chief driver of the New Haven police department, Lawrence McAllin, would have made good an attempt to escape from police headquarters there Tuesday afternoon where he was held for escaping from the Norwich state hospital. As it was, McAllin was captured after a sensational chase down Court street to Orange, where he bumped into a policeman just turning the corner, and fell into the gutter. Officer Ryan being so close on him that he fell across the fugitive.

McAllin and Richard Farner, another inmate from Norwich, who escaped last week, were both apprehended in New Haven by the local police and turned over to three officers from the state institution for the insane. The transfer of custody had been completed and Capt. William F. Tiernan had warned the men from the asylum that the two fugitives should be handcuffed as they were likely to make a dash for liberty. The asylum officers laughed at the suggestion, the spokesman replying that they were able to take care of the prisoners without handcuffing them.

Hardly had the words been uttered when McAllin, who had turned around during the conversation and perceived that the hallway leading from the entrance to police headquarters was deserted, dashed out.

HOLD-UP MEN TOOK ABE FELTCORN'S WALLET

Abraham Feltcorn of 51 Washington street, who has been visiting his son in New York city, passed over $54 to hold-up men before he got out of the metropolis, according to the story he related to friends when he got back home this week.

Mr. Feltcorn had gone to the Grand Central station and was waiting there for the train to New London. He was sitting alone when four men walked toward him. Before he realized the danger he was in, three of them had taken a position that cloaked him off from any possible observers, while a revolver in the hands of the fourth was pointed straight at him, and he heard a muttered command to hand over his money. He complied without delay, giving up his wallet, which contained $54, leaving him without money enough to get home on. When he had recovered from his fright, he made his way back to his son's home, where his depleted finances were restored enough to enable him to reach Norwich.

AWARDS COMPENSATION IN JEWETT CITY CLAIM

In the workmen's compensation claim of William McVeigh, 7 Church street, Providence, employe, against Aspinock Co., of Jewett City, in which McVeigh made claim for several months disability, Commissioner J. J. Donohue has made an award of four weeks at $7.83, a total of $31.32.

McVeigh, suffered a strained back while at work on July 26, 1922, having been working for the company then but a day and a half, but had worked at another time previously. It was the opinion of the physician attending him that the injury was such as ordinarily caused disability for 2 or 3 weeks, or in some cases 4 or 5 weeks.

Dismissed Compensation Claim

The workmen's compensation claim of Mrs. Angelina Beal of 72 Mechanic street, Westerly, against the Lorraine Mfg. Co., of Pawcatuck has been dismissed and disallowed after a hearing by Commissioner J. J. Donohue of this city.

She made a claim for total disability since Aug. 17, 1921, when she was struck in the leg by a truck while at work. It was determined that the injury was such as should ordinarily cause disability for a week but that the claimant's disability was due to another cause, a varicose ulcer. She had also filed no written claim for compensation within a year as required by the statute.

SAYS BOOTLEGGERS MUST PAY AN INCOME TAX

Complete investigation into the incomes of all known bootleggers in Connecticut for the purpose of determining the amount of income tax they owe to the government will be made by the internal revenue bureau as the result of the recent disclosures in the case of Joseph Piazzo and the report that Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kijada of 95 Spruce street, Hartford, have made $16,000 by selling liquor. Kijada was fined $450 and jailed in the police court this week, and his wife was fined $300.

It is said that bootleggers in this state owe the government nearly $3,000,000 in overdue income tax payments, but great difficulty is encountered in proving the size of their incomes, since they make no declaration of them, as required by law. Collector Robert O. Eaton recently announced that he considered income derived from the sale of liquor as taxable within the law, even if the money was illegally made.

TO HAVE HOUSE CLEANING OF THE NEW YORK CURB MARKET

Bankruptcy of L. L. Winkelman & Co., the Largest Active House Connected With the Market, Has Aroused the Authorities—Attorney General Sherman and Five Deputies Have Begun a Sweeping Investigation Into the Affairs of Several Brokerage Houses Having Membership in the Market.

New York, June 8.— Attorney General Sherman today announced that he and five deputies had begun a sweeping investigation into the affairs of several stock brokerage houses holding membership in the New York curb market. The announcement was made in connection with the bankruptcy today of L. L. Winkelman & Co., largest active house connected with the curb market. Mr. Sherman said he had conferred with officers of the curb market this afternoon.

"Investigation of other members of the curb will go on," he said. "We began our active campaign a week ago. Several members of the consolidated stock exchange also will be investigated.

"We are not empowered by law to make any general investigation into the affairs of the curb market itself but we will take up one firm after another and we will close every one whose books warrant such action.

Mr Sherman revealed that his office had, on receipt of various complaints begun an inquiry into the affairs of the Winkelman firm last Saturday when the books of the firm were subpoenaed.

Failure of the Winkelman company and reported investigation by the curb market of three other houses caused Federal Attorney Hayward and District Attorney Banton earlier in the day to extend their investigation of the recent series of failure into general stock brokerage conditions."

The investigation which already had begun into the affairs of four large failures previous to the Winkelman collapse, it was stated, would be extended to include inquiry into conditions which caused losses of millions of dollars to thousands of investors.

Members of the New York stock exchange with curb market connections, it was learned, have brought pressure to bear for a general house cleaning in the curb market exchange.

Filing of an involuntary petition in bankruptcy against the Winkelman firm in federal court was the climax of an exciting forenoon around the company's offices during which the doors were closed for a time and then reopened only to be closed by announcement of the failure.

Charles L. Livingston was appointed receiver under a bond of $50,000. It was announced by George Gordon Battle, retained as counsel for the bankrupts, that a hearing would be held tomorrow morning before Federal Judge Bondy to determine whether the books of the firms are to be retained by the bankrupts or whether they are to go to the receiver. He emphatically denied a report that some of the firm's books had been removed from the office after announcement of the failure.

Liabilities of the firm were unofficially estimated at $1,800,000 and assets at $1,500,000. It was intimated, however, that the company was doing $5,000,000 worth of business with 4,000 customers. Since the failure and suspension from the curb last week of Jones and Baker, it was the largest curb stock brokerage house. It had offices in Chicago, Philadelphia, Akron, Cleveland, Zanesville, Marietta and Findlay, Ohio; Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Milwaukee, Parkersburg, W. Va., Greensburg and Uniontown, Pa.

Members are L. L. Winkleman and A. M. Nicholson, former member of the consolidated exchange who resigned several months ago after an investigation of his affairs had been instituted by the board of governors.

Mr. Banton disclosed that Winkleman and Nicholson formerly had been in the employ of Charles A. Stoneham, part owner of the New York Giants, who formerly operated the brokerage house under the name of Charles A. Stoneham and Co.

Winkelman was the curb representative when the market was out of doors in Broad street and Nicholson was a correspondent and market letter writer, it was stated.

Stoneham recently was involved in the $4,000,000 crash of E. M. Fuller and Company, admitting at a referee's hearing that he had loaned the firm $197,000 shortly before the crash, at the request of Thomas F. Foley, former sheriff of New York county.

The Winkelman firm, which became a member of the curb market in 1916, specialized in curb oil stocks and Standard Oil securities. One of its most successful promotions was Salt Creek Producers' Association, which operates Wyoming oil fields. The firm is understood to have done a large business in Standard Oil shares and to have had a large clientele in the middle west.

After announcement of the failure, a crowd of more than 500 persons gathered outside the company's offices and several policemen were assigned to the task of clearing the entrance to the building which was occupied entirely by the defunct concern. One woman who had come to close her account sobbed hysterically when she was told of the crash. Two others sat down on the curb, declaring they would wait until the doors of the office opened. They were escorted away by policemen.

MONTHLY EXPENSE $200,000 WITH AN INCOME OF $75,500

New York, June 8.—Testimony that the overhead expense of S. S. Rushay & Co., Consolidated Stock Exchange member, for several months before it failed last year was $200,000 a month with income of approximately $75,500, was given at a bankruptcy hearing before Referee Harold P. Coffin, by Herman J. Hayon, accountant today. Half of the expense money went, in payment of salaries, he testified.

Julian Pressenter, a brother-in-law of Eugene Greenhut, a partner in the Rushay firm, admitted during examination he had received a $5,600 check from the concern a few hours before its failure was announced. J. D. Procter, who said he had been advertising and publicity man for the company, testified he had received $400 a week salary.

Bertil Rushay, a partner, refused to answer questions regarding the Rushay contribution of $5,000 to the Consolidated Exchange's fund for the relief of members in financial difficulties, on the ground that it might incriminate him.

W. S. Silkworth, president of the Consolidated Stock Exchange, will resign from his office next Monday when the new board of governors takes office, it was said today. He will be succeeded by Lawrence Tweedy, first vice president.

PROCEEDINGS IN THE CROKER WILL CONTEST

Dublin, June 8 (By the A. P.).—The conclusion of the direct examination of Richard Croker, Jr., in his suit to break the will of his father, former Tammany Hall chieftain, was aimed at satisfying the jury that he had given complete explanations of all his financial transaction with his father and that, as far as litigation in America had been completed, the results were in his favor.

His cross-examination by Patrick Lynch, counsel for Mrs. Bula Croker, wife of the testator, connected him with an inquiry conducted by detectives into the history of Bula. It was shown that through him were discovered the witnesses from Northampton, Mass., who are alleged to have identified Mrs. Bula Croker as the wife of Guy R. Marone. It was shown that he was paying all the expenses of these witnesses across the Atlantic and in Ireland on a first class scale, besides compensating them for loss of business during their absence from Northampton.

The testimony also developed that the witness tried to postpone Bula's marriage to his father and to induce the latter to investigate charges anonymously received over the telephone, that Bula was well known on Broadway. Counsel vainly endeavored to get the witness to specify exactly what "well known on Broadway" meant.

It required some questioning before the witness would commit himself to any declaration as to Bula's character but he finally said he believed she was not a proper person to become the wife of his father.

An attempt to prove an error in the identification of Mrs. Croker by the Northampton witnesses was indicated by counsel's questions, in which the name was introduced of an Indian girl, Virginia Florrie, a student nurse in a New Jersey hospital, who is said to have married Marone.

MONTAGNES OMPLETE SENTENCE FOR BOOTLEGGING

Newark, N. J., June 8.—Crouched in the rear seat of a big touring car, enclosed with side curtains, the celluloid panels of which had been soaped so that no one could see in, William, Morgan and Rene Montagne made their exit from the Essex county jail here today when released after serving four months for bootlegging.

A group of newspapermen waiting outside the jail saw two attendants hurriedly pus hopen the doors of the garage adjoining the jail. An instant later a big blue auto carrying the Montagnes rolled out rapidly, turned the corner and sped off in the direction of New York.

The fourth brother, Montague, made a similar exit when he was released from the same jail two months ago. He did out unnoticed in a small coupe.

The four Montagnes, wealthy New Yorkers, were found guilty in New York on charges of bootlegging and were sentenced to terms in the prison here.

MODERN BUILDING MAY REPLACE TAMMANY HALL

New York, June 8.—Tammany Hall, in East Fourteenth street, generally known as "The Wigwam," may soon give way to a modern business building, it was learned tonight.

The younger members of the organization desire a larger and more modern home uptown and several leading realty operators have made bids for the old brick building which has played such a prominent part in the political life of the metropolis.

The site of the building was purchased in 1867 for $30,000.

FINDS MANY FLAWS IN PRODUCTION OF PICTURES

New York, June 8.—Moving picture productions are made by too many people, directed by too many people, cut, edited and supervised by too many people, and consequently are jumbled, and ill arranged as a whole, Minor Rice, theatre guild dramatic, told the International Motion Picture congress today.

"Nothing so far has indicated," he said, "that the motion picture will ever be regarded as an art. Suppose a dramatic production were directed in the movie fashion. Take one of Bernard Shaw's plays by the theatre guild. Instead of being acted exactly in accordance with the author's directions, it would be done this way:

"The play would be written as a short story and sold to a magazine. The guild would then purchase the story for a flat sum. Dramatists would make it over for the stage in synopsis. This would be gone over by a situation xpert. Not a director and technical manager would get hold of it, and then a humorist with some funny lines.

"When it finally appeared it would be announced this way: 'The Theatre Guild presents Robert Milton's production of the Devil's Disciple, adapted by Arthur Richmond,' from the original story by Bernard Shaw, play by Eugene Walter, supervised by Theresa Helburn and witticisms by Franklin P. Adams.'

"This is the way things are done in the movies, and no further explanation of their present state is needed."

Mr. Rice's statements were roundly applauded by the 200 writers present. A general discussion followed of what was wrong with the movies, how closely the writers' directions should be followed in filming, and what method of cooperation would best facilitate the production of original work.

The speakers for the most part agreed that the writer should have more freedom, and that his directions should be followed more closely.

Will H. Hays spoke from the producer's point of view, and asked that the writers take into consideration the fact that the industry was very young, and that up to this time a great deal of effort had been required to overcome technical difficulties. He predicted, however, that from now on more attention would be paid to the artistic side of the business.

At a banquet tonight a $10,000 annual prize for the best motion picture was offered by Adolph Zukor, president of the Famous Players-Lasky corporation.

The prize will be given for the best story produced upon the screen and exhibited publicly in a theatre during each year, to begin September 1. TO DEFER CONFERENCE ON PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT

Washington, June 8.—The conference of state governors which the presidents intends to call for a discussion of prohibition enforcement may be postponed until next fall. At the White House today it was said that the conference was "somewhat up in the air" and that a definite announcement would be forthcoming next week.

Although President Harding had hoped to have the governors meet here before he leaves on his trip to Alaska, the present sessions of some state legislatures, officials said today, might force a postponement of the conference at least until after the president returns to Washington.

Some of the president's advisers are known to favor a postponement of the conference until fall, these officials believing that prohibition enforcement is working out satisfactorily, and that increased co-operation of state officials might be secured by correspondence as well as at a personal conference.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE OF LAKE ERIE SAILORS

Erie, Pa., June 8.—Four Great Lakes sailors owe their lives today to a rock, which, jutting up out of Lake Erie at Eight Mile creek, east of this city, caught the towline between two helpless barges being buffeted in a storm and kept them from being dashed to death upon the shore.

The barges—215 and 214—in tow of the steam barge Rensselaer, engaged in the sulphur trade between New York and Cleveland, were set adrift in one of the worst June storms in years early this morning. The towline parted just out of Erie harbor and Captain W. H. McQuivey of Buffalo put into port here when he was unable to locate the barges in the storm. After drifting for two hours the towline suddenly caught on the rock, preventing the barges from being pounded to pieces. Shortly after noon today the men were discovered and were taken off by the Erie coast guard crew, which managed to shoot a line to them.

PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT COSTLY IN NEW YORK STATE

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
by DAVID CORY

HELPED BY THE EAGLE.

You remember in the last story we left Uncle Lucky and Little Jack Rabbit calling to the toll keeper to come out of his little house and open the gate.

Well, pretty soon, a gray haired old beaver opened the door and asked: "What do you want?"

"We want to get across," said Uncle Lucky.

"My bridge is broken," said the beaver and he pointed to a sign which read: "Bridge out of order. No crossing."

"Never saw the sign," answered Uncle Lucky, "pray excuse us," and, with a bow, the old gentleman rabbit took off his old wedding stovepipe hat.

"If you take the road through the wood, you'll come to the old mill dam. Maybe you can run the Luckymobile over it," suggested the beaver.

So the two little rabbits turned into the wood, but oh dear me, when they came to the mill dam by and by, the top was so narrow that the Luckymobile wheels came right to the edge.

"Pretty dangerous," said Uncle Lucky, "if the Luckymobile should skid we'd fall into the river."

"Let's try, anyway," said the daring little bunny, and steering the Luckymobile carefully on to the dam, he started across, but Oh dear me, again, when they reached the middle there was a long opening with a little narrow sliding on the upper side to let the water flow out. Of course, the Luckymobile couldn't go forward, so there they were right in the middle of the river.

Just then who should come along but a big kind eagle and seeing what a fix the two little rabbits were in, picked up the Luckymobile and carried it safely over to the land.

"Now, my little friends, you are all right," he said.

"And so are you," said Uncle Lucky:

"You are a friend in need,
A mighty fine big bird,
You are a king of mighty wing,
As I have often heard."

"Thank you very much," said the Eagle, "that's a fine song," and away he flew to the mountain to tell his wife all about what had happened.

After that the two little rabbits started once more for home and before very long they came in sight of Uncle Lucky's house. There on the front lawn was the Old Rooster playing croquet with Little Miss Sparrow, who made her nest every year under the eaves of the front porch, but as soon as he caught sight of the Luckymobile he ran into the barn and began sweeping the cobwebs off the wall with his feather duster tail and the next time you shall hear what happened after that.

Norma Talmadge Plays Within the Law at the Broadway Theatre

Norma Talmadge's screen version of Bayard Veiller's "Within the Law," the most successful play in stage history is the First National feature production de luxe that begins a four day engagement at the Broadway theatre tomorrow.

The picture, which was made under the direction of Frank Lloyd, is described as being by far the most dramatic role of the kind that Miss Talmadge has yet done for the screen. Surrounded by a cast of unusual distinction she portrays the stellar role of Mary Turner, made famous on the stage by Jane Cowl.

The part gives Miss Talmadge an extraordinary chance to demonstrate her exceptional ability as an emotional actress.

The heroine is a shop girl who is sent to prison for a theft she did not commit. In demanding that she get the limit, Edward Gilder, department store owner, explains that he wants to make an example of Mary. On her release, vowing vengeance, she joins a gang of blackmailers on condition that she operate only "within the law." Her specialty is breach of promise suits. How she takes advantage of an opportunity that presents itself when she meets Dick Gilder, son of her arch enemy, becomes involved in an extraordinary romance and a police frame-up, squares herself with the world and finally finds true happiness, is unfolded vividly on the screen.

Lloyd Hamilton's latest comedy riot, UnEasy Feet, and a Pathe news will complete the bill.

Charles Ray at the Grand Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Charles Ray is said to do the greatest acting of his entire career in The Girl I Loved, his second United Artists production, which comes to the Grand theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The work of the star is greatly added to by the fact that The Girl I Loved is the story of the personal love affair of the poet James Whitcomb Riley, as related in his poem of that title.

The picture is the quintessence of romance, the tale of two responsive hearts that beat for a girl—one of them fiercely

WEST ENDS OF BRIDGEPORT WILL BE THE ATTRACTION HERE ON SUNDAY

One of the best baseball attractions of the season is offered the fans on Sunday when the East Ends of Bridgeport clash with the Newich club at the Fairgrounds. There will be a battle between a veteran of the Eastern league and one of the present day hurlers of that organization. Freddie Heiger of New London, who for several years pitched for the old New London team in the Eastern league and later with the Pittsfield Millies and Albany, will oppose one of three of the Bridgeport Eastern league hurlers. The West Ends will have either Cleary, Wilson or Brown in the box with O'Connell on the receiving end.

The West Ends came here last season and started the year with a close one to eight game, in fact one of the best games of the season. Liptac, who pitched the game last year, allowed only two hits. Of last year's team, there will be Hammell at second. Bowden at short, Burke in left and O'Connell behind the bat. It was this first combination of three that secured all the hits off Canavan in last year's game. The team has been strengthened to a considerable extent with hitters and Heiger will have to extend himself to hold them down.

The local lineup will be the same as on Memorial Day with Heiger and Belair as the battery and Davis of the Sub Base as a reserve pitcher. Eddie Hart will be on first, Massey will be at second and with Shorty Faultner at short the combination will be ample protection for the central section of the diamond. Nap Liberty of Jewett City will be at third. In the outfield will be Johnny Heiger, an old Eastern leaguer, who will play left, Don Edgar of South Manchester will be in center and Jack Clabby will be in right. Clabby has been suffering with a sore foot but will be in shape to play on Sunday.

Ideal weather has been promised by the forecaster and with a good day there should be a large attendance at the game.

WHITE SOX HIT YANKEE PITCHERS HARD

New York, June 8—The Chicago White Sox hit three New York pitchers for thirteen hits totalling twenty-one bases and made it two out of three from the American league champions by a score of 7 to 3. Cvengros a young lefthander, who was south last spring with the New York Nationals, pitched well for Chicago after the early innings. Two of New York's runs resulted from Ruth's 11th homer of the season, made in the third inning with Dugan on base. After that Cvengros struck out Ruth twice. Schalk and Hooper hit home runs for Chicago. Mostil hit a double and two singles and drew two bases on balls in five times at bat. The score:

HOMERS FIGURE IN PIRATES WIN OVER GIANTS

Pittsburgh, June 8—Circuit clouts by Russel and Traynor figured largely in Pittsburgh's 9 to 6 victory over New York today. Russell's hit was over the right field wall in the third inning when two runners were on. Traynor's homer to left center sent Russell in ahead of him and tied the score in the fifth. Cooper was driven from the box in the fourth when the Giants scored five runs on four hits and two passes. Morrison relieved him and checked the rally. In the sixth, after Young had led off with a triple, Morrison struck out Kelly, O'Connell and Snyder in succession. The score:

YALE FRESHMAN RACE WILL BE ROWED

Gales Ferry, June 8.—Jubilation spread over the Yale crew quarters tonight when it was learned that the freshman race with Harvard on June 22 would not be cancelled as had been threatened by the Yale freshman rules committee because of the disturbance in New Haven Monday night in which freshmen and sophomores participated. The freshman crew had its regular practice today

The varsity went out at 6 o'clock tonight and rowed down to the three mile mark and back without stopping. The junior varsity rowed a total of seven miles while the freshmen had several racing starts and covered about five miles. The combination crew raced over the two miles course and then rowed upstream for three miles.

The light drizzle this afternoon turned to a heavy rain and interfered somewhat with practice.

J. M. Goetchius and E. F. Blagdon, of the rowing committee arrived here today and will remain over the week end for a conference with the coaches.

ACADEMY CLOSES SEASON WITH WEST WARWICK

Although it got started rather late in the season the Academy is running now in a satisfactory manner. In both his games this week with Windham and Lyman the locals have shown that they know some baseball after all. Segal is slated to start today and after his recent performances he should start off with a big advantage over the West Warwick boys of whom all we can say is to know very much. Mileski is the regular battery mate and these two should work together fine. Burke will be on first and either Matheson or Tomlori will cover the keystone sack. Burrows and McNamara are down for short and third, respectively while Wm. Kilroy and Spalding will cover the outer field. This makes up the best combination formed at the local school this year and it should give the lower Island boys a good tussle for the game although the inhabitants of the smaller point may prove the dark horses of the occasion.

STERLING PLAYS AT TAFTVILLE TODAY

The Taftville A. A. baseball tossers will play the fast Sterling team this afternoon on the Providence street grounds. The visitors will use a battery consisting of Bronson and Foland, just over from the coast. The players and local fans say that this combination, as his battery and the same team that defeated the New London Independents last Saturday also some wallops by the batboys of the League. It must be remembered that the New London team was the champions last year. Clabby, who has a bad leg will coach on first, and Dugas will pass along the word of encouragement at third and as Sterling has already taken a fall out of Taftville, the local boys would like to see the fans begin to turn out as in the olden days and give their moral and financial support to the team. Baseball in this vicinity is a losing proposition. Traveling expenses for visiting teams, batteries, umpires and caretakers of the grounds, as well as other bills must be paid.

MANY UPSETS IN AMATEUUR GOLF TOURNEY

Mt. Vernon, N. Y., June 7—The defeat of former metropolitan titleholders today was among the upsets that marked the first round of match play for the metropolitan amateur championship at the Siwanoy Golf club.

Oswald Kirkby, of the Knickerbocker country club, three times champion, was eliminated by F. H. Gates, Montclair, 5 and 4; and D. E. Sawyer of Pelham, 1920 champion, was put out of one of the tournament favorites, Frank Dyer, Upper Montclair, 5 and 4.

Other surprises were the defeat of John G. Anderson of Grassy Sprain, by Roy Webb, of Englewood, the medalist, 3 and 2 and the elimination of Alex. Armour, Scotch star, by R. A. Jones, Jr., of Westchester Hills, 4 and 2.

Favorites to come through included Gardiner White, Nassua, 1921 champion, who defeated A. F. Polnsette, public links player, 6 and 4; and W. M. Reekie, Upper Montclair, who put out J. S. Worthington, Siwanoy veteran, 3 and 2.

MISS COLLETT IS PLAYING WONDERFUL GOLF

Philadelphia, June 8—Miss Glenna Collett, national golf champion, representing Boston, continued her exhibitions of dazzling golf today, but her team-mates were forced out of the competition for the Griscom cup when they lost eleven out of fifteen matches to Philadelphia.

The champion's victory over Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow, Philadelphia's leading player, 6 and 4 was the feature of today's play. Mrs. Barlow had Miss Collett 1 up on the sixth hole but the latter evened the count on the seventh and won out handily. Miss Collett's play, both in the eastern golf association championship, which began Monday and in the cup tourney, has been of a high order, bordering at times on the sensational.

Philadelphia will start tomorrow against New York one match to the good. To win the cup, which New York captured last year, Philadelphia must win ten of the fifteen matches, while New York must take eleven before it will be awarded the trophy.

FAVORITES ENTERED IN BELMONT TURF CLASSIC

New York, June 8—Winners of nearly all the important three-year old events of the early racing season are entered tomorrow for the fifty-fifth running of the classic Belmont stakes at Belmont park.

Both Zev, the Kentucky derby winner and Bud Lerner probably will run in the Rancocas stable colors. Vigil, the Preakness victor, August Belmont's messenger, J. S. Cosden's Martingale and Chickvale and Rialto from the Whitney-Greentree stables are other stars entered.

The record for the mile and three furlong distance of the Belmont, 2 minutes 14 1-4 seconds, was set by Man O'War in 1920.

Because of its distance the Belmont is considered among horsemen one of the most conclusive trials for three-year-olds in America.

MARTIN TEAM TO PLAY WILLIMANTIC TEAM SUNDAY

The J. B. Martin team will stack up against the fast West End team of Willimantic at the new diamond on Sunday afternoon. The West End club is one of the fastest organizations playing baseball in the Thread City this season and out of the games played so far this season the West Ends have suffered only one defeat and that by a close score. The West Ends will have Mathewson or Kegler in the box with Scribner on the receiving end. The Velvetmakers will depend on Lemieux to do the burden of the pitching with Pilling doing the backstop work. The battery has been going strong this season and is expected to be able to hold the heavy hitters of the Thread City team down. The game will be called at three o'clock.

HARVARD CREWS HAVE LIGHT WORKOUT

Red Top, Conn., June 8.—Dreary skies kept the four Harvard crews in training here indoors most of the day although regular practice was held in the morning and late afternoon.

Coach Muller sent the first and second varsities and the combination crew to the 2 mile mark rowing 28 strokes to the minute, the varsity having a slight lead at the finish. The freshman crew was given the same amount of work under Coach Haines. The three Harvard launches followed the practice.

To relieve the monotony of camp, the student waiters have organized an eight and are being coached by Bill Haines. John Richardson and Dr. W. E. Ladd of the rowing committee arrived here this afternoon.

Third Game in Boston

Boston, June 8—If a third game is necessary to decide the annual Harvard-Yale baseball series it will be played in Boston on June 23, probably on Braves field. This has been decided upon because the Yankee stadium in New York, where the tentative game had been scheduled, was found to be rented for other purposes on that day.

JAIL HILL A. C. TAKES ERRATIC GAME FROM FARRELL'S SWANEES

In a very slow game at the Fairgrounds last evening the Swanees dropped another game to the Jail Hill A. C., by the score of 7 to 5. The features of the game were several arguments and many wordy battles, and a steal of second with the bases full. This was the worst demonstration of lack of common sense seen at the game last evening although there were some that almost equaled this in stupidity.

During the first inning or two both teams gave promise to give each other a good battle for the game but the last of the second frame started the game toward the class of those which do not hold the interest of the spectators

After the Swanees had gained two runs in the first of the second frame on an error by M. Shea, a double by Mileski and a single by Swanton. Jail Hill came back strong in the last half of the same inning, scoring four runs on errors of McGowan and Lukoski, a single by Weisner, two bases on balls and a single of Rush's together with a passed ball. It was in this inning that the steal of second with the bases full occurred.

Jail Hill collected three more in the third on two doubles a single and a dropped third strike. This ended Jail Hill's scoring since the game was called at the end of the fifth an account of rain and darkness.

The Swanees bade a fine bid for the game in the first of the fifth, their last chance at bat, and would have won if they had used their heads instead of their feet. Lukoski, the first man up that inning singled, went to second on a free pass to Tennan, and scored together with Tennan on a hard batted ball. They scored again on a base on balls, two stolen bases and a double by Hoffman. The Swanees lost the game right here for their loss was the direct result of carelessness on the bases. The game was called at the end of this frame The score:

TILDEN LEADS ATTACK AGAINST BOSTON TEAM

Forest Hills, N. Y., June 8.—(By the A. P.)—Led by William T. Tilden, 2nd., national champion, Philadelphia's crack tennis team overwhelmed Boston today in the opening round of competition for the Church cup, emblematic of the inter-city championship, on the turf courts of the West Side Tennis club.

The Quakers earned the right to oppose New York, the cup holding team, tomorrow in the title round by capturing eight out of nine matches from the Massachusetts squad. They won five out of six singles contests and made a clean sweep of the doubles encounters.

PROFS NOSE OUT BRASSCOS IN CLOSE GAME

New Haven, June 8—New Haven nosed out Waterbury here this afternoon, 3 to 2, in a good game, despite the heavy field. Good pitching prevailed, only 11 hits being made. Etten, relieving Carrigan in the fourth inning turned in a fine exhibition. In that frame he retired the side on strikes with the bases full. Score by innings:

CHAPIN AND MORSE MEET IN FINALS

New Haven, June 8.—A. H. Chapin, Jr., Springfield, Mass., and J. B. Morse, Hartford, will be singles finalists in the state tennis championship tournament as a result of the semi-final matches today. Morse defeated C. S. Hall, Lawn club, and G. M. Wheeler, Yale, while Chapin won his match with Percy L. Knyaston, Rockville Center, N. Y.

The semi-finals in the doubles play were reached today, one match being uncompleted because of rain.

ASHLAND TEAM DISBANDS; LACK OF PATRONAGE

Hal Chase, manager of the Ashland baseball team, stated Friday morning that his team would not play Sunday afternoon at Ashland Park and also said that the team has been temporarily disbanded. Mr. Chase feels that he cannot continue Sunday baseball on account of the small percentage of fans that come to witness the games. The two previous games the attendance was very slim.

Saints Win From Greeneville

The St. Patrick's baseball team defeated Greeneville on the Academy Campus Friday afternoon to the tune of 9 to 4. It was easily the best league game so far. The ability of St. Patrick's to hit when hits were needed was the feature. Hammell, the St. Patrick's midget left fielder was the star at bat getting two hits out of four times up. The score by innings:

St. Patricks ..... 0 4 0 0 5 0 x—9

BUNDLE DAY.

Two days have been allotted for Bundle day in this city this year and through the Campfire Girls such material as is provided will be forwarded to those in the near east who can make good use of it.

Bundle day always offers a grand good opportunity for clearing out the clothes closets and the attics. Every now and then in most every household there is put aside one thing or another in recognition of the fact that it is too good to be thrown away and that sooner or later the chance will develop to place it where it will do somebody some good.

Without presenting individual cases Bundle day offers the very opportunity that many have been waiting for to get rid of clothing that has been discarded for one reason or another but which is yet serviceable.

The near east problem is still a big one. There are those who are suffering from lack of clothing and who have little if any means of supplying their needs. Great has been the relief afforded by the contributions on Bundle day in previous years and that same excellent service can be continued with gratifying results at this time. It will mean the utilization of material that is now doing no one any good and in view of the destitution that has existed and that which still prevails there can be no question of the need for all that can be contributed in this manner to the comfort and happiness of refugees and persecuted.

Norwich has not been disposed to turn a deaf ear to the cries of distress. It has donated liberally in all causes that have been directed toward the relief of humanity and there are good reasons for believing that it will at this time display the same generous disposition. It is a chance to make your old clothes go far and do much good.

GERMANY'S NEW OFFER.

By its new proposition to the allied nations Germany has recognized the fact that its previous offers have been in vain. It endeavors to answer those points on which all the allies seemed to agree in response to the previous offer but it doesn't display a mood that is any more conciliatory toward France and it does not make any suggestion for doing away with the Ruhr problem. In fact it doesn't give consideration to, or at least doesn't display any evidence of it if it does, the part which France can be expected to play in connection with action on the offer.

Germany has made an offer which deals with a moratorium until 1927 and annual payments thereafter and promises to mortgage its railroad system and the industries of the country that such promises may be fulfilled. It makes the important acknowledgment of its liability to reparation, but it desires to get around the table and talk the matter over instead of writing notes and it is willing that the determination of what Germany can pay should be left to a commission of experts, to whom it is willing to throw open its books.

By the stand which it is taking at this time Germany displays an attitude that would get far different consideration were it a fact that the allies had been given reason in the past for putting reliance on its promises. It has failed to eliminate the distrust. It is believed that Germany is anxious to get an adjustment of the Ruhr situation without actually coming out and saying so, and that it is ready to promise most anything to such an end. But there is not going to be overlooked the need of a close scrutiny of the promises and the guarantees which it holds out. Indications are that it has made a better impression by this offer but certain of the expressions that have been made do not indicate that that means the restoration of implicit faith in the German government.

THE REVENUE DROP.

Is there more than one answer to the figures which have been presented by the internal revenue department which shows that there were but 3½ persons reporting a yearly income of over a million dollars in 1921?

This means a decided decrease from 1916 when the largest number was reported and even a substantial reduction from 1918 when there were 67 in that list, each year showing a smaller number. And with the decrease in the number of million dollar incomes reported for taxation there was likewise a drop of over a half million in the number of tax returns from 1920 to 1921, meaning a decrease of more than a third of a billion in taxes paid.

There have been revisions of the income tax which may account for some of this loss, and there are those who were making millions during the war period who are not doing so at the present time, but it is not possible to disregard the view of the revenue bureau when it interprets this falling off in taxable incomes to the fact that people are putting their money into tax free securities for the very purpose of avoiding the income tax.

There is of course more reason why the individual with a million dollar income should put his money into such securities for the rate of taxation on such an income is extremely heavy. They prefer to take a smaller rate of interest on their investments and escape the income tax thereon than to take the larger interest in other fields and turn the bulk of it over to Uncle Sam.

It is upon that very point that stress has been laid in the efforts which have been made to bring about a reduction in the surtaxes. It is likewise one of the reasons why so much has been said against the tax free securities. A study of the operation of the present taxation gives food for thought in connection with further efforts in this direction.

MAPLEWOOD EXTENSION.

Ever since the location of Maplewood cemetery at a point in the town beyond the service of the local trolley system there has been a consistent demand for the extension of the rails to cover the short distance between the present West side terminal and the cemetery.

Time and again it has been pointed out that public convenience calls for the extension of this line. Invariably it has been maintained that the patronage would be so small as to make the necessary outlay for construction inadvisable. But it is many years now since the cemetery was opened and it is there that the majority of the burials are now taking place. The number of those interested in the cemetery has greatly increased. Each week-end finds many visiting the cemetery and being obliged to walk the distance between the end of the car line and the burying ground, while there are many who do it daily.

That this number would be largely increased if the cars ran to the cemetery is firmly believed, and it is to be remembered that not only are there those who would appreciate such an opportunity of getting to that cemetery but there are others who would appreciate such help in getting to the West Plains cemetery just a short distance beyond, to say nothing of the many residents along the line of travel and beyond.

This is an extension the need of which has greatly increased in the past few years.

FEEDING RUSSIA.

For two years supplies have been poured from this country into Russia in order to deal with the starvation conditions that existed there. Do all that we could it was impossible to prevent a large loss of life but it can be appreciated that the number sacrificed would have been much greater had there not come the aid that was put forth from this country. The American relief administration has made an excellent record and no country should be more grateful for the service rendered than Russia, although its efforts have not by any means been confined thereto.

Millions upon millions in supplies have been forwarded for the relief of the distressed and the even more important service of seeing that it was distributed where it was most needed has been admirably directed. It is hard to understand the conditions that have prevailed or the handicaps that have had to be overcome by those administering the relief but there cannot fail to be full appreciation of the help given when it is stated that the supplies amounted to nearly a million tons in weight, requiring 237 ships and were used for the relief of 11,000,000 people. Seven million dollars worth of medical supplies distributed among more than 4700 hospitals did much to carry on the struggle against disease.

Hopes had been entertained that the relief work in Russia could have been terminated some time ago. Harvests have been improving and had the soviet government devoted its crops to the maintenance of its people greater relief could have been administered right at home. Russia, however, chose to leave the relief of its starving to the tender treatment of outsiders while it exported its grain. They could not be deserted but it is gratifying that conditions are now such that the relief work can cease with the end of the harvest season, or at least concentrate their efforts in other fields.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Mary isn't the only one who is being asked these days as to the progress of the home garden.

The man on the corner says: If there was never a spring like this spring, who's to blame for it?

The abolition of the auto speedway at Indianapolis is being urged. It has already been the cause of many funerals.

Last year's list of 31 who had incomes of a million or better doesn't include all those who have longed for that distinction.

Something more for Henry to do is to come to the relief of Detroit where people are living in tents because of the housing shortage.

Cloudy and threatening days have their effect upon the auto traffic, but the accident lists are too large whether it's rain or shine.

We have reached that season of the year when many persons have new letters added to their names and others get new names entirely.

Norwich will be happy to welcome back those sons who are now located in the metropolis. It should prove a delightful old home week-end.

Even though the Central New England railroad isn't to be abandoned the talk of it may increase the appreciation of the services it furnishes.

Our narrow streets are fast getting so that there is room for traffic both ways only in the center, because of the many cars parked along both sides.

Berlin is said to be ready to promise anything to get the Ruhr. What it needs to do in the first place is to make it clear that its promises mean something.

If Massachusetts pays $100,000,000 a year for anthracite it would be fit to be tied if it knew what the nonburnable rock and real estate from Pennsylvania costs it.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

We are treading the edge of the season in which with much dignity and ceremony diplomas will be given and received. It is doubtless true that the mere reception of a diploma will have little to do in putting one at the head of a great business concern or making him president of a large university. But it is an acknowledgment in tangible form that the recipient, whether a graduate of the public schools or the college, has done satisfactorily the prescribed work, and that certainly means no small amount of hard work. The graduate is entitled to this recognition and also to some degree of self-congratulation that his student life has not been a failure. It goes, of course, without saying that he has not always improved every opportunity. For that matter, who has? There are just as many lapses from full endeavor outside of college as in. Let us give just honor to the boys and girls on commencement day.

The great deeds of life are not generally, if ever, the most showy. And by the word "great" I mean those that render the most useful service to mankind. When Katmai or Etna send forth their subterranean contents of smoke, fire and ashes, nothing is more spectacular and perfectly useless—as far as we know. Volcanic eruptions jar the ear also within the radius of many miles. But great undertakings that render mankind a notable service do not take kindly to this self-advertising scheme. In other words they are not noisy because they are useful. The more noise a deed carries with it, whether on the part of things or men, usually the less important it is. A good illustration of a real piece of constructive work very quietly done and yet so colossal as to stagger the imagination was the Panama canal, undertaken by our government within the last twenty years. It shows us that the most efficient things are noiseless.

To those who are acquainted with vital statistics the statement will not be startling, and to those who are not acquainted the statement may not be startling, but it ought to be "that at the present birthrate of their graduates our colleges will all be empty within 200 years unless we can draw students from other and probably less brainy sections of the people than those from which the present-day students are coming." This is the careful remark of one of the most qualified men in this country to express himself on the question. I know what the reader will say, i. e., some readers. Oh, I should worry over what may happen in the next 200 years. No, it would do no good to worry over it, but it would be prudent to so act that the prediction would not be fulfilled. If the undesirables outpopulate the desirables we know what is bound to happen.

One could easily find material enough to write a sizable volume on The Energy of the Silent Forces of Nature. This season of the year shows us how silently and yet how efficiently nature functions. Sometimes in the summer season the hailstones break out all the panes of glass on the windward side of a building, and we think of the destructive power, but the energy required to change one drop of moisture into the vegetable fiber of a blade of grass is a thousand times more potent, but it is inaudible. Prof. Tyndall speaks of the silent frost that sends the mighty stone avalanche down the steep sides of the Alps, carrying destruction in its pathway, but he says "to convert one drop of water into steam requires an energy sufficient to gather up the largest stone avalanche and pitch it to twice the height from which it fell." Think of the amount of moisture that is lifted up and changed into vegetable growth at this season.

One can understand the tendency to exaggerate present weather conditions out of a love for the spectacular and extraordinary. It is the same love of the wonderful that tempts the old salt to spin yarns that more than border on the incredible. It is the same love of the curious that exults over the biggest fish ever caught in a given brook or pond, or the crookedest stick that nature in her wildest freak ever produced. If a thing happens a little out of the ordinary, the popular tendency is to twist it into the most extraordinary thing of its kind that ever happened. It is apt to be the hottest day or the coldest that was ever known on a given date; it is the wettest or the dryest season since 1850 or 1840 the year in which dear old grandfather was married. Prof. Loomis, Yale's great mathematician, once said that "if one takes in a period of ten years the average variation in temperature is less than one-tenth of one degree."

Of course you've seen a hen swallow an angle worm. Why does she gobble it down almost at a single gulp? If the thing tastes as good as it seems to the spectator, why doesn't she spread the pleasure over a longer period, just as the cat does with a mouse? It would certainly add somewhat to the happiness of the worm to die outside of the hen. Evidently she does not kill the worm before it enters that mysterious graveyard known as her crop. Does she get anything out of the worm's crawling about in that bit of perpetual night? It must be a strange sensation to the poor worm. The only feeling similar to it on this earth is the poor investor who has been picked up by a hawk that has some worthless oil stocks to dispose of. The poor worm discovers that the hawk has gobbled up everything in sight and the only thing left in sight is his squirm. But the hawk has passed on for the next worm.

In many ways June is a remarkable month. It is wonderful as the season of bright blossoms and blushing brides; also on the shady side of life, for bad boogs and bold bootleggers. The old almanacs used to be perfectly safe in saying about the middle of June, "we may now expect thundershowers." But many will not during this delightful month also expect—if we have garden work to do—to have burning blisters? Surely we shall if we try to hang all the big beetles that bite our beautiful beans. But it seems to the writer that once in a while on June 15 some recognition should be made of the contribution that Benjamin Franklin made to the physical sciences. To be sure, the great part he played in our revolutionary struggle for independence overshadows some other things he did. But it ought never to be forgotten that on June 15, 1752, Franklin drew electricity from the clouds by means of a kite and proved its identity with lightning.

The benefactors of mankind are not limited to any one line of activity. Whatever is done anywhere, by anybody, and in any way, that relieves human wants and adds to the value of human life, is a benefaction. The person who strikes away pain from the soul of man has just as much claim to this honor as he who relieves physical hunger. The splendid work done by Herbert Hoover in the eastern relief movement was a benefaction, but not a whit more so than the fund given by Andrew Carnegie to pension college professors in their old age, because they had been and still are the most outrageously underpaid men, considering the value of the service rendered. It is professional men, those of the educated class, and not stevedores, street-cleaners and garbage men, whose services are deliberately blacklisted by the people. If this is not true, why is it they are paid the same as they were before the war?

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Joys in the Christian Life.

There is a deeply rooted idea in the minds of many that Christianity is a religion of gloom. True it is that in a certain sense Christianity may be called the religion of sorrow. Its founder, the Lord Jesus, was a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief. Its symbol is a cross, significant of suffering and shame. The condition of its service is, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me." It's triumphant disciples are those who have come out of great tribulation and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Yet the joy of the Lord, underlying the sorrow of the Christian life and often bursting out with a radiance which changes the sky from dull gray to glowing brightness, ought never to be forgotten. We are so apt to emphasize the sorrow as to obscure the joy.

The very message of Christianity is the gospel, the good news of redeeming love. Christianity was introduced by a summons of joy: "Fear not, for behold I bring you tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people." On the night of His betrayal, when the shadows of the approaching crucifixion fell thick and fast, Christ gathered His disciples around Him and told them of the blessed mystery of their union to Him, ending with the striking declaration, "These words have I spoken to you that my joy may be in you." The purpose of the Christian life as revealed in the teaching of our Lord and His apostles, is to fill heart and life with the joy of Christ. When the believer realizes that truth he quickly apprehends the privilege and duty of being glad, and soon he walks in the sunshine of a joy which cannot be banished by the fog of human doubts or the clouds of earthly trials.

Cheerfulness is always an element of strength. The joy of the Lord is the strength of every true Christian. Joy is the law of the Kingdom of Heaven—in that kingdom light is sown for the righteous and gladness for the upright in heart. This joy is no transient feeling, born of the mood of the moment and clouded by the change of emotions, but a divinely sustained principle based upon an abiding assurance. True, it is, that this joy has its times of rapture and ecstacy when Heaven seems specially near and glimpses of the beautific vision are caught. Then the joy becomes unspeakable and full of glory. But these upliftings to the seventh heaven are rare and cannot be expected often, whereas the calm gladness of peace and communion ought to be the constant condition of the soul of every believer.

We see the world's Bible, and men judge the religion we profess by us who profess it. If we are dull and sad in our intercourse with our fellows, can we wonder at their blaming our religion? What we need in our life is a baptism of gladness that shall send us on our way with shining faces and jubilant praise. In the worry and strain of life no more welcome strength could come to any of us than the abiding gladness of faith in the Lord Jesus. The surface of life may be troubled with passing storms, but eternal peace will dwell in the heart. We may be brought into our garden of Gethsemane but there will always be an angel near to comfort and strengthen. Why, then, be sad? Should we not cast all gloom, born of doubt and fear, far from us, and live out full and happy lives in the sunshine of faith?

FEDERAL SYSTEM SAVES MILLIONS ANNUALLY.

On June first the United States began the last month of its current fiscal year with something like $365,000,000 to its credit on the daily balance sheet of the treasury department.

Eleven months ago it was estimated there would be a deficit at this time from $360,000,000 to $400,000,000. That this prospective deficit of eleven months ago has been eliminated and in its place a very comfortable cash surplus has been accumulated, is due largely to a careful scrutiny of every expenditure of the federal government—a day by day supervision of all the details of spending. It has been a task of monumental proportions, calling for the hardest and closest work—a task of looking after the routine of a million little things.

For that reason, comparatively few of the 110,000,000 American people know of it. The official title of the man holding the job is chief coordinator. His position was created by order of President Harding, not by any act of congress—although in creating it President Harding merely exercised his constitutional rights, as well as some of his privileges under the broad powers conferred upon him by the budget act. The individual who holds the job is Colonel H. C. Smither, of the United States army. Colonel Smither's particular ability in this work was demonstrated during the World war when he held down the job of coordinating the agencies handling supplies for the American expeditionary forces.

The post of chief coordinator was created by executive order of President Harding July 27, 1921, and Colonel Smither appointed to fill it. The purpose of creating the position was to bring about a systematic liquidation of the accumulated surplus of war materials. At that time the war department, navy department, shipping board, public health service and several other federal bureaus and agencies had on hand a tremendous surplus of material of every description which had been purchased during the war either for military purposes or for use by the civilian forces in various departments. The task of disposing of this surplus with the least loss to the government and the least injury to business was in itself a gigantic problem.

Colonel Smither demonstrated such ability in this work that on November 8, 1921, President Harding increased his duties and extended his authority by an executive order which stated it to be the duty of the chief coordinator to "exercise general supervision, subject to the Director of the budget, over the coordination of the routine business activities of the governmental organization, with particular attention to methods of purchasing, liquidation of supplies, specification of materials, advertising, warehousing, employment, manufacturing, disbursing and other ordinary business activities of the government."

Translated into less technical language, the duty of the chief coordinator is to get the various bureaus of the government to work together instead of independently in the conduct of their daily affairs. Some idea of the need of this may be obtained by the fact that before such a system was established there were 35 different individuals purchasing supplies for the various governmental departments.

These individuals very frequently bid against each other for the same supplies. They purchased in limited quantities at stated prices by the bureau of communication with their representatives. Frequently they differed widely in their specifications to procuring special supplies being made for each of them. Furthermore, after the war especially, many of these purchasers were going into the open market and buying supplies of all kinds at top prices when the government had hundreds, if not thousands of such articles needed stored away.

The first job of the chief coordinator was to obtain an inventory of all surplus supplies owned by the government. His next job was to see to it that all supplies purchased by the various federal agencies were made through some central board or office.

Thus, it came about that when a bureau made a requisition for typewriters, instead of going into the open market to supply the need, the chief coordinator furnished that bureau with the requisite number of typewriters from a surplus supply of typewriters some other bureau had. The same was true of hundreds of articles.

Very frequently it was ascertained that the navy could obtain tools or machinery from surplus supplies owned by the shipping board; that the geodetic coast service of the department of commerce could obtain needed repairs or even entire vessels from a surplus of the navy or the shipping board, or the veterans bureau could obtain needed hospital supplies from the navy or from the public health service.

Under the direction of the chief coordinator a number of coordinating boards or interdepartmental committees were organized which provided a clearing house of information as to the supplies on hand, supplies needed and a quickest and most economical way to meet the needs. For instance, the coordinating board of hospitalization had representatives from the medical departments of the army and of the navy, the hospitalization division of the veterans' bureau, the public health service, the bureau of Indian affairs (which conducts medical and surgical work for Indians), the National Home for Disabled Soldiers and from St. Elizabeth's hospital, an institution sustained by the government and operated under the direction of the department of the interior.

The duty of this board was to prepare an inventory of all hospital and medical supplies owned by the government, regardless of the bureau or department to which they were credited. It was also its duty to eliminate duplication in the further purchase of supplies to transfer surplus supplies held by any bureau or department to a bureau or department which was in need of such supplies, to standardize requirements and specifications.

Another coordinating board under the direction of the chief coordinator is the federal traffic board, which handles all activities of the government relative to the transportation of freight, express and passengers, works out freight routings so as to save the government money, supervises the loading and shipping of government supplies and property in such a way as to take advantage of carload rates.

Another board looks after the activities of the government relative to the purchase, sale and rental of real estate. The work of this board within the city of Washington alone has already resulted in a saving of several hundred thousand dollars a year in rentals as soon as leases now operative expire.

Another coordinating board handles the motor transport activities of the government. When this work was first inaugurated every department, every bureau, every commission, every board and it seemed sometimes as if every individual of the federal government had a motor car. There was great abuse in the use of these motor vehicles. At the very time some of the bureaus and departments were storing surplus motor vehicles other departments were going into the market and buying new cars.

One of the tests and proofs of the value of the coordination of motor transport activities of the government was furnished during the Washington Conference for the Limitation of Armaments. The State department, which had had comparatively little use for motor vehicles suddenly was in need of a vast number of motor cars to accommodate the foreign delegations that were in Washington as the guests of the government and the state department, under the direction and supervision of the chief coordinator the war, navy and other departments which had a large number of motor vehicles were called upon to give up their surplus supply sufficient number of cars to accommodate the state department. This relieved the State department of the necessity either of going into the market and purchasing a large number of cars for temporary use or of running up a tremendous expense account in hiring cars from the private concerns.

Another example of the work of the chief coordinator is the use to which surplus trucks from other departments are put during the Christmas rush of the postoffice department. It was not in Washington that the chief benefit of this system was demonstrated, but in such cities as Chicago, St. Louis, New York and Philadelphia where all the available motor trucks owned by the army, navy and other departments of the government were transferred temporarily to the use of the postoffice department to handle the Christmas mail.

There has been a great saving effected by the committee which has charge of the storage of government supplies. In a great many cities several departments were renting storage facilities. At the same time some other department as for instance the war department, had in that locality a military depot or some property that could be used as a storage warehouse. Under the direction of the chief coordinator such property has been used by other departments as a warehouse.

In all of this work the chief coordinator has had the unlimited backing of President Harding. Not only has the president given the chief coordinator all the executive support necessary, but he has frequently taken a hand himself to bring about more thorough cooperation of bureau chiefs. Examples might be cited where the president, having been apprised that bureau chiefs were not making the economical record they should, has called such individuals into personal conference, explained to them not only the wisdom but the necessity of keeping expenditures for which they were responsible down to the irreducible minimum consistent with the proper conduct of their office.

The president has left nothing undone to give every federal executive a clear understanding that he is standing back of the office of chief coordinator one hundred per cent to see to it that there is a minimum of waste and delay and a maximum of economy in the handling of all public funds by the executive agencies of the government.

He has lost no opportunity to impress upon every man in the executive end of the government the philosophy that big savings in the aggregate are brought about by taking care of little savings, and that the whole problem of reducing public expenditures is the application of

Dr. Hugh M. Smith, who has been induced by the Siamese legation in Washington to accept the post of fisheries advisor for the kingdom of Siam, is an ichthyologist of international reputation. Fishing is one of the important industries of Siam, but heretofore it never has been given the scientific attention necessary to its fullest development. Dr. Smith is well qualified for the duties of his new position, having the benefit of nearly ten years' experience as United States commissioner of fisheries. He is a native of Washington, D. C., and a graduate of Georgetown university. He entered the fish commission as assistant in 1898 and went through all its departments until he finally became its head. He has taught biology at Georgetown, visiting many foreign countries as a representative of the United States government on fisheries questions and has written volumes on the subject.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Farms for the Negroes

Mr. Editor: The matter which I wish to bring before the public is one of vital importance, and to which I have given much thought. In the past sixty days there have come to the northern and western sections of the country more than forty thousand negroes from the south, landing in the states of Pennsylvania and New York, and Massachusetts and a few hundred in this state. A few years ago, I lectured to the southern negroes and urged them to remain in the south and face conditions until there is a change for the better, but materially there is no bettering of conditions. The boll weevil has become so prevalent and destructive to the crops of the south that the impossibility of producing commodities for their sustenance confronts them and they are forced to come north. Leaving their homes, many of whom are in good financial circumstances, they are crowding the cities of the north, east and west. The industry of these cities are not adequate enough to employ them and what is the remedy for these conditions? My suggestion is, since there is plenty of wealth in the north, and plenty who are willing to lay out their money to an advantage there will be to my mind no greater advantage to the financier, and the laborer, than to employ these negroes on farms, or secure moderate homes for them, and aid them in building up the agricultural industry of the north. The southern system of aiding the negro would take well in the north. In the south the white philanthropist, to aid the negro in the early history of their freedom, secured for them farms consisting of as many acres of land as each family could utilize, and aided them in securing the essentials for its development, and gave them an opportunity to make good, by accepting one-third of what they produced for the first one or two years, giving them the opportunity to purchase the land, and all other instruments furnished by them. In this way the thrifty negro soon bought from his philanthropic friend all that was turned over to him.

Again many farmers or our state need help, they could give homes to many of them, and employ them at a reasonable sum, to take care of their farms. The country negro of the south know but few vocations aside from farming. It is a fact that all the industry of the country depends on agriculture. If this becomes law, there is no avoiding a panic.

There may be other conditions which give rise to this wholesale exodus, but none is so appalling as the farming conditions. There is no way of getting away from Booker T. Washington's theory. It is the only solution for the present problem. If our boys when the schools have vacations were employed by farmers, who would take them and give them a small compensation, during their three months' vacation, and give them a practical idea of farming, it would be a greater advantage to the boy, than to have them loaf about the streets during the summer or getting into mischief, which causes the parent much alarm.

Mr. Editor: I would like to have your views on this subject, or any citizen who favors the propaganda.

Paying Our Taxes

Mr. Editor: "Town Taxes Are Now Due. Are You Able to Pay Them Without a Groan?" These touching words are quoted from the advertising columns of a recent number of The Norwich Bulletin, a paper published right here at home. The advertiser is one of our well-managed, conservative banking institutions, also right here at home. The mind that conceived those touching words and put them together as they read was a mind accustomed to looking things pretty straight in the face, and asks: "Are you able to pay your taxes without a groan?" Well, are we? There are about $6,000 of us to answer the question that touches us all. It's a touching question. Can we honestly say that we can pay out town taxes, now due without a groan? To be fair let the question be, Are we going to pay our town taxes, now due, with a smile? There you are, Mr. Editor, please take your choice.

But the groan about the town taxes, or the town taxes without the groan, are only half of the groaning, or only half of the smiling, whichever you do, groan or smile, when you pay your taxes; for in a few months the same banking concern that asks about the groaning for the town taxes will be just as fully entitled to ask: "Are you able to meet your city taxes without a groan?" The author of the touching query, please notice, doesn't say a word about smiling when you pay your taxes—that is, your town taxes, now due. Well, if he presumes that you may groan when you do pay your town taxes, now due, is it fair to believe that he expects you will groan the second time when you come to pay your city taxes, soon before, or at the time of the event, or soon after?

The point I am trying to reach, Mr. Editor, is just here: Do we really need to junk our present street-lighting equipment, really quite efficient now and for many years past just as efficient as it is now, or thereabouts, and put in its place a new and expensive outfit? The first mention of cost of the new outfit, proposed, but not yet voted for in city meeting, was $2,000. That was just a gentle starter, just a feeler. Just the thin end of the wedge. The chamber of commerce started that wedge, and like all good woodsmen, started driving their wedge the thin end first! That shows good training in efficiency; no doubt about it!

But now in the membership letter of the chamber of commerce lately published in The Bulletin the wedge drivers give the cleaving tool another strong blow, from well-hardened muscles; and the wedge splits the taxpayers, or will, if voted thus in the city meeting next Tuesday evening, from $19,000, less or more. And from the nature of wedges, together with the nature of efficiency of the chamber of commerce, it appears to be fair to conclude that at the $19,000 thickness the wedge is not nearly driven home—that is to say, the ultimate cost of white-waying Norwich will land the taxpayers up around a cost of $30,000, and who is willing to say that it will not be more than $30,000? Why, from the first tap on the wedge, $2,000—the first stroke is always the lightest one—the cost jumped to $19,000, who, then, can tell what the amount will be after the chamber "blips" the wedge about three more "blips"?

Now is we are expected to groan about our town taxes, now due, and are expected to groan over our city taxes, soon due, what must we be expected to do about both town taxes and city taxes after the great white way makes Norwich shine like daylight, like the Land of the Midnight Sun? Shall we groan, or shall we shriek? If we don't vote for the white way next Tuesday evening in city meeting assembled, we won't have to do more than groan, will we? If we simply vote the white way proposition down, or into the future somewhere, we can save our shrieks, can we not?

G. Warren Davis.

COUNCIL ORGANIZES FOR THE YEAR AND RE-APPOINTS CITY DEPARTMENT HEADS

All city department heads were reappointed by the new court of common council at its organization meeting Friday evening in the council chamber. There was no opposition to any of the re-appointments. As there was only one candidate nominated for each office, City Clerk Weston C. Pullen was instructed to cast one ballot in favor of each candidate as he was nominated. It took fifteen minutes to organize, appoint committees and to name department heads. As the city meeting has not yet been held the council could not transact any financial business so adjournment was taken until Friday evening of next week.

The meeting was called to order at eight o'clock by His Honor, Mayor Milo R. Waters, the council members being seated by City Sheriff Charles H. Raynes. All the new members, except Alderman E. LaRue Bliven, who is attending the Shriners' convention at Washington, were present.

Alderman Edward Crooks was sworn into office by Mayor Waters after which the mayor administered the oath to Councilmen Martin Rosycki, F. Russell Smith, Alfred G. Lillibridge and Lee Clegg.

It is very pleasing to me, at this the first meeting of the council to extend to the newly elected members my congratulations upon the fact that they have been selected from among so many to manage the affairs of our city.

I am satisfied that the same harmony and loyal co-operation in the work of the different committees and departments that has been so noticeable during the past year will continue to prevail and that we will be able to show the citizens of the city that we are worthy of the trust that they have placed in us.

It is urged that the various committees use the utmost economy in expending the funds of the city and endeavor to secure the greatest efficiency possible.

Constructive criticism will be always welcome and city employes will use the greatest courtesy to those who make complaint, criticism or suggestions.

Committee appointments were announced by Mayor Waters as follows:

Committee on fire department—Alderman Crooks, Councilman Aldrich and Councilman Fitzgerald.

Board of police commissioners—Alderman Sweeney, Councilman Quinley and Councilman Aldrich.

Auditing committee—Alderman Bliven, Councilman Rosycki and Councilman Shea.

Amusement committee — Alderman Bliven, Councilman Shea and Councilman Clegg.

The council approved the mayor's appointment on motion of Alderman Gebrath.

The council adopted the same rules of order as those in force last year and passed resolutions on the procuring of city stationery by City Clerk Weston C. Pullen, referring all unfinished business to the new committees and giving the city printing to the Pullen Publishing company and The Bulletin company at the same rate as last year. Mayor Waters called attention to the fact that the city printing rate has not increased during the past three years.

Council appointments were made as follows, all being reappointments:

The council adopted a resolution reappointing Henry R. Taft as deputy chief of the fire department for one year and on nomination of Mayor Waters, Edward J. Brophy, M. D., was reappointed city health officer for four years from September 30th.

An invitation from Norwich Lodge No. 430 B. P. O. E. to attend the Elks' flag day exercises at the Elks' home, on the evening of June 14th was accepted on motion of Alderman Gebrath. The council members are planning to attend the exercises in a body.

Alderman Crooks stated that he was of the opinion that the corporation counsel ought to be invited to a seat inside the council rail. He offered a resolution to that effect and the resolution was adopted.

As the council cannot transact any business until after the appropriations are made at the city meeting, next Tuesday night, adjournment was taken until Friday evening, June 15th at 7 o'clock, standard time.

WIFE SAYS HUSBAND BEAT HER ON STREET

Angelo Chioda of North Main street was taken into custody Friday morning by Chief George Linton on a breach of the peace charge made Thursday night by his wife, Rose Chioda of 68 North Main street. She came to police headquarters Thursday night, asking for the arrest of her husband, who she claimed had attacked her and struck her in the face as she was walking on North Main street. He had also beaten a young man who was with her and had smashed a new straw hat which Mrs. Chioda showed as evidence.

The police looked for Chioda all Thursday night but he kept out of sight.

AUTOMOBILE UPSETS AT FOOT OF MOHEGAN HILL

An Overland touring car driven by Chief Petty Officer Abbott of the Submarine Base and carrying as passengers three other sailors from the base overturned on a curve near the foot of Mohegan hill, between 12 and 12.30 o'clock this (Saturday) morning. None of the four occupants of the car was injured.

The sailors came to Norwich during the early part of Friday evening and were on the way back to New London when the accident happened. Shortly after the car upset a trolley car, Norwich bound came along and was stopped by the sailors. Two of the sailors who were thought to be injured were taken on board the trolley car and brought to Norwich. Arriving here they were taken to police headquarters where an examination showed that neither was injured. Jack Frink, one of the two sailors, was intoxicated and he was booked on the blotter on an intoxication charge and locked up. Frink had no recollection of having been in an accident.

The other sailor John E. Orr, told the story of the accident to Captain D. J. Twomey and was allowed to go back to New London. He made the return trip by machine. The other two sailors, Chief Petty Officer Abbott and A. F. King, a first class torpedoman at the base remained with the overturned machine. The machine partly blocked the highway.

State Police Officer M. R. Sterling was notified of the accident by Captain Twomey.

AUTOMOBILES COLLIDE ON ROAD IN MONTVILLE

Automobiles driven by Tony Angelo and Stewart Wilson, both of this city, were in collision Friday afternoon about 3.30 o'clock in Montville, both cars being considerably damaged. Mr. Wilson was driving a car belonging to Mr. Gillis, who was with him in the car.

Angelo was driving up from the Eastern Connecticut Power company and as he came around the corner into the main road met the other car. According to the report made of the accident, he failed to keep to his right on rounding the curve, but hugged the left side of the road as he approached the car Wilson was driving. Wilson held to his right, expecting the other man to swing off, but just as the cars were about to meet head-on, Wilson swung sharp to the right and went up a bank and down into the road again. The cars hooked together at their left headguards and the Angelo car was turned completely around.

After the accident Angelo signed a written statement before a notary that he was to blame and agreeing to settle the damages.

WEDDING.
Baker-Souter

Ray Bartlett Baker of Brooklyn, New York and Miss Georgianna Souter of Norwich were quietly married Monday evening at six o'clock by Rev. Edward J. Ayres. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Walter Wibberley of 34 Summer St., where the bride has resided for several years. Following the ceremony a reception was held. The bride received numerous gifts including checks, cut glass, linen and silver. The young couple have a host of friends who extend their best wishes after a short wedding trip. Mr. and Mrs. Baker will reside at 646 Wyeth Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., where the groom is employed as a mechanic.

Firth-Tefft

A pretty wedding took place Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock when Miss Ethel Firth of Baltic became the bride of Robert Arthur Tefft of Oakdale. The wedding took place at the Baltic Methodist Episcopal church and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Chauncey Knoff, pastor of the church.

As the bridal party entered the church "O Promise Me" was very sweetly rendered by Miss Constance Rigdway and as the wedding procession proceeded down the isle the bridal chorus was played by Miss Marion Bernstoff of Norwich.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Grant Bush and had as her flower girl Elsie Tefft of Oakdale. The best man was Luther Tefft, Jr., of Oakdale, brother of the groom.

The flower girl was dressed in pink georgette, and carried a basket of rose petals which she scattered before the bride. The bride was gowned in white canton crepe with silk trimmings, and her tulle veil was done up in the latest fashion, caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and sweet peas. Her attendant was dressed in grey canton crepe with picture hat to match and carried pink carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception and supper was given at the home of the bride to about seventy guests, including friends and relatives from Norwich Oakdale, New London, Pawtucket, Philadelphia, and Taftville. The choir of the Baltic M. E. church, of which the bride has been a member and alto singer for seven years, were guests. In appreciation of her work and faithfulness in the choir, she was presented a beautiful chest of silver at a reception held in her honor.

The bride received many handsome and useful gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Tefft left early in the afternoon by auto and will spend their trip in New York city and vicinity. Upon their return they will reside in Oakdale where Mr. Tefft is carrier for the U. S. Mail from Uncasville to Palmertown and Oakdale.

The bride will be missed immensely in Baltic by a host of friends who wish her success and happiness in her new life.

A FRIVOLOUS FROCK FOR SUMMER WEATHER

Charmingly youthful and with all up to date is this cool looking "flounced" dress. The skirt may be cut in pointed or straight outline. Dotted Swiss with bands of Val lace is here depicted. The new rub silks or foulard would be equally suitable. Organdy with hemstitching or crepe de chine with fagotting or drawn work would be very pleasing.

The waist pattern 3979 is cut in seven sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches, bust measure. The skirt pattern 4013 is cut in seven sizes: 25, 27, 29, 31, 33, 35 and 37 inches, waist measure. The foundation of this skirt could be of lining and would require 1 3-4 yards 32 inches wide. To make the dress for a medium size as shown in the large view requires 9 1-4 yards of 32-inch material. The width at lower edge of the lower flounce is about 2 1-2 yards.

Engagement Ring Shifted.

In olden times if a girl were willing to marry, and not engaged, it was the custom for her to wear a ring on the first finger of the left hand. If she wanted to remain single, then she wore the ring on the little finger.

CONTESTING FOR RETURN OF ENGAGEMENT RING

Chicago, June 8.—Lee Stiles, who presented Miss Leona Voris, his former fiancee, with an engagement ring which he purchased from his prospective mother-in-law for $1,000, was today awarded $1,000 by a jury in his suit against Miss Voris and her mother for $1,500, which he claimed covered the price of the ring and interest on his money from 1921, when his romance ended. Miss Voris, he laimed, broke the engagement shortly after he gave her the ring and refused to return the ring or the money. Miss Voris' attorneys made a motion for a new trial.

BOSTON 'PHONE OPERATORS NOT TO BECOME INVOLVED

Boston, June 8.—Officers of the so-called local A-1, with a membership including 4,000 of the 6,100 telephone operators in the Great Boston district, announced after a meeting of the body tonight that the local would not become involved in any action voted by New England operators on June 19, the date set for polling a strike vote to enforce demands for wage increase and changed working conditions.

Coquette's Explanation.

A young man recently asked one of the opposite sex why girls so frequently became engaged to several fellows at once. "A smoker like you shouldn't have to ask that," she replied with a laugh. "When you have only one match, doesn't it generally go out?"—Boston Transcript.

"A Roland for an Oliver."

This phrase really means "tit for tat." Roland and Oliver were two famous knights who were equal in bravery and knightly valor. They are said to have fought for five days without either gaining any advantage.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

At the next session of the justices of the peace in the Nurses' Home fund of the Day Kimball hospital continues to be augmented. The latest is from the newly organized Catholic Welfare Council of Danielson. The council has just voted to make $50 for the fund and the 50 members do not expect to meet with any great difficulty in getting the money. Included in the plans of the council for the near future is a strawberry supper. At the present time the council is engaged in an effort to increase its membership to 100 before the end of the present month.

A big motor van carrying Connecticut registration 3791 and owned in Marlboro toppled over on South Killingly hill near the Brennan Hall place shortly after 11 o'clock Thursday night while rain was coming down in torrents and one of the two men received a gash on the head, although he was not seriously hurt, in the spill.

Motorists who happened along thought they had stumbled upon a big happening when they first stopped, for the truck was loaded with beer barrels—all of which were empty. Visions of something wet for the throats to go with the rain that was wetting everything outside quickly vanished. State Officer Albert S. Fields investigated the accident at about 11.30 p. m. After spending the night here the men who were with the truck got it underway and proceeded to Hartford Friday morning.

At the home of her daughter, Mrs. Louis Legary, in Wauregan Friday morning Mrs. Hermanie Aubin, 66, died after a week's illness with pneumonia. Mrs. Aubin was the widow of Joseph Aubin, who died about three years ago. Mrs. Aubin's funeral will be held two weeks to a day from the date of the death of her daughter's husband. The tragedy of death in the family has aroused the fullest sympathy of the people of Wauregan.

Two inspectors from the Providence police department were in Danielson and East Killingly Friday afternoon searching for three youths, khaki-clad, who left Providence on their bicycles early in the morning ostensibly destined to come into an outlying section of this town to take work at a camp where lumbering is being done. Up to the time the inspectors arrived here nothing had been seen of the boys described. They are wanted to answer to charges of breaking and entering.

Rapid progress is being made with the installation of the warning signal lights being placed at Attawaugan crossing. There is a group of three flashing lights—two on the west side of the track and one on the east. They are of modern type and different from any in this locality. In service they will afford excellent protection for traffic and are certain to be appreciated by the traveling public.

After sweltering during the earlier part of the week Danielson people awoke Friday morning to find the temperature in a skimp and shivery weather at hand. There was a return to vests and light overcoats and a temporary laying aside of straw hats. The benefit of the rainstorm that drove the temperature down cannot be overestimated, however. Crops were badly in need of a soaking rain, highways were ankle deep in dust through the countryside and there was the constant menace of destructive forest fires. All of these undesirable conditions were overcome by the storm, at least for the time being.

Agent A. W. Buchanan of the state board of education will be in Danielson next Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock at the office of Supt. L. M. Parrin in the town hall building to grant certificates to pupils who may desire to apply for them that they make work during the summer. Such applicants should bring the necessary papers. Mr. Buchanan's coming here will save interested young people from making trips either to Putnam or Central Village.

June 22 has been set as the date for the annual reception by the Killingly High School Alumni association in honor of the members of the class of 1923. As is customary, the reception will be held in the state armory and will be the closing event of commencement week. The officers and members of the executive committee of the association are making plans for the reception. The class of 1923 will be graduated Thursday, June 21, the class day exercises being in the afternoon and graduation in the evening.

Eighteen rural carriers who cover routes in Windham county are to organize an association that will affiliate with the state organization of rural carriers when they meet at the home of Arthur W. Lopez, who covers a route from the Danielson office on Saturday evening of next week. It is intended to elect officers and do other important business at this meeting.

Showing how initiative and good work can produce happy results, the women of Trinity church, Brooklyn, have turned in a $50 unit for the Nurses' Home fund of the Day Kimball hospital. This tidy sum was accumulated in one day by serving chowder and other things to eat at a big auction sale held in Brooklyn. Scores of groups and organizations in this immediate territory may emulate the achievement of the Brooklyn workers in the $30,000 campaign now on, in the interest of a very worthy cause.

Major Albert Warren, U. S. A., a member of the faculty of the United States Military academy at West Point, is to be at Fort Wright, Fishers Island, beginning next week, as an instructor for a period with a class that will be in training there. Major Warren is a son of Mrs. Emma Warren and a grandson of Warden and Mrs. W. A. Burrows of Danielson. With Mrs. Warren he will spend several weeks this summer at the Burrows cottage at Oakland Beach and will make a brief visit here.

Memorial services for deceased members of the lodge will be held on Sunday afternoon by Quinebaug lodge, I. O. O. F. Rev. C. C. Tibbitts will make the address at Westfield cemetery to which point the members will parade from their quarters in the town hall building.

There is widespread interest in the fact that Hamilton Holt, noted publicist, whose summer home is in Woodstock, is to give an address here June 26, with the League of Nations as his subject.

It is anticipated that additional state police will come to the Danielson barracks soon after July 1, when more men will be added to the department. There is a great deal of work for the state police throughout this section of eastern Connecticut and a constant stream of requests for their services.

The annual Children's day service will be held Sunday morning at 10.30 at the Westfield Congregational church.

Buses operating over the new line between Danielson and Providence carry three sets of registration plates—one O-Conn and two Rhode Island sets.

There were games, refreshments and entertainment features Friday evening when pupils of the eighth grade of the Danielson school entertained the members of the eighth grades of the East Brooklyn and Killingly schools.

Only three weeks of the trout fishing season remain, but these will be made the most of by those who love this sport.

A Children's day program will be given at the Pentecostal church on Sunday.

A carnival company has made a liberal guarantee for the Nurses' Home fund if it will be allowed to exhibit in Danielson.

Miss Rose Wolsard is in Washington and Henry Wolsard will leave on Sunday to be present at the commencement exercises of Georgetown university from which their brother, Louis Wolsard is to be graduated next week. Mr. Wolsard will engage in the legal profession.

PUTNAM

Police were making an effort Friday to ascertain the identity of persons who hurled a stone through the window of the home of Joseph Carroll on Providence street about 10 o'clock Thursday night. The stone tore the window curtain as it swept into the house and put a dent in a chair as it came to the end of its flight.

Neither Mr. Carroll nor any member of his household was injured. The police regard the incident as having something to do with the fact that Mr. Carroll is at work in the Manhasset mill, from which a heavy percentage of operatives went out on strike a month ago. However, it was not represented that any of the strikers had anything to do with the affair. It is regarded as likely that it was the work of some young man or group of young men seen in the vicinity of the Carroll home just before the incident occurred. The matter was promptly reported and an investigation started, this to be continued with hope of fixing the responsibility for the affair.

Putnam is going to have what may be termed a vehicular pageant some time this summer. The interesting proposal is being arranged by the Putnam Chamber of Commerce and Secretary A. F. Ralston is now busy with the details. It may be stated at this time that the pageant will include all types of horse-drawn and motor-driven vehicles that can be obtained and that even the ancient oxcar may find a place in the procession. From the highways and by-ways of this section of the county ancient vehicles will be brought forth to be assembled in a big parade that will demonstrate in vivid manner the development that has been made in overland transportation in the past 75 years. A venerable stage coach already has been located for the occasion and there will also be in line about every type of carriage known to those of a generation and more ago, some of them regarded as very classy in their day. Getting into the motor section one will find cars dating back a score of years—vehicles that were largely experimental yet able at this late day to roll along and get you where you are going. Automobiles showing the advance in motor perfection, in structural quality and beauty of design as the years have gone by will be certain to be of supreme interest to motorists. Old single cylindered cars will compete in interest with the most modern and beautiful of the automobile builders' craft.

Mr. Ralston expects to spend considerable time in getting his complete collection of vehicles showing each period of construction, but when this has been done it will have been well worth while. No date for the pageant has been set, this depending in large measure on the time that will be required to make the necessary arrangements, but it will be some time during the coming summer.

An inspector of the immigration service has been ordered to Putnam from the Boston office of the immigration service to make an investigation of the allegation of representatives of the American Federation of Textile Operatives that help has been brought in here from Canada in violation of the contract labor law. Oliver Christian, representing the union strikers here, stated Friday that he has received written notice that an inspector is coming here and will make a complete investigation of the allegation.

There was no change in the strike situation Friday. Strikers held a meeting at which there was much interest and enthusiasm. Families are continuing to vacate Manhasset Mill company tenements under summary process proceedings and the mill village now shows many darkened tenements at night. More families will go out today and during the coming week.

Strikers continue to leave the city in small groups to fill places they have obtained elsewhere. Three left Friday to take work in a Rhode Island city.

At this particular time of year the going away of a number of families has upset the programs for graduation in some schools of the city, as parts assigned to children in families that are moving away have had to be re-assigned and the time is so short before graduation that much study is required of those who have taken up the duties of the children that have gone.

Captain William J. Jarvis of the police department is engaged today on his last day of service as a special deputy commissioner of domestic animals. He was busy with his work in Thompson and Pomfret Friday and will wind up his activities for the department in Plainfield today. Captain Jarvis's resignation will be effective Monday, when he takes up his work as captain here.

State Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatric of this city will be host at a supper to be served to the Men's classes of the churches of Putnam at the Baptist church next Monday evening. The supper and the meeting that is to follow will be in the interest of the Windham County Y. M. C. A.

Diplomas to be issued to the members of the class of 1923, Putnam High school, were received Friday at the office of the secretary of the town school committee, Attorney Charles L. Torrey. Names of the graduates are beautifully done in old English letters.

This year's annual two day tour of the Connecticut Pomological society is to start in Windham county, on August 6 and will be continued into Worcester county, those making it getting to Springfield for the night. SOCIAL CORNER POETRY.

MY BRAIDED RUG.

My braided rug, I love you!
Not for your quaintness,
Nor for the air you lend, of old-time charm,
Nor your bright coloring;
Neither for your soft, inviting warmth,
Though all these quite well repay
My hours of loving labor.
I love you for the pictures that you paint
Of yesterday.
I see beneath my feet (tread softly, please)
My wedding gown, in part;
A strip of gray was grandmother's best frock.
Right here, my mother's coat, that served so well
Her fashioned it again, quite smart, for me.
Dead there—
A bit of sister's "Sitting-bull"
And father's vest;
A blue checked bit of wool—her first school dress.
Blood here—the one she wore the last.
I see her now—as she often stood . . .
Ah, yes, dear braided rug, I love you!
Your mingled strands
Do twine themselves around my heart
Unerringly.
I look on you and live again
In Memory—
Those blessed years long gone.

THE MOTHER OF BEARDED MEN.

Learn the mother of bearded men, and the names that I called them by
When I watched their sleep in their cradles and hushed each tear and sigh,
Are known and spoken where men meet men and life moves swift along,
For they do their share of the world's work, and they are sure and strong.

Clear are their eyes and their glances kind as when their years were few;
Deep voices call me "Mother," and the tones are gentle and true.
They give me love and honor, though wiser now than I,
But I think of the little children who stood by my knee, and sigh.

O, I would not hold them dearer, and I would not turn them back
To tread again youth's thorny route or climb again life's track;
But when the lonely evening falls, and no one has need of me,
It's oh, for the little children who once leaned against my knee!

SOME GOOD SUGGESTIONS.

Dear Corner Members: I have been greatly helped by the suggestions in The Corner page, so will send in my bit, which may be of some help to mothers who plan on a long train ride with children this summer.

Their clothes should be neatly packed the day before and most of the lunch prepared. At night the children should be bathed and put to bed early. Then clean clothes laid out ready to slip into early the next morning. They get up just in time to eat a hearty breakfast. I pack in a small bag a tasty lunch with several apples, a change of clothes for each one, a wash cloth and towel, comb and brush. Also three new story books, two small dolls for the girls and a mechanical toy for the boy. Being new, they will interest them the rest of the trip. I tell them about the many things along the way and have been complimented many times on their good behavior.

Do the members know that to can rhubarb cooking is not necessary? Just cut young tender stalks into two inch pieces or in lengths which will fit into the jar vertically. Pack in sterilized jars in vertical rows. Cover with fresh cold water and let the jar stand for 10 minutes. Drain off this water and again fill the jar to overflowing with fresh cold water. Use sterilized rubber, cap and seal at once. No processing is necessary. The rhubarb is ready for the storeroom shelf.

Cup cakes for a luncheon or tea are excellent made by this rule:

Cup Cakes: Two tablespoons butter, or other fat. One cup sugar, one egg, two cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon soda, one cup sour cream, one teaspoon vanilla, one cup fresh-keeping cocoanut.

This recipe makes 12 cup cakes. Cream butter and add sugar slowly, creaming them together. Add well-beaten egg and mix thoroughly. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and soda together, and add to butter mixture alternately with cream. Add vanilla and cocoanut and beat until well mixed. Pour into greased cup cake or muffin pans and bake in moderate oven about 25 minutes. Cover with [illegible] frosting.

FACTS FROM KITTY LOU'S DICTIONARY.

Dear Corner Members: I am sending some facts from my dictionary.

Borax—I use this in washing clothes, dishes, and bathroom. It makes the water soft as it is a mild alkali. It is a crystaline salt and I know is perfectly harmless. I buy one hundred pounds at a time.

My cure, or a remedy if not a cure, for the ants is Pyrethrum. It comes nearest to being a cure of any of the simple remedies known.

Housekeepers should know that ampere is the term electricians use to indicate a quantity of current that flows through an electric circuit, as a quantity of water flows through a pipe. They tell me it is possible to measure electricity in terms of the ampere. A unit of measurement which may be compared to one gallon of water.

I use ammonia and it is certainly fine. Borax and washing powder run a close second to ammonia. I use these to counteract acid stains or to furnish the needed salt to neutralize hard water. It will take grease spots out of the carpet.

Bleach—I was always accustomed to think of a bleach as a strong powder for whitening. I find sun and air in combination with moisture are almost as strong and can be used on all cottons and linens. I have used Javelle water but you can use that only on cotton and linens.

[illegible] with the exception of [illegible] I use pinks for flesh tones. The vegetable blue does not form rust stains in the presence of hard water—where the iron blue sometimes will.

Brass is a combination of two metals, copper and zinc. They say there is a polish made of rotten stone and linseed oil, but I never have been able to get the rotten stone. A good polish is made of whiting powder, borax and oil. You can clean brass beds if you will first remove the lacquer with alcohol.

Budget—Do you budget your income? You may think it a burden, but a budget has been the means of showing many a housekeeper how to stop some of the unnecessary leaks from the purse. Of course budgets are individual problems. I like that way of paying my bills. I have five envelopes which I plan to meet individual needs and it makes quite a difference in my bills. Those who haven't tried it and would like to save about ten to twenty dollars per month might try it.

There are a great many ways to do things which will have to be planned by you. When painting with white paint instead of giving them an expensive coat of white enamel paint, you can go over with a coating of thin, hot starch. This gives the same gloss as the paint, is cheap and will not wash off.

You can mend your garden hose with a fine, thin glue, made of two ounces of shellac gradually working well together to the consistency of fine glue, spread on a kid glove, cut in strips and fasten tightly around perfectly dry hose over the leak, and allow to remain two days before using.

Many thanks for the long yellow slip. I certainly appreciate it.

SMILES AND CAREWORN LOOKS.

Dear Sisters: For the reason that she hadn't seen many, one woman started in to count those going along the street with a smile. That was easy, and you probably think she had plenty to do. She found those with a smile were few and far between.

Just watch, some day when you are downtown, and see how many faces look older than they should, carrying the stamp of not only care but hopelessness. It is as if the owners were lost in a sea of work and despondency, having lost their chart and compass.

It's not because of actual conditions, so often, as it is because we've got the I've-got-so-much-on-my-mind-attitude and the everybody-has-it-easier-than-I-do outlook. Of course, our faces are lined with care. Our troubles and business are with us when we go to sleep at night and when we wake up in the morning. They'd like a rest from us as well as we would one from them.

Why not give it to them?

It isn't necessary for any one of us to fall into a terrible rut of monotony. We can pull ourselves up if we will. But all of us won't, because we have to use our own mental bootstraps to do it, and some of us lack the mental muscle.

The following is a Philistine suggestion to many of us, but it is offered as a proved palliative for trouble and worry. When the load gets too great, set it down for a few minutes. Play golf or garden or read or hike or embroider or window shop or munch chocolates, according to your particular idea of mild dissipation. Forget that the load is there—that it ever was there.

When the few minutes or the hour of relaxation is over, the burden can be shouldered with greater ease. Rested mentality finds a load easier, just as do rested muscles. And sometimes we will gain a vision that will lead to the way out. Try it and see!

HAD FINE TIME AT CLUB MEETING.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I hope all the sisters got home safe. It was so hot, and looked as if we would have a hard shower. Well, we all had a nice time at Club No. 2's meeting, and how we did enjoy Grandma Gray. She was fine, and the other ones that gave in their bit. We can always depend on Joan for music and enjoy her so much.

Freckles: I hope to meet you again, and the other new ones.

Ducky: Where did you go?

I hope we can have some nice picnics this summer, and in the fall start in, with all new and old members, ready for a social time.

Ma of Greene Gables: Don't throw away your crust of bread. Use the recipe if you can afford it. That was good.

Kitty Lou: What do you think? Two of the sisters thought I was you. I told them I wish I knew as much as you had forgotten. I told them how to find you, and they are going to call.

Let us all try this summer to keep our Corner page full and not forget each other.

Pewee: What has happened to you? Please send a line. I miss you.

USES FOR SOILED CURTAINS.

Dear Social Corner Family: I want to tell you the use we made of our soiled window shades. We removed the roller and put the shades over pictures, bric-a-brac, etc., fastening them at the top to the side wall with push pins. This saved much time and labor as there was no moving necessitated and they can be used many times and in many places.

I lined my hencoop last fall with such shades, painted them with white-wash well mixed with crude carbolic and gave them a coat two or three times during the winter. I got more eggs and had cleaner fowls.

I used them in the early spring for covers for the hotbeds or cold frames.

Keep on your sweaters, it looks as if a summer blizzard was coming.

Has Orchard street gone off the map?

Another Social Corner sister and myself had milkweed green for our dinner and now we are satisfied.

I feel quite alive such a day as this, with sunshine, air, birds and flowers enough to appreciate and all free.

REUNION OF CORNER MEMBERS JUNE 21.

Social Corner Friends: As the time draws near for our annual reunion of club members they are questioning when and where we meet. As Remember Me is not occupying her place we will not meet there, as formerly, but Student has secured the vestry of the Methodist church in Versailles, for our reunion this year, where it will be very nice and convenient and near the trolley. It is between Baltic and Taftville and easily reached from every quarter and we hope for a big delegation from every club. The date is Thursday, June 21.

Bring your own plate, cup, knife, fork and spoon, also salads, sandwiches, cake, pie, etc., as usual.

May I take the liberty to suggest we come with a helpful spirit and all do our share to prepare and clear away so there will be no hardship for a few.

Yours for a good social time.

THE GOLDEN RULE IN RAISING CHILDREN.

Dear Sisters: Those with families cannot fail to be interested in the excellent letters about the care of children. How much easier it would be for everybody if each mother followed the Golden Rule in raising her children. Some mothers do not seem to pay much attention to what their children are doing so long as they are not bothering them. Such mothers make it doubly hard for the mother who is trying to watch her child.

I keep my small boy by himself in the forenoon for two reasons. First, it is good discipline for him to play by himself a part of the time. Second, it is but fair to send him anywhere to play when all mothers are busy.

I find I have to do a great deal of sending other children home, in order to keep my boy by himself. My work would be much lessened if my neighbors would follow my rule.

In the afternoon my boy can have someone to play with, but unrestrained children are hard to watch, so I have limited this play period to only two or sometimes three hours.

If these children had been watched by their mothers, guarded from bad language and taught not to be destructive, I would not mind having my boy play with them for the afternoon. I might sometimes let my boy go to their homes to play, but I know he would not be watched as I watch him, so he has to stay always within my sight. Sometimes he thinks this is rather hard, but he knows "mother knows best," and does want him to grow up to be a good, clean-minded man.

I am sending a recipe for fried cakes and would like to join The Corner if I may.

Fried Cakes: Mix until very soft three-fourths cup sugar, one well beaten egg, four tablespoons melted shortening, one cup sour milk, one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon vanilla. Let stand for an hour in the icebox or cool place before frying. If you add one tablespoon of vinegar to the lard they are fried in, the cakes will not absorb so much grease. It must not be added to the hot lard, however.

BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARIES.

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: This is a beautiful June morning, and the second day of the year of special interest to me. I am glad to see the sun shine, to hear the birds sing and enjoy the flowers. I am grateful that I was born at this lovely season, for each anniversary repeats the beauties of nature, and it is a delightful time of year to everybody. In last week's Corner page the editorial sentiment reflects a bearing on "Memory." This is a topic which appeals to us all in its various forms. And so today, on June 5th, I am turning my thoughts backward, to recall what occurred on my birthday anniversaries. It is useless to say I could remember the greater number, for there are too many for that. However, I will say with all pleasure I do not bring to mind one unhappy birthday anniversary. I remember the day I was 5 years old, and the seventh year I had my first birthday party. These personal reminiscences are interesting to ourselves as we look them over and note the changes. Many there are who have experienced a deep sorrow on their birthday anniversary, but I am grateful that nothing of a sadness has marred my record thus far.

I hope every sister of the Social Corner who shares with me the June birthday will enjoy their anniversary as I am today. I have received some cards which I appreciate, and extend my sincere thanks for your kind wishes and remembrance. I have an autograph album which was a gift to me on my 12th birthday, and one of the writers on one of those pages inscribed a sentiment which ever appeals to me on this particular date, so I pass it on to others:

"Not enjoyment, and not sorrow
Is our destined end or way,
But to act that each tomorrow
Finds us further than today."

With sincere gratitude.

RHUBARB AND CUSTARD PIES.

Dear Social Corner Friends: I tried to give a woman some rhubarb the other day and she said she had more rhubarb than she had sugar to use with it. Now I don't see that it takes much more sugar than sour apples, the way I use it. I always peel it, cut in rather small pieces and cover it with cold water, and bring it to a boil. Turn off all that water and put in the sugar and cook until soft. This makes nice sauce. This is the way I make the pies:

Rhubarb Pie: Peel and cut in small pieces enough rhubarb to make one quart. Cover with cold water, bring to boil, and turn off all this water. Then add one cup of sugar. Cook until soft, then add one tablespoon of flour and nutmeg to taste. If you care for raising, you won't need quite a cup of sugar. This makes a good thick pie.

Custard Pie: Three eggs, one heaping tablespoon of sugar to an egg, little salt and nutmeg and milk to fill the crust, some less than a quart. When I make a large pie I take four eggs and a quart of milk. I think the secret of a good custard pie is in the baking. Don't bake it too fast, and watch it, and when it rises up, try it with a silver knife. When the knife comes out clean, the pie is done. If you leave it too long it will boil and that spoils it.

When cooking asparagus, if the bottom of the stalks are very hard, cut the green outside part off, and the white part will cook tender. This saves quite a lot sometimes.

I guess you will all say stop, so I will.

ROBERTA.

BUSY WITH THE FLOWERS

Dear Sisters: Isn't it interesting to watch the flowers grow and how eagerly we wait for the blossoms. This is the big season for the flower lovers.

One of the handsomest bedding annuals and one of the most satisfactory in general effect is the Madagascar periwinkle or Vinca rosea, a dual-purpose plant. Seed sown as soon as the ground is warm will give a crop of plants for summer bedding and then they may be lifted to bloom all winter in the house.

This old-fashioned plant has shining, dark green laurel-like foliage, making a fine bushy plant about a foot tall which is thickly studded all summer with white, rose and white with a crimson-eye flower. It is ornamental both in foliage and flower. Sown now, it will be valuable to plant in beds occupied by late tulips or other spring bulbs as it may be transplanted as the bulb leaves fade and will soon fill the bed.

The seed is rather slow in germination but makes a rapid growth once it gets a start. The individual flowers resemble somewhat the bloom of the phlox drummondii but do not grow in clusters as does the phlox and are larger individually than the flower of the phlox.

There are only three colors and a bed of one color is more effective than a mixture of the three, although the pure white and the white with the crimson eye mix to better advantage than do the rose-colored forms with the lighter varieties.

This plant is a heat lover and is at its best during the hot days of summer. Its foliage is ornamental aside from its flower, but with the glossy, dark green leaves as a foil, the flowers are well displayed. It is valuable to cut as the buds unfold in water.

This is an old-fashioned plant often known in old gardens as "old maid". It is a relative of the trailing vinca, the variegated leaves of which are so commonly used in porch boxes, and of the periwinkle or grave myrtle, a hardy ground-covering vine with bright blue blossoms in early spring.

The plants should be set a foot apart each way in a bed.

Dear Members of the Corner: I thought I would write a few lines this week in hopes to see the Corner page well filled up. I think we all should try and do a little more often. I was on the sick list last week so had a good excuse, but I do love to see the page full and overflowing. I always turn right to the Sisters' Corner the first thing. I am very much interested in reading the different letters especially, the letters telling about the little red school house. How often do I think of those good old school days! I remember one teacher in particular. I most always found a piece of candy inside my geography after we recited our lesson. As it was a gentleman teacher I thought it was very strange he should take that notion.

I think people used to take a lot of comfort going out to different neighbors to spend an evening and have pop corn and molasses candy. I wish the old times could be revived again, but don't suppose they ever will be. What has become of Historian? Has he got so much of that gentle breeze that he is taking a trip in his airplane? Perhaps he has gone to the seashore. Hope he will tell us about it in his next letter. Well I cant say I am just about through housecleaning. Visited the Rose of New England Wednesday for the Social Corner meeting and met many of the sisters and got somewhat acquainted.

As my letter is getting long will stop with good luck to all.

RURAL AUNTY.

PHOTOGRAPHER WRITES AGAIN

Dear Social Corner Sisters: It has been a long time since I have written to the Corner. But I thought I would write a few lines and so add one more letter to the Corner page. I have been home just a year from the hospital and when I look back and see what I went through. I can surely say God is merciful and will help us if we but put perfect faith in Him. I am so thankful to be able to do what I can and with God's help I trust that health and strength will be given me.

Rainbow: How nice it seemed to me to ride through your village again where my home was for ten years, and to see some of my old neighbors and friends. So many changes have been made adding so much to the benefits of the village. After calling on you, we visited the cemetery, it being Memorial day and I was glad to see that the graves of dear friends and relatives had not been forgotten. They all looked beautiful. After returning home I was rather tired, but the tired feeling vanished when about 5.30 o'clock a well filled market basket was left at our door. It was lovely and I hope soon to find the kind friends who were so thoughtful. They made their escape by auto. So as Memorial day is marked generally with a red letter, it also meant a red letter day for me.

With best wishes for the Corner,

I am,

THE PHOTOGRAPHER.

RECOLLECTIONS OF LONG AGO

Dear Editor, Sisters and Friends: Well, here I am again. It has been a long time since I have written. I enjoy reading the nice letters. I certainly enjoyed the letter written several weeks ago by "Jim." It brought to mind my school days. There was no physical culture, no fire drills, no steam heat, no paper pads as the scholars have now, but we were happy. There were long blackboards fastened in the back of the room. There were no seats in the back row so the boys and girls sat in chairs, the boys sometimes tipped back and the teacher would say, "Boys those chairs have got four legs." The school I refer to was in Lebanon near the Congregational church. Many happy days I have spent in that school room. Many of the scholars will remember the examples given us, such as, finding the interest of $540 from a certain number of years down to seconds and explain them. The school at that time was taught by Isaac Gillette. He was a good teacher and he made the scholars learn. I heard him say, that his scholars are scattered all through the United States.

My first teacher was Miss Sarah Peckham and my last one Edward Hinckley.

Great Grandma: I am glad you were so pleasantly remembered by post cards on your birthday.

Best wishes to all.

SILVER LOCKS.

LIKES SHORTCAKE RECIPE.

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: Good morning, folks. Nice and warm today.

Ethalyn: I tried your shortcake recipe and it was just fine. I made it and had it on the table ready to eat in less than a half hour, and my folks said: "Um, um, That's good." Send some more recipes.

I, too, wish to say I agree with the sisters that there should be a day to honor our fathers, or some way to show our appreciation of their love and faithfulness. I had a dear father and will always honor his memory.

I am sending some more questions that the sisters can look up when resting in the cool hammock or porch:

1. What was the name of Aaron's wife?
2. Who was forbidden to eat anything from the vine?
3. What four persons does the Bible mention as being engaged in legitimate, remarkable and profitable oil speculation?
4. What king traded in apes and peacocks?

Answers to last week's questions:

1. Adam. Gen. 2: 16.
2. Hagar in the wilderness. Gen. 21: 14.
3. Abraham. Gen. 22: 2.

When lovely or fearful, read Matt. 6: 25-34.

When leaving home for travel, read Psalm 121.

Who has a birthday this month? Let us hear at least a line from everyone who has a birthday this month.

Best wishes to all.

SPRY BIRD.

WHAT FIRES DO.

Dear Editor and Friends of the Social Corner: It has been so long since I have written that it seems like "turning over a new leaf." The loss of my pretty home I shall never get over. How much damage fire will cause in just one hour, with a high wind. Things I can never replace are gone, with little insurance. One can never tell what is going to happen. How nice it is we don't know. Our lives would be one bad dream.

Primrose: I was glad to read your letter. I think your carpet cleaning idea was very nice. When I had a home I always took my mop, put it in some nice clean water and wiped under my beds. I also did my woolen carpet in that way and under my couch. It would make the carpet look brighter and stay clean much longer. Those that can have electric vacuum cleaners do not have to plan how to keep their homes clean the easiest way. I am living in the barn with one room, and not very nice at that. I can make out this summer, for it seems a little like camping out.

I have read about old schoolhouses and I have often wondered at the name of Horse Hill school. I suppose it is torn down and gone.

ROSALIND.

COOKING KINKS.

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: When making applesauce of dried apples, add cinnamon drops when you first begin to cook them, and by the time the apples are all cooked, the cinnamon drops will have imparted a delicate flavor and color and a cinnamon flavor that is most pleasing. Add sugar to taste.

When serving toast to invalids or children cut the toast into small cubes leaving the slice in its original shape, before putting on the eggs. Then the toast is very easily eaten by the children or invalid.

A delicious dessert is made with ripe, mealy apples for the foundation. Dip in boiling water, peel and core apples, then chop them rather coarsely. Serve in small dishes with a sauce made of powdered sugar and whipped cream.

WILLIAMS PROPERTY IN NEW LONDON IS BEING DISMANTLED BY NEW OWNERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, June 9.—The Metropolitan Wrecking company of New Haven, which firm has been awarded the contracting for removing the building at the corner of State and Huntington streets, recently acquired from William W. Williams of New York by Frederick W. Mercer, J. P. Taylor Armstrong and Theodore Bodenwein for $100,000 as sites for commercial houses, today started the task of razing the structure so that the plot can be divided into the eighteen or twenty store sites. Before the building is entirely dismantled such sections of the interior furnishings as can be removed without endangering the collapse of the building will be sold. After this has been done the structure will be taken down in sections and sold to the highest bidder. It is believed that the building will have been removed by the early part of July.

Mrs. Joanna Morgan Buddington, widow of Stephen Buddington, died today at her home in Groton, death resulting from infirmities brought about by her advanced years. Mrs. Buddington was 87 years of age.

Antone Sammatara, who was taken into custody last night charged with breach of the peace, was arraigned in the police court this forenoon, but no trial occurred as it was evident that the accused was mentally of unsound mind. Acting Judge Lewis Crandall ordered the case continued until the 11th inst., and placed the bond for Sammatara's appearance in court at $200. In the meantime, Sammatara will be a patient under observation at the State Hospital for the Insane at Fort Point, for he was committed temporarily to that institution by city physician following the session of court.

Bank street was the scene of an attempted burglary last night or this morning when the tonsorial shop of Patrick H. O'Brien at No. 19 was opened. It was discovered that entrance to the place had been accomplished by using a key such as the type that unfastens the door.

The Baker shop of Nathan Hochman on Notre Dame street, was entered by a thief during the day, but the crook did not obtain any plunder so far as Hochman has been able to determine. The entrance to the place was an extremely bold one for it was perpetrated in daylight and within a block of the police station. In order to gain access to the place the crook pried off a hasp from the front door.

The police have obtained no definite whereabouts of Alice Curran, aged 12 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Curran of No. 89 Potter street, who disappeared from home last Tuesday and was traced to Norwich the following day when she was seen in that city in company with a sailor. However, the father of the girl informed the New London police this afternoon that he had received information that might lead to the locating of the girl.

The trial of Julius Egnatosky, of Worcester, who was apprehended in New London two weeks ago by Sergeant Nelson Smith following a lively chase through the streets, will be given a hearing in the Worcester superior court Monday morning of the charge of theft. Sergeant Smith was today summoned to the trial.

George Vergason, aged 70 years, who resides alone on a houseboat, on the Groton side of the Thames river and but a short distance south of the Thames river highway bridge, collapsed in the waiting room of the Groton ferry this afternoon.

Grace McSheffrey, the nineteen year old girl, who was recently acquitted of the charge of manslaughter for the alleged death of her new-born babe by assandonment, in the superior court here, was taken into cussedy this afternoon by Detective Sergeant Charles Hammond because of the girl's conduct the past fortnight. The girl will not be prosecuted, but a continuation of her conduct will result in her being given further court notoriety, for Captain Charles A. Pluney administered a severe reprimand to the girl as to her future behavior and assured her that a continuation of her street behavior and that of her conduct at Ocean Beach would result in her being apprehended and punished.

The girl, who was to have been united in marriage to John J. Guinan, a sailor at the submarine base and who was living with the girl at the time of the McSheffrey girl's arrest and jointly charged with her of the crime now declares that she is again to attempt entering the matrimonial fields, for she declares that she is engaged to be married to a chief petty officer and that the wedding will take place this month, thus making her one of the many June brides.

During the electrical storm that struck the city between 8 and 9 o'clock this morning, a bolt of lightning struck the residence of John M. Reardon of the Cohanzie road, Waterford, the lightning passing into house on the roof and shocking one member of the family besides starting a blaze. The damage occasioned was not great.

The lightning upon entering the house narrowly missed Timothy Reardon, who was in the upper part of the house and although not hurt by the bolt he received a serious shock. The remaining members of the family were at the breakfast table, but they escaped even the experience of shock.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace C. Learned, who have been touring the European continent several weeks, have returned to their abode on Pequot avenue.

An automobile operated by Mrs. John Carville of Poquonoc and in which were Mrs. Charles Burrows, Mrs. Moel Kenyon, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Chase and Mrs. Simeon Fish, also of Poquonoc, overturned on Fort Hill, Poquonoc, late last night. Mrs. Burrows sustained a fractured rib and Mrs. Kenyon sustained a fractured wrist. The other occupants of the machine escaped injury other than bruises and contusions.

The accident occurred when the automobile was descending the steep hill. The car had descended but a short distance when an automobile ascending the hill came along. The headlights of the approaching machine were so strong that Mrs. Carville's vision was interfered with and she unconsciously operated the car off the highway and to a small embankment, causing the overturning of the automobile. The machine was badly wrecked and was towed to a garage this morning.

A rummage sale for the benefit of the Connecticut College for Women has been conducted in the vacant store at No. 48 State street the past two days and it developed today that not only shoplifters, but a pickpocket operated there. Yesterday women attendants discovered supposed purchasers purloining articles of wearing apparel and today a young lady while inspecting the salable articles was relieved of her purse containing $1s from the pocket of her coat. The thieving was not made known to the police until the theft of the money was revealed and while the attendants at the sale admitted the visiting of the place by suspicious acting persons, no definite description of the parties could be given.

Mrs. Williams, of No. 280 Williams street, a patient at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital some time, was transferred to the State Hospital for the Insane at Fort Point this evening. Mrs. Williams had become mentally weak and her transfer to the asylum was deemed for her best interests by relatives.

Funeral services for Mrs. Harriet L. Chadsey, widow of George H. Chadsey, were held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at her former home, No. 28 Williams street, Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the Huntington Street Baptist church, officiating. Relatives of Mrs. Chaysey acted as bearers. Interment was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Daniel Sullivan, son of John Sullivan of No. 49 Warren street, and employed as a linotype operator in New York, died at a New York hospital early this morning of spinal meningitis. He was about 26 years of age and besides his father, is survived by several sisters and brothers. The body will be brought to New London. Mr. Sullivan was employed by the Telegraph Publishing Company until the suspension of that publication about two years ago, when he went to New York and had been employed since on several metropolitan dailies. Early in the week Mr. Sullivan was taken ill and when his malady was diagnosed as meningitis, he was removed to a hospital where his decline was rapid.

The damage sustained by the craft is slight for she ground upon smooth surface.

Mrs. Meyer H. Hollandersky of Broad street was operated upon recently at Rochester, Minn. Advices received from the western hospital state that the condition of the patient is comfortable and that her early recovery is anticipated.

MRS. COFFMAN ILL SEVEN YEARS

Saved from an Operation by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sidell, Ill.—"I was a nervous wreck. I was suffering from a pain in my left side, which was almost unbearable, and I could not even let the bed clothing rest on my body at night. I had been sick for seven years, but not so bad until the last eighteen months, and had become so run-down that I cared for nobody, and would rather have died than live. I couldn't do my work without help, and the doctors told me that an operation was all there was left (I would not consent to that, so my husband brought me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged me to take it. I have taken fourteen bottles of it and I feel ten years younger. Life is full of hope. I do all my housework and had a large garden this year. I never will be without the Vegetable Compound in the house, and when my two little girls reach womanhood I intend to teach them to take it. I am never too busy to tell some suffering sister of my help, and you can use my name and letter to spread the good news of Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines."—Mrs. IDA M. COFFMAN, R. F. IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week James Webb, republican, and Nathan S. Gilbert, also republican, were elected aldermen at the Norwich city election in that the entire republican ticket was elected by good sized majorities. John L. Devotion, republican, city clerk, who was on both tickets received a total of 825 votes, while Charles Webb, also republican, who was elected treasurer, received a total of 831 votes.

The same week Hall Brothers' mill in Hallville was burned down together with a large stock. The loss was about $25,000 of which $16,000 was covered by insurance.

Monday, June 2, 1873—A two mill tax upon the grand list of New London county would yield $82,181.84. Thus it will be seen that of the $80,-000 additional which the county will probably be invited to contribute towards the new county courthouse in Norwich would pay $29,598.35 or considerably more than one third of the entire sum. But if the towns prefer to have Norwich pay the entire cost and make it the sole shire town of the county, that is the best way of settling the matter.

There has been much said of late in reference to the Hook and Ladder company of this city controlling the caucus for city tickets in years past and threats have been made that it would be brought out with full ranks at the caucus Saturday night. Well, they came out heavy—there were just nine of that company present.

Trade is so active on Water street now-a-days that some of the merchants doing business there leave their horses standing hitched in front of their stores all night in order to have them ready for business in the morning. One was left so Friday night. He stood there till the stable keeper missed him, when he was hunted up and driven to the barn.

Tuesday, June 3, 1873—The city election Monday passed off very quietly. There was a much larger vote cast than last year although very little excitement was manifested as to the result. The following is a statement of the vote as cast for each candidate.

There was a gang of men at work laying the new pavement at the junction of Main and Union streets yesterday, and they made good progress on the work.

The patience of the business men on Main and Shetucket streets is truly surprising. They stand in their doors and await the completion of the street improvements with as much sang froid as a condemned criminal waits the hour of his execution.

Many of the amateur chess players of the city now rendezvous at Burnham's store where one or more games are in progress most of the time.

The engineers on the Norwich and Worcester railroads decorated their locomotives with flags and flowers on Decoration Day.

During the month of May there were 164 lodges and 124 prisoners at the city prison. So says the Advertiser.

Wednesday, June 4, 1873 — The bright light seen in this city Monday night which brought out the fire department was the light of the fire that destroyed the Hall Brothers' mill at Preston (Hallville), about a mile from Poquetanuc. Benjamin Hall, one of the firm, was on his way home from this city at the time of the fire and had no idea of its origin, until informed by his wife, who was awaiting his return. The mill was a comparatively new one, of brick and frame. It was 82x64 feet in size and was used exclusively for the manufacture of carpet yarn from wool and the scouring of wool. Messrs. Hall had a large amount of stock all of which was destroyed with the entire building. The loss was about $25,000, insured for $16,000 in New England companies.

The 50th anniversary of the marriage of the Rev. C. S. Weaver and wife, was celebrated by their numerous friends on Monday afternoon and evening, at Union hall, Voluntown. About 100 of the invited guests personally appeared while many others responded by spirit and by letter.

H. H. Beckwith, who has been the jailer in this town since last March, 10 years ago, illustrates the healthfulness of the locality of the county jail with the fact that not a death has occurred within the prison during that time.

Thursday, June 5, 1873—The court house question bids fair to have a speedy settlement, at least as between the county, and the town and city. We are informed by our Hartford correspondent that the senators and representatives from New London county have held a meeting at which the proposition was made that the county should pay $35,000 additional, making $55,000 from the county in all and that the town and city of Norwich, should pay the rest. This certainly is very liberal on the part of Norwich, as the building, will cost nearly $800,000 when completed. The proposition doubtless will be accepted and will settle the matter without dispute.

Capt. Comstock launched his fine yacht this afternoon at 2 o'clock from his yard on Thames street. He has been engaged all winter in the construction of this boat and will make a trial trip with her in about three weeks. The launch will be quite an interesting sight and will doubtless be witnessed by a large crowd. The yacht is 45 feet in length and is built for speed and pleasure.

Capt. F. S. Wells, formerly of this city, has built and is now running a new hotel in Hastings, Neb., which he calls the "Thirteen." The town is a new one, but the paper printed there says it is very enterprising.

Friday, June 6, 1873—Henry Peale and G. G. Bottom have each fitted up a shop in the Pequot building, and are now making up for the time lost by their being burned out last spring by pushing their work to its utmost limit.

Farmers are complaining of the protracted drouth. Much of the corn already planted will not come up until we have rain and the meadows are suffering as much as the pasture fields. Unless rain comes soon the hay crop must be small.

Palmyra Encampment, I. O. O. F., of this city, is just equipping itself with the regalia adopted by the order. The purple and gold form a fine combination of colors and when worn over dark clothes present a fine appearance. We hope soon to see the Encampment out for parade with full ranks and in full dress regalia.

Strawberries were very plenty yesterday and were selling as low as twenty cents per basket.

The large P. N. Hill, at Albany, came up the river yesterday with a load of coal. It is the same that was built years ago by Dr. Charles Dawood of this city.

Saturday, June 7, 1873—The annual meeting of the New London County Association of Ministers was held at Colchester, June 3rd. The Rev. Mr. Hine was chosen moderator and the Rev. Mr. Lord of Gosben, scribe. The Rev. John Elderkin of Salem was received into membership.

The Rt. Rev. Bishop Williams of the diocese of Connecticut will visit Norwich on Saturday, the 15th inst. for confirmation, officiating at Christ church in the morning, Trinity in the afternoon and Yantic in the evening.

Workmen are engaged in tearing down the old unsightly buildings on the river side of Thames street and grading the side hill so it will present a more comely appearance.

A warm and refreshing shower came upon us yesterday which made the hearts of the Lincoln avenue farmers glad. The Franklin street farmer was overjoyed.

The Allen Manufacturing company are receiving orders for their printing presses and envelope machines faster than they can complete them. They boxed one yesterday, ready for shipment.

The new court house is now well supplied with time pieces. All the rooms in the various departments are provided with clocks, those in the town hall and superior court room being very large ones.

Mayflower Descendants.

The Society of Mayflower Descendants in the State of Connecticut held a spring meeting by invitation of New Haven members at the New Haven Lawn club on Tuesday. There was a large attendance from New Haven, Bridgeport, New London, Deep, Middletown, Meriden, Groton, Putnam, Naugatuck, New Britain, Waterbury, Winsted, South Manchester, Cornwall, Hartford, Ryecke and Lakeville. An address was given by Professor William Lyon Phelps of Yale University, Miss Charlotte Little deBeecy. Food was devoured, and the royal hands were used to pick a joint, and even dipped in the gravy. The bones were flung on the floor where the dogs quarreled over them.

And this was the kitchen of a king! Our modern kitchen, with all its time saving equipment and spotlessness, is fit for a queen—the queen of every household.

The dirty, smoky open fireplaces and the ash-heaped ovens have given way to the Scientific Sterling Ranges. No longer are foods cooked in a haphazard way. The Sterling—using either coal or gas for fuel—furnishes an even temperature that thoroughly cooks, bakes or broils.

It is sanitary, economical, dependable, durable and beautiful and has the patented combination coal or gas water heater. To the modern housewife, it is indispensible, worth the ransom of a king of the middle ages.

Yes, worth a king's ransom, yet so easily purchased that every woman can now have one in her kitchen and let it practically pay for itself by the saving it effects in fuel, food and time. All you have to do is step into the Sterling Dealer's store today, he will show you just the style Sterling that best meets your needs and also arrange convenient terms of payment if you desire. Buy your Sterling and you will be more glad than ever that you are a queen of today.

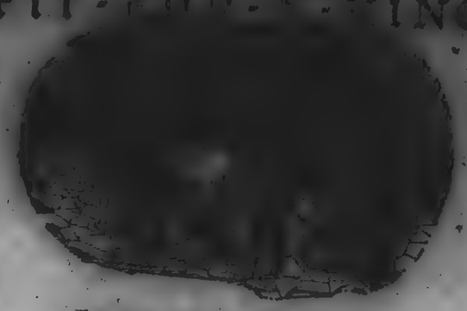
A KITCHEN FIT FOR A KING



A TALE OF OLD ENGLAND

Kings were decidedly in the minority centuries ago, and only they and a few of the lords and dukes of old England were able to maintain kitchens.

If the housewife could turn back the pages of history, she would see some astounding things—things that would make her thankful that she is living in a century where modern science and craft have evolved the new kitchen and the kitchen range.

In the 14th century the kitchen of a king was in a building set apart from the castle, and all the food had to be carried through a long passageway to the great dining hall. The kitchen was usually one story in height, and in the center was an opening from which the steam and smell of cooking could escape.

There were two or more open fireplaces—one was used for making stews, broths and for boiling meat. Joints and poultry were roasted before the open fire on a spit resting in two grooved stumps. In the other fireplace were the ovens where the baking was done. The ovens were large ovals in shape and were built in the thickness of the wall with an arched roof over them. Bundles of faggots were placed inside, lighted and the iron doors closed in front. The burning faggots heated the air in the ovens and the brick work around them. The cooks raked the ashes of the faggots out of the oven and put in the bread or pastry. When the oven cooled off, the food was removed and was supposed to be cooked.

Of course, in the dining hall, where this carelessly prepared food was ceremoniously served, there were great scenes enacted. There was the raised table for the king and his close friends and smaller tables for the court attendants. Servants rushed to and fro, musicians played, harpers recited romances; acrobats and tumblers gave exhibitions. There was

Whipple issued a premature call for a council meeting at the council chamber for Friday morning of a meeting scheduled for next Monday morning, when a street lighting expert will be present. McCarty of Rockville for victualing license at Watch Hill. Mrs. McCarty has purchased the Bishop block on the east side of Bay street, on leased land, and following the burning of her millinery store at Rockville has sought this permit, which was laid on the table at the regular June council meeting. Bearing the endorsement of Chief of Police Brown the license was granted and paid for by the West Side prosecuting attorney, George R. McKenna the business may continue in the sale of frankfurters, etc., which was stopped on Memorial Day. Advantage was taken at this meeting to vote the milk dealers' licenses, pigeonholed.

SEVERE ELECTRICAL STORM DOES DAMAGE IN WESTERLY

Westerly, R. I. June 8.—Lightning on Friday morning struck the house at 23 Liberty street, owned by Mrs. May A. Mather and entered the dwelling and passed out on the electric light wires, damage to the extent of $400 or $500 resulting. Shortly after 8 o'clock at the time of the deafening thunder crack a lightning bolt struck the chimney of the house occupied by Miss Katherine Murphy and Denis Murphy on the first floor and the family of James A. Donohue on the second. The bricks were knocked to the ground on both sides of the house carrying the debris in all directions, in fact, some pieces of brick were thrown across Liberty street, landing in front of the door of the new Lawton gasoline filling station, 100 yards distant from the chimney. The bolt passed down through the valley between the two gables, ripping off shingles, and hurling them to the ground. Though the hole this made the bolt entered the rear third floor bed chamber, knocking off lathes and plastering, jumped across the room making a large hole in the floor where it reached an electric light circuit over the center of the kitchen. Plastering and broken laths were piled in a heap in the middle of the kitchen floor from the large opening above where the bolt continued to the adjoining dining room where more plaster and laths were torn off. The covers from the chimney openings were blown out and the room was filled with soot. As the chimney in the cellar showed no effects of the bolt it is thought that the electricity passed out of the house to the transformer box which was torn from the pole across the street. At the same time the fuse plug was blown across the Lawton store, the pieces landing on an open desk. Most fortunately no one was injured, although Miss Katherine Murphy was in the bedroom engaged in straightening the room when the bolt passed by her forcing her against the wall. In the dining room of the second floor Mrs Donohue was on the cough with a small child and likewise escaped injury while sustaining a nervous shock. The P. S. Barber Hose company responded with ladders but the force of the downpour of rain extinguished all fire which was started. Considerable water poured in the opening in the roof before the shower ceased and necessitated repairs which were made later.

A temporary derangement was caused by the electrical storm to the Pawcatuck fire alarm which was afterwards remedied by C. E. Cottrell & Son company.

At the time of the morning electrical storm the house on Mystic avenue, lower Pawcatuck, occupied by W. E. Maryott was struck by lightning bolt, shingles were torn off, leaving a large hole in the roof, at the same time the ridge pole was raised up. Apparently the lightning could not enter the house but passed to the ground by way of the water heater pipe. The damage was estimated at $100.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

WATCH POTATO SEED

Extended observation of the potato seed stock coming into the state this spring, including both certified and uncertified seed, indicates the presence of an usually large amount of rhizoctonia or black scurf. The affected tuber may be known by black masses attached to the skin and that appear to be small black soil particles but that will not come off by washing the potatoes. The masses may be removed with the thumb nail. Yields are materially reduced by this disease.

All seed stock should be treated with corrosive sublimate. Wooden barrels or vats should be used to make the solution, as the compound corrodes metals. One quarter pound (four ounces) dissolved in 30 gallons of water is the standard solution. To make the solution, first dissolve the corrosive sublimate in two quarts of hot water and then add to the barrel of water. Immerse the potatoes in the solution and leave them 1 1-2 hours. Thirty gallons will cover about four bushels of potatoes. After the proper time has elapsed, remove the potatoes and add slightly less than one ounce of corrosive sublimate previously dissolved in hot water and make up the solution to 30 gallons when a second lot of tubers are treated as before. It is necessary to add more corrosive sublimate as directed to make good that lost on the potatoes. By addition of corrosive sublimate one may continue the treatment indefinitely. However, some prefer to make no additions, to soak each lot 15 minutes longer than the preceding one was soaked and to discard the solution after the third soaking and make a new one.

Corrosive sublimate is a deadly poi-

THE CALYX SPRAY FOR APPLES, PEARS AND QUINCES

It is nearly time for the calyx spray, which is perhaps the most important of all treatments of the season. As soon as the petals have nearly all dropped the calyx spray may be applied, but trees in blossom should not be sprayed; some of the pistils may be injured so that fruit will not set, and there is great danger of poisoning bees—which are very desirable guests of the orchard as they pollenate the flowers, increasing the crop of fruit.

The materials to be used in the calyx spray and the order of mixing them are as follows:

Clean water in tank.

1-2 pint 40 per cent. nicotine sulphate.

1-2 pound sicium casainate spreader (Kayso).

1 1-2 pounds powdered arsenate of lead.

1 1-4 gallons liquid lime sulphur.

Water to make 50 gallons.

The lead arsenate is to kill the codling moth and other chewing insects. The lime-sulphur is for scab and other fungus diseases. The nicotine is to destroy aphids, red bugs and other sucking insects. The spreader gives a more uniform coating of the spray, makes it stick better and go father, and prevents chemical reactions between the different ingredients of the mixture. Bordeaux mixture may be substituted for lime-sulphur on russets and certain other non russeting varieties. Bordeaux mixture is apt to russet the fruit, and for this reason has been largely supplanted for this and subsequent sprays by the lime-sulphur. However, some growers still use it, on account of its good fungicidal [illegible] thorough, covering all sides of fruit and leaves.

HATCHING TIMES VARY FROM 17 TO 42 DAYS

The period of incubation in eggs differs not only with the kind of bird but also with other conditions writes S. W. Shoemaker. The eggs of fowls of middle and large sized breeds will ordinarily hatch after twenty-one days of incubation, but there is some variation.

For example, fresh laid eggs will hatch in fewer hours than eggs that are kept two weeks or longer before incubation is started. Eggs that are kept more than four weeks may not produce chicks at all.

Fresh laid eggs, that is, eggs placed for incubation within twenty-four to forty eight hours after being laid, will often hatch in from eight to twelve hours less than older eggs. Eggs for hatching that have been kept at an even temperature of about fifty five degrees Fahrenheit for two weeks should hatch in about twenty-one days.

The vigor of the hen makes a difference in the eggs. The more vigorous hens will produce eggs of good vitality. Such eggs can be kept longer than others and are also likely to have a somewhat shorter period of incubation.

The following table gives the average period of incubation for fowls and other poultry and birds, the figures given being average of a large number of eggs:

Bantams and other small breeds, 19 and 20 days.

Muscovy duck, 35 days.

Muscovy duck crossed with Pekin or other drake, 32 days.

Geese, 28 days.

Turkeys, 27 to 29 days.

Turkeys, 27 to 29 days.

Guinea fowls, 28 to 30 days.

Pheasants, 24 to 26 days.

Peafowls, 27 to 29 days.

Pigeons, 17 days.

Swans, 35 to 40 days.

Ostriches, 40 to 42 days.

ALL SUMMER GREENS

With the first [illegible] of early or showing through the soil, it is time to be getting in the later crops, the bigger heavier-eared sorts such as Evergreen or Country Gentleman, which are standard types.

While the early corn, which is usually dwarf growing, may well be planted in rows, the later types with their heavier stalks should be grown in hills. Corn, despite its heavy root system, is a shallow-rooting plant, making the least depth of any of the garden crops. Therefore heavy fertilizing of the surface soil is advisable with commercial fertilizers as well as spading in liberal quantities of stable manure whenever available.

The hills should be two feet apart in rows three to four feet apart and the compatch should always be a square or as nearly so as the garden will permit. The square planting will give fuller ears because the corn depends upon the wind to blow the pollen from the tassels upon the silks, without which there will be no kernel formed, each individual silk representing one kernel on the cob.

There should be two or three late plantings of corn because the late plantings are least likely to attacks of the corn worm, a pest that, formerly almost entirely confined to the South, during the last few seasons has become a nuisance in the North and many fine ears are ruined by this disgusting "worm".

Corn, more than any other garden vegetable, needs steady cultivation almost up to the time of bearing, but this cultivation should be shallow—no chopping deep with the hoe as this is likely to injure the shallow but wide-spreading root system. It also needs hilling up to give the auxiliary roots which spring from the lower joints a chance to lodge in the earth and help support the plant.

The earliest corn crops are usually all in by May 25. Later plantings should be made to carry the crop along—smaller plantings and more of them are the best motto for the small garden, using the space of the earliest vegetables for a few hills of late corn.

ALL SUMMER GREENS

A peculiar vegetable from the other side of the world which shares with [illegible] the flavoring of early all, although used in the same manner. Seed of New Zealand spinach should not be sown before May 1 or later, when the ground becomes warm as it will not germinate while the ground and the weather remain chilly.

Unlike the true spinach it is a long season vegetable and remains in bearing until fall. As this stranger from the Antipodes makes a strong growth, sometimes attaining a spread of from six to eight feet, it needs plenty of room and the plants should be set two feet apart. Both the stem and the leaves are brittle and succulent and are not affected by heat which quickly sends the ordinary spinach up to seed and destroys its usefulness in the garden.

The New Zealand spinach is a relative of the ice plant often grown for ornament and the seed is much slower to germinate than that of the true spinach, sometimes taking three weeks to appear if the weather is cool. But with hot weather it makes a rapid growth and when well grown more than half a peck of leaves per plant may be picked from time to time during the summer. The tips of the leaves are the tenderest.

Unlike the true spinach, the leaves are picked instead of pulling up the entire plant.

The "greens" when cooked precisely in the same manner as spinach have much the same flavor as the better known vegetable now so largely grown.

JOHN ALDEN FLOUR

The Art of Making Devil's Food Cake

You can make the most delicious chocolate devil's food cake if you will keep two rules in mind; get a recipe that has been tested over and over again, and use only the best ingredients.

The recipe shown here has been prepared by culinary experts, and the success you will have with it is due just as much to the use of John Alden Flour as to the skill of the cooks who worked out the proportions and method to follow.

John Alden Flour has long been favored by the famous cooks of New England. Many have said they prefer it for its economy, because it can be used wherever flour is needed. Others prefer it for the wholesome deliciousness it lends to their cooking.

Try John Alden Flour with this recipe and you will find that "it speaks for itself."

Devil's Food

2½ cups John Alden Flour,
1 teaspoons soda,
2 teaspoons baking powder,
½ cup shortening,
2 cups sugar,
2 eggs,
1 cup sour milk,
½ cup water,
3 squares chocolate,
½ teaspoon salt.

All measurements are level. Sift the John Alden Flour once before measuring. Cream the fat and sugar together. Mix and sift the flour, soda, baking powder, and salt. Add the beaten egg to the fat and sugar and then add the liquid and the dry ingredients alternately. When these are thoroughly mixed, add the melted chocolate.

Bake in 3 well greased layer pans about 35 minutes in a moderate oven (375° F).

7 MINUTE FROSTING

1½ cups granulated sugar,
4 tablespoons cold water,
2 egg whites, unbeaten,
1 teaspoon baking powder,
1 teaspoon vanilla.

Put all the ingredients except the vanilla into the top of a double boiler over boiling water. Beat with a dover egg beater vigorously for 3 minutes. Take off the fire, beat 4 minutes more, add the vanilla and spread on the cake.

POETRY

WHEN EVEN COMETH ON.

The mother-heart doth yearn at eventide,
And wheresoever straying ones may roam,
When even cometh on they all fare home.
'Neath feathered sheltering the brood doth hide,
In eager flights the birds wing to their nest,
While happy lambs and children romp the more,
And to the folds do herds one by one,
As night doth gather slowly in the west.
All ye who hurry through life's busy day,
Hark to the greeting that the ages tell,
"The sun doth rise and set, hail and farewell."
But comfort ye your heart wherever ye stray,
For those who through this little day do roam,
When even cometh on shall all fare home.
—Lucy Evangeline Tilley.

JUST NAMES.

By dreamy silken Samarcand the tinkling fountains play,
The bulbul sings the whole night through, and the maidens sing by day;
Throughout the centuries the bards have hymned its rippling rill—
But who would speak of Samarcand if its name was Thompsonville.

The leaves of Vallambrosa whirl so swiftly in the breeze
That they've become a synonym for all earth's loveliest trees,
But the wood of Vallambrosa is the poet's treasure trove
That we had never heard of, had its name been Johnhider's Grove.

Suppose the Isle of Avalon were christened Mudcat Spit—
Would Tennyson, or anyone, have celebrated it?
Would poets praise its beauty so, or painters go so food
Of Windermere, if it were known as Pumpernickel Pond?

The Vale of Cashmere have the very soul, in book or map,
But what if it were Grandma Golch, or Sturtzenburger's Gap?
I've tried all day to write an ode, and cannot turn the trick,
Because the loveliest spot I know on earth is Pick-rel Creek!
—Ted Robinson, in Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Man (helping the dear young thing find a book in the public library)—Have you read 'Freckles?'

Dear Young Thing—No, just the plain old brown ones.—Blue Hen Weekly.

"One false note will often spoil love's sweet song," remarked the professor.

"Yes," chuckled the cynic, "especially if the divorce lawyer can introduce it as evidence!"—New York Sun.

Jessie—Oh, well, it's better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all.

Jim—Yes, it is better for the florists, jewelers, confectioners and sometimes for the lawyers.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

"There are two sides to every question," sternly said huge and hawk-billed Mrs. Meek.

"Yes, my dear," replied skimpy little Mr. Meek, "yours and who else's?"—Kansas City Star.

An old geographical name is often disguised by being in a foreign tongue. Take the Ladrones, for instance, a well known group of Pacific Islands. Magellan gave them this name because the natives were such inveterate purloiners, and "Thieves' Islands" they have remained ever since.—Los Angeles Times.

Infuriated Prof—Sir, you lack ambition, incentive and backbone. You are hopeless. Do you know that when Sir Isaac Newton was your age he had contributed two great science books to the world?

Impudent Stude — Yes, and when George Washington was your age he was president of the United States.—Judge.

A novel device for cutting the twine with which bundles of grain are bound is intended to be worn on the worker's left hand. Twenty railroads averaged $4.81, net gain .96 high 1932, 90.63, low 89.12.

MARKET WAS REACTIONARY

New York, June 8—Intermittent profit taking and short selling imparted a reactionary trend to industrial shares in today's more active stock market, but the railroad issues, particularly the low priced carriers, were in good demand at advancing prices. The large bulk of the business was again in the hands of professional traders.

Strength of the railroad issues was based on reports of good earnings, one April figures showing a return of 6 1-2 per cent. on the tentative property valuation, unusually heavy car loadings for this season of the year and speculative expectation of a resumption of dividends by some roads and a higher rate for others.

New York Central was one of the outstanding features, rising 1 3-8 points to 101 1-4, a new high record for the year. Buying of this issue was attributed to reports of the stock being placed on a $6 or $7 basis at next week's meeting of the board of directors. Pere Marquette, which was placed on a $4 basis early in the week, also established a new high at 46 1-2. St. Paul common and preferred, Chesapeake & Ohio, Chicago & Northwestern, Atlantic Coast Line, Atchison, Wabash preferred, A. and B., Frisco preferred, and Western Maryland second preferred advanced one to two points.

American express dropped five points to a new low record for the year. California Petroleum lost nearly the same amount on profit taking. International Harvester which had established a new low at 74 5-8 rallied later to 76 3-4 for a small fractional gain on the day. Pierce Arrow preferred dropped 4 1-4. Reports that the European demand for sugar this year had been largely satisfied caused active selling of the sugar securities. Cuba cane preferred, Cuban American, Manaati and Punta Alegre dropping two to three points. Sesuste stores jumped nearly five points to a new high record on rumors of its merger with some other tobacco company.

Call money held at 4 3-4 throughout the day. There was no change in the time money and commercial paper rates.

The feature of the foreign exchange market was the creation of a new low record by the German mark below .0012 cents. Cable reports indicating France's rejection of the latest German reparations offer resulted in a slight lowering of the other continental rates. Demand sterling dropped nearly a cent, to $4.61 3-8.

BOND MARKET

New York, June 8—Interest in today's trading in bonds on the New York stock exchange centered largely in the railroad issues, with foreign government bonds a close second in volume of dealings.

Serbian 8s, up 1 1-8, continued to lead in activity in the foreign group, the demand resulting for the most part from interest in the forthcoming austrian loan. Most of the French issues sold off slightly on cable reports that France is expected to reject the latest German reparations offer. Lyons 6s dropped 1 1-2 and several others were down fractionally.

United States government bonds were relatively quiet with little change in prices. The tax exempt 3 1-2s moved up 5-32 of a point and the liberties fluctuated within narrow limits.

Although trading in the railroad issues was quite active price changes were small. "Katy" new prior lien 6s gained a point and Norfolk & Southern 6s lost the same amount. Sugar shares followed the stocks downward, Punta Alegre 7s dropping 2 1-2 and several others losing large fractions. Virginia Carolina Chemical 7 1-2s, with warrants, dropped 1 1-2. American Telephone & Telegraph convertible 6s gained a point.

Total sales (par value) were $11,270,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, June 8—With prospects apparently less promising for a settlement between Germany and France and with harvest weather favorable in Oklahoma, bears had an advantage in the wheat market today. Crop estimates from Washington proved moderately bullish as to wheat, but were issued after the trading here had ended. Closing prices for wheat were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 1 1-4 cents lower, July 110 1-4 to 110 1-2 and September 103 3-8 to 103 7-8. Corn closed at 1-8 cent off and provisions 15 cents to 30 cents down.

General selling which took place at the opening in the wheat market was ascribed largely to the fact that Germany's reparation offer had met with only adverse comment from French and Belgian sources, whereas considerable recent buying has been based on expectance that an agreement with Germany was near at hand. Word that clear warm weather prevailed in Oklahoma, where harvesting is to begin on Monday, tended further to weaken values because fear had existed that rains would turn out to be a serious hindrance.

Trade evening up to prepare for the government report helped somewhat to steady the wheat market during the late dealings and persistent talk of crop damage in Kansas and Oklahoma caused relative strength in the July delivery. Meanwhile, export business was described as slow but world shipments for the week were estimated as larger than last week's total and more than double the aggregate a year ago.

Scarcity of offerings made corn prices average higher. Oats were depressed by erroneous bearish forecasts of the government's crop report as to oats.

Provisions turned weak in sympathy with hog values.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS

Interesting visits were made by Wauregan lodge No. 6, to Undaunted Lodge, No. 34, of Jewett City on Thursday, May 31st and to Oliver Woodhouse lodge, No. 61, of Colchester on June 2nd, where the rank of knight was conferred upon large classes. Wauregan lodge had ten candidates, who were brave enough to make the venture. On June 12th, the rank of page will be conferred upon another class of candidates. A full attendance is requested to make the newly made knights welcome and take part in the initiation ceremonies.

REBEKAHS

Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 21, had a meeting with an attendance of 50 Wednesday evening in Odd Fellows' hall, Noble Grand Bertha Collins presiding. An entertainment followed the business session.

The members are looking forward to the next meeting with particular interest as it will be the celebration of the anniversary of the lodge and is to be attended by several grand officers, including Mary E. Lovett of Willimantic, grand president; Ethel M. Barrows of New London, grand vice president; Emma Wilson of Stamford, grand warden and D. D. F. Minnie Amburn of Norwich. The programme for the evening begins with a supper at 6.30, following which will come the meeting and entertainment.

JUNIOR MECHANICS

Buckingham Council, No. 14, held its regular session Wednesday evening at Buckingham Memorial with Vice Councilor H. E. Eddings presiding. In spite of the hot weather the meeting was largely attended and much business of importance was transacted.

It was announced that at the meeting next Wednesday their first nomination for officers for the ensuing term will take place. All members are expected to attend, as there will be social hour and a smoker at the close of the business session.

Vice Councilor Eddings who has recently returned from a trip in the western states had some very interesting talk to make about this patriotic and fraternal order out in that section of the country. However his speel was so lengthy that some of the members who have to go home by trolley began to get uneasy as it was near time for the last cars when Brother Eddings decided to hold over the rest of his talk till a later date.

Special invitations are being sent out to each of the members of this council for the next four meetings especially which include first and second nominations, elections and installation of officers. Therefore a record breaking attendance is expected.

FOREIGN WAR VETERANS

That the poppy inaugurated and fostered by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States has become universally recognized as a national institution is expressed by leaders in the veterans' organization, who announce that the V. F. W. alone sold over 4,000,00 of the memorial flowers, during a campaign which extended from May 26th to 30th. The success of the campaign was far beyond the realization of the national committee, who were besieged with a rush of last minute orders and unable to fill the demand. The profit realized from the sale of poppies will be added to the veterans relief fund of the organization.

EAGLES

Norwich Aerie, No. 267, met in regular session Monday evening in Eagles' home, 24 Shetucket street, when the reports of the auditing committee were given which showed the lodge to be in a good financial standing and an increase in membership. State Chaplin George Lewis of Putnam had charge of the installation of officers resulting as follows: Junior past worthy president, William R. Hamedt; worthy president, Edward J. Mullins; worthy vice president, Timothy Fields; worthy chaplain, John T. F. Burns; secretary, John Leirick; treasurer, Charles O. Wright; worthy conductor, Victor Payment; inside guard, Alfred Steinke; outside guard, John Bowne; trustee for three years, R. A. Krohn; trustee for two years, David Farrell; trustee for one year, Jeremiah Fallon; physician, Dr. Clarence Thompson.

After the installation of officers the members of the lodge enjoyed an entertainment by Professor Banfield and refreshments of cake, sandwiches and coffee were served. There was a large attendance at the meeting.

MACCABEES.

The W. B. A. of the Maccabees held their regular meeting last Wednesday night in the Buckingham Memorial. After the meeting the members spent a social hour. Ice cream and cake were served.

FORESTERS.

The membership campaign to be of a month's duration is now on in full swing in Court City of Norwich, No. 63, and from all indications when the campaign closes on the last of this month, Court City of Norwich will be well on their way toward the one thousand member mark. This court leads all others in the state in membership. Plans are now under way for a large degree and reception of candidates to be held some time in July. The annual clambake will be held soon but before that the court will have another old fashioned smoker the dates to announced later.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS.

At a special meeting of Waite Cross council, No. 18, held Thursday evening in the basement of St. Patrick's church the second degree was conferred upon a class of 20 candidates by the officers of the council, of which Michael J. Curran is grand knight. At a meeting held earlier in the week, the council had presented to it by a real estate agent a certain new building proposition but the plan was rejected by vote of the meeting.

MAINE BARRED ROCKS IN LEAD AT STORRS

The hens at Storrs have now laid a grand total of more than 100,000 eggs. Weekly production is falling off a little as was to be expected and as happens in every flock. Last week the birds came through with 3927 eggs or a yield of more than 56 per cent. This seems quite satisfactory to the management especially in view of two or three hot sultry days that are not conducive to egg production. The fact is that a few heat prostrations were expected but fortunately none developed. Poultrymen who are doing trapnesting should nevertheless be warned that during the next two months there are sure to be days on which it will be necessary to devote extra time and attention to their birds. Hens that have to remain in trapnests for two hours or more on hot days may suffer prostration which usually results fatally.

Barred Rocks from Berwick, Me., owned by Jasper E. Guptill were the outstanding pen in the thirty-first week with a production of 59 eggs. Pusey Willow Egg Farm's pen of White Leghorns from East Moriches, L. I., was second best pen for the week with a score of 57 eggs. Incidentally it may be added that this pen gained 15 eggs on Lady Anderson's pen of English Wyandottes that have been leading the contest for the last four weeks. Two other pens of Leghorns owned by F. M. Johnson of Waldoboro, Maine, and D. B. Walls of Petaluma, California, tied for third place with 55 eggs each. A pen of White Rocks entered by Albert T. Lenzen from North Attleboro, Mass., and a pen of Barred Rocks owned by Jules F. Francais at Westhampton Beach, L. I., tied for fourth place with 53 eggs each.

NO "BOARDERS" ALLOWED IN HOXIE FARM HERD

Cows have to work for a living on the farm of Myron Hoxie at Lebanon. He is now milking fourteen cows with an average milk production of about 8,000 pounds, and he has a string of well bred heifers that promise to increase this average.

Just the other day Mr. Hoxie sold one of his cows for the simple reason that she failed to make more than 5,000 pounds of milk in a year. When it is remembered that census figures show that the average production for New London county cows is only 3,500 pounds of milk in a year it is evident that Mr. Hoxie believed that one trouble with the dairy business is poor cows.

"There is no money in 5,000 pounds cows," said Mr. Hoxie, "and I would rather quit farming than to milk cows that only pay for their keep. It costs little more to feed and care for an 8,000 pound cow. Of course, it is very difficult to buy high producing cows at reasonable prices but in this section we figure that we can raise the good cows cheaper than we can buy them."

Cost figures compiled by Connecticut Agricultural college indicate that cows in this state must produce at least 5,000 pounds of milk to a year to pay their owners for their labor and interest on investment. This figure is set as the minimum production sought by the New London county farm bureau in its present campaign for improvement of the dairy industry.

Although Mr. Hoxie has been operating his own farm but seven years, he started with a few good cows and has used only pure bred bulls. He has three cows sired by King Korndyke Fannie Veeman's Prince, a son of the $12,000 bull owned by the late Senator Henry Hall of West Willington. These cows are doing much to increase the production of his herd and their heifer calves are expected to raise the quality of his herd. While $12,000 bulls are beyond the reach of the average farmer, Mr. Hoxie has made a close study of blood lines of the Holstein breed and has always made a practice of owning the best bulls he could afford. His father learned the value of good bulls from whom Myron Hoxie got his conviction.

With the purebred heifers now on the farm, he expects to weed out all grade cows in his herd. His experience indicates that the better the breeding the better the cow as a producers. A grand daughter of King of the Pontiac produced 63 pounds of milk daily on only two milkings. No effort has been made to go after high records, requiring three or four milking daily, but the owner's ambition is to build up a practical farm herd of high producing cows.

Mr. Hoxie is the chairman of the county dairy committee of the farm bureau. Under direction of this committee, the farm bureau is starting a campaign, beginning this month to eliminate all scrub bulls from the county and to bring in better cows from other states. The towns of Lebanon and Franklin have been selected in which to inaugurate the campaign. As these towns are big milk producing districts they are expected to set the pace for the rest of the county.

milk of the Lebanon district, the product of the Hoxie farm goes by truck to Willimantic, to be shipped to Providence. Expense of milk production in the Lebanon district is reduced somewhat by the fact that the farmers operate a cooperative grain buying association. By purchasing grain at the time of western harvests, when the price is lowest, it is possible to make considerable saving to members of the cooperative.

LATE SATURDAY TROLLEY FOR POINTS NORTH

Through the efforts of a special committee of the Retail Merchants Bureau, arrangements have been made with the Connecticut Co. to make a late trolley trip on Saturday night for the accommodation of those people living along the line served by the Connecticut Company, who may desire to extend their stay in Norwich.

Beginning this (Saturday) night, and until futher notice, a trolley will leave Franklin square for Jewett City, Plainfield and Central Village at 9.45 standard time, or 9.45 daylight time. This is in the nature of an experiment by the trolley company and if the patronage shows that the people want this late car, it will be continued every Saturday night.

POLICE MAKE ARREST OF NORTH MAIN ST. MAN

John Yolanda was arrested Friday night at his home, No. 516 North Main street, when the police visited the place with a search warrant and found there a bottle of what is alleged to be hooch. He is accused of violation of the prohibition law. He gave bail for his appearance in court.

The police making the search were Sergeant Thomas Murphy, Officers P. Driscoll, J. Lewandowski, J. Carroll and J. Gilman.

D. H. HOUGH SUPERINTENDENT OF EMPLOYMENT BUREAU

The vacancy left by the death of George L. Chesbro, superintendent of the Norwich state employment bureau, has been filled by the appointment of Dwight H. Hough of this city, who takes office from the first of July. The appointment has just been made by Harry E. Mackenzie, commissioner of labor and factory inspector, who has also appointed Mrs. Chesbro as assistant superintendent. Soon after her husband's death she was appointed superintendent and has been darrying on the duties of the office since then.

The appointment is one that will win the approval of Norwich citizens, among whom Mr. Hough is exceedingly well known. For many years he was connected with the hardware house of Eaton, Chase & Co., and following this he was cashier of the Uncas National bank for a number of years. More recently he has been local agent for an out of town company. His wide business experience and his acquaintances with this territory, its manufacturing and mercantile interests qualify him notably for the duties of the office to which he has been appointed.

DARING DAYLIGHT ROBBERY IN WILLIMANTIC STORE

Willimantic, June 9.—One hundred dollars worth of silk was stolen from the J. B. Fullerton & Co., dry goods store, Friday, in a bold daylight robbery staged by four young women, who came into the store about 6 o'clock this afternon, and all were attired in long black capes.

Two of the women walked to the further end of the store and engaged some of the clerks in conversation while the other two went to the center of the room. The fourth girl remained near the entrance where a number of expensive silk rolls were piled on a counter.

After a few minutes the women left and boarded a machine bearing a New York registration number. The robbery was not discovered until some time later. The machine was seen to head west on Main street towards Hartford. The local police were notified and telephone calls to Hartford revealed the fact that the machine had been seen in Hartford where the driver asked directions for the Springfield road.

About a half hour after the robbery one of the clerks in the store went to get some of the silk but it could not be found. She immediately asked Mr. Fullerton if he had removed the material. Search was then made and upon investigation the guilt for the robbery was placed on the New York visitors.

The rolls of silk were all in full length, two of them having been unpacked today.

BAY STATE DIVORCE LAW COMPLICATES THIS WEDDING

The marriage of Leroy E. Tufft of Mystic to the divorced wife of William Mackenzie of Attleboro has been attacked by Mackenzie on the ground that the ceremony performed in Stonington is not legal under the laws of Massachusetts. The decision rests with the superior court of Bristol county, Mass.

Of the presentation of the case in the superior court, the New Bedford Standard says:

"Mrs. Isabelle Mackenzie became the wife of Tifft on Dec. 20, 1932, only a month and a half following the divorce obtained on Nov. 5 1921. The divorce was granted in Bristol county upon the ground of desertion. [illegible] while the marriage of Mr. Tifft and Mrs. Mackenzie took place at Stonington. The question before Judge William P. Burns in superior court at New Bedford Wednesday was as to the validity of the second marriage. Both Mr. Mackenzie and Mr. Tifft were in court, but only Mr. Tifft was called upon to testify.

"Under the law of Massachusetts divorce decrees do not become absolute until six months following the granting of the divorce, and the libelee in divorce cases has the right to intervene to object to the decree becoming absolute if good cause can be shown. Mr. Tifft admitted being aware of the facts of the divorce, but he maintained that he, as well as Mrs. Mackenzie, prior to the marriage, took every precaution to make certain that the marriage in Connecticut would be legal. Mr. Tifft admitted being informed by counsel in Massachusetts that the divorce papers would not be ready until six months following the divorce. He also exhibited a letter from the bureau of vital statistics of Hartford, Conn., in which he was informed that his marriage in the state of Connecticut would be legal, but the letter further stated that Mr. Tifft and his prospective wife might find that they had infringed on the laws of Massachusetts.

"Judge Burns took the papers. On his decision will depend the legitimacy of the child which is to be born to Mr Tifft and his wife four months later."

Standard of the World

Two vital facts explain the deep-rooted preference for V-type 90° eight-cylinder Cadillac.

First, Type 61 Cadillac is singled out from other cars by its dependability—by mechanical superiorities so great that the factory has never had to replace a single eight-cylinder engine.

The second fact is that Cadillac, instead of selling for more, actually sells for less than any car which has a valid claim to comparison with it.

Thus contrary to usual custom, the automobile which the majority of people have selected as the finest and best is also the lowest priced in its field.

The two facts of Cadillac preference can, indeed, be reduced to the one word, value.

The Cadillac has won and held public preference for the simple reason that people are convinced that it gives more, for less, than any other fine car in the world.

BLOODLESS REVOLUTION SUCCESSFUL IN BULGARIA

Officers' Reserve Corps Appears to Have Been a Dominant Factor in the Revolt—Government Was Overthrown Saturday Morning—Civil War is Feared by Some Observers—European Statesmen View the Situation With Apprehension.

Sofia, Bulgaria, June 10—(By the A. P.)—"A simple incident in the internal life of the country," is the way in which the first official statement of the new Bulgarian government describes the coup d'etat, which overthrew the Stambouliisky government and landed the cabinet ministers in jail. Just what effect it will have on the Bulgarian foreign policy is not yet divulged.

The existing public forces are well able to maintain order, and the mobilization of additional troops has not been called for.

The statement declares: "The government will be guided by the inflexible principles of justice and democracy in restoring Bulgaria's internal peace and order and will cultivate the closest relations and good neighborliness and friendship with adjoining states and rood will for the great powers by the utmost execution of its international obligations."

Up to a late hour Saturday no conflict or bloodshed had been reported in any part of Bulgaria. A meeting was held outside the parliament building and was addressed by the new ministers, Zankoff and Bobochevski, who declared the new government would re-establish the constitution. The ministers in the former Guchkoff and Malinoff cabinets, charged with the responsibility for Bulgaria's entry into the war, have been released.

Minister of Interior, M. Rousseff.

Agriculture and Public Education, M. Moloff.

Commerce and Industry, M. Bobochevski.

Public Works, M. Stoentcheff.

Finance, M. Todoroff.

Railways, M. Kasassoff.

Justice, M. Smiloff.

The majority of the new ministers belong to the Bourgeoise party and are also Russophile.

Some observers fear the present episode may lead to civil war. In such an eventuality, they point out, the Bulgarian army would be helpless to cope with the situation, as it is merely a police organization of a few thousand men. Dr. Stanciof, the Bulgarian minister in London, still is without advices concerning the uprising.

Like the Greek upheaval of last year, the Bulgarian revolt apparently was attended by slight disorder. The officers reserve corps, embracing all the country's best officers who fought in the world war, appears to have been a dominant factor in the revolt. This organization had the support of the active army and of the opposition political party, as well as the dangerous Macedonian revolutionary groups.

Three o'clock in the morning, when all Sofia was asleep and when Premier Stambouliisky was absent in the country, was chosen as the hour for the launching of the coup d'etat. Several factors, it seems, were behind the uprising. Among these are failure of the Macedonians to secure Autonomy; the cession of Karagatch, which was part of Bulgaria before the war, to Turkey; denial to Bulgaria of an outlet on the Aegean sea; dissatisfaction with Stambouliisky's alleged autocratic methods, and disapproval of the wholesale imprisonment of former cabinet ministers.

Although no news has been received here regarding King Boris, it is assumed that he remains on the throne. Friends of the youthful monarch say that he never at heart has sympathized with the Agrarian movement. They allege that Stambouliisky never lost an opportunity for humiliating the king and rendering him powerless in the affairs of the country.

"You shall reign but you shall not govern," Stambouliisky is reported to have told the king not long ago, and to have added: "You are king, not of the parties but of the working people. Sire, you shall reign so long as you have the confidence and support of a majority of the people, who could elect you as president of the republic if they desire."

REVOLUTION THE CAUSE OF ANXIETY IN FRANCE

Paris, June 10—(By the A. P.)—The Bulgarian revolution is observed here with anxious foreboding, in both French official circles and Bulgarian diplomatic quarters. While no one today was willing to express an official opinion regarding the significance of the coup d'etat, officials did not conceal misgivings that it may mean the beginning of very serious trouble, with even the possibility of an outbreak of hostilities in the Balkans.

Allied circles see in the revolt the cropping up of a very unwelcome pro-German element, which if it should be successful in holding power, may stir up knotty Balkan problems closely affecting the western European countries and certainly inject a troublesome element into the Balkans just at a time when it was hoped the near east could settle down to peace.

The belief seems to prevail that if the effects of the revolution could be kept within the territorial limits of Bulgaria it might work itself out without disastrous results to the Balkans. As far as Bulgaria herself is concerned, Bulgarian circles predict that the revolutionary government will not last long. It was pointed out in this circle that the Stambouliisky party was so predominant that it was difficult to believe his followers would allow any other government to remain power for any great length of time.

But the Bulgarians here feel that the other Balkan states, particularly Jugoslavia, are so apprehensive of a revolutionary government that they will be loath to wait and allow Bulgaria to work out the situation herself. It is pointed out that the new government is composed of leaders of the old pro-German regime who are violently anti-Serbian and that Serbia, because of their records, is most likely to take a very reactive attitude toward Bulgaria.

Even without this hostile Serbian attitude, it is thought by Bulgarians here that it will be difficult enough to straighten out the situation. While there is no doubt as to the loyalty of the agrarian population, which comprises eighty-five per cent. of the total population of Bulgaria, the belief prevails that there is nobody to lead them, and form an effective organization.

Presumably all the members of the Stambouliisky cabinet who were in Sofia were arrested. The three other Bulgarians who were considered most capable of organizing a counter action are absent in other countries. These are M. Dasnaloff, minister at Prague; Dr. Stanaloff, minister of Great Britain; and M. Toderoff, representative at Lausanne, all close personal friends of Stambouliisky.

Furthermore the revolution came at the worst time of the year for the peasants to get together for any organized resistance, all of them are busy with their crops, and, solid as they might be in favor of Stambouliisky, it is considered they would be slow to give up the prospect of making good harvests to engage in uncertain, military ventures.

Bulgarian circles here today were equ astonished over the suddenness of the coup, that they took a sort of attitude of despair. They expressed the opinion that whatever may happen is likely to develop as suddenly as the coup itself. One Bulgarian even said he would not be surprised if, in their elation over success, the revolutionaries should line up the old cabinet and shoot them all.

STATESMEN ALARMED BY SITUATION IN BULGARIA

London, June 10—(By the A. P.)—No event since the Greek convulsion of last October has raised such apprehension in the minds of the foreign statesmen regarding the future stability of the Balkan states as the Bulgarian revolution. Doubt was expressed today in many quarters whether the new revolutionary regime would be strong enough to resist the powerful organized, agrarian party, which numbers among its members a great

NEW PREMIER ON INTIMATE TERMS WITH KING BORIS

Paris, June 10.—The new Bulgarian premier Zankoff was on the most intimate terms with King Boris, according to the Sofia correspondent of Havas, and it is believed there that the king was acquainted with the revolutionary plan the promptness with which he signed all the decrees presented to him by the new government being pointed out as proof that he was not ill pleased with the downfall of the man who exiled his father and only tolerated him.

Professor Alexander Zankoff is one of the most reputable doctors in Sofia university. He is 43 years of age; he was educated in Sofia and Munich and traveled extensively in Germany, Austria and Hungard during the war.

21 DENOMINATIONS HAVE ONE MINISTER, ONE CHURCH

New York, June 10.—A religious experiment uniting 21 denominations under one minister and one roof was started today at Jackson Heights, Queens, with the dedication of the Community church by Bishop Luther B. Wilson of the Methodist Episcopal church.

The congregation included Presbyterians, Baptists, Methodists, Episcopalians, Moravians, Unitarians, Universalists, Congregationalists and others.

Strict denominational lines were followed at the service. Dr. Niles of the Dutch Reformed church offered prayer, Rev. Platner of the Baptist church read the scripture, Dr. Cravner of the Episcopal church preached and a Presbyterian clergyman gave the benediction.

"The church has changed its program to meet the changing needs of the people," said Rev. Fred P. Corson in charge of the Community church. "It must keep step with the progress that is being made along other lines of human activity. That is what we are trying to do here. We hope to have an ideal church for an ideal community."

AVIATOR FLYING OVER BRONX DISCOVERED FIRE

New York, June 10.—An aviator flying over the Bronx discovered a tenement building aflame today, and circling low over it, sounded a loud siren which attracted not only neighbors to rescue the imperiled residents, but the fire department which extinguished the blaze. The loss was about $100,000.

Most of the 16 families were away when the fire started in a still on the top floor. A partly blind woman, 63 years old, who was asleep with a girl relative on the top floor, was carried to safety by John Cunningham, a third floor resident.

GERMANS KILLED TWO FRENCH NON-COM OFFICERS

Duesseldorf, June 10 (By the A. P.)—Two French non-commissioned officers were killed Saturday night by Germans during a pistol fight in Dortmund. As far as the French authorities have been able to ascertain the fight occurred during a brawl over a woman.

It is considered likely that no penalty will be imposed upon the town of Dortmund in consequence of the fight, as it has been established to the satisfaction of French headquarters that no political significance attaches to it. No arrests have been made.

REPORT OF THE FEDERAL PROHIBITION COMMISSIONER

Washington, June 10.—In making release of two years' accomplishments under the present administration, Federal Prohibition Commissioner R. A. Haynes said:

"I believe the facts here presented warrant a fair degree of satisfaction with accomplishments as a whole. Many problems have been presented in these two years and have been solved. Many new problems have been presented in these two years and have been solved. Many new problems present themselves daily in different aspects of the work, and will continue to appear for years. Federal forces are now functioning at a maximum numerically, upon the basis of present appropriations. Every effort is being made to stimulate cooperation from municipal, county and state officials to the extent that as an early date local authorities may be depended upon, in the main, to care for minor violations, as was contemplated under the concurrent power section of the amendment, and then the federal forces will be more free to deal with the larger conspiracy violations, coast and border problems and to assail illegal traffic at the source.

"One of the chief present difficulties may be termed sectional, where there is adverse public opinion to be combatted, and is to be found mainly on the eastern seaboard, although there are certain cities where local conditions also make the problem quite difficult. cooperation in some of the localities referred to, on the part of local authorities, is not what it should be, and the press is not favorable.

"Another present day difficulty is a certain type of misrepresentation which is persistent and spacious in type. One purpose seems to be to destroy the morals of the public most interested in prohibition, and next to discredit and hamper the officials of the government entrusted with the duty of making the eighteenth amendment effective. Notwithstanding all difficulties that have been presented and will be presented from time to time, they are considered but incidents in the larger progress of our work and every effort will continue to be made to produce the best probable results, and the record of accomplishments here submitted is ample justification for large hope for the future."

Plan to Nationalize Anthracite Mines

Has Been Laid Before the United States Coal Commission by the Miners' Union.

Washington, June 10.—A complete plan for nationalization of Pennsylvania anthracite mines, with operation under a control equally representing the miners, mine managers, and the public, has been laid before the United States Coal commission by the Miners' union. With it was submitted some criticism of the commission's present cost finding methods, and a request for public hearing on the miners' proposal. An alternative plan for a general reduction of capital investment and capital charges in the industry also was submitted.

Based on the miners' opinion that "limitation of the investor's constantly encroaching claims upon the net industry is now in order," the plan was declared to confine the claims of investors "to reasonable limits," to provide for "permitting the standard of living of miners to grow with the productive expansion of the country," and to bring about adjustment "of price to consumer to these two factors." The alternative plan proposed the elimination of present of the anthracite mines, by the substitution of six per cent. bonds, based on "sacrifice value" for the present stock and other securities and the setting up of sinking funds which would pay off the bonds in 50 years.

"The sacrifice value" is the turnover, the plan explained, would be the original cost of the mining properties, less any profits over a reasonable return rate which the owners have obtained during development and operation, or plus any deficits under reasonable return which they have incurred. The miners' figures indicated that a total value of $400,000,000 would be found on this basis for existing anthracite deposits, and that this value could be retired by a charge of 28 cents per ton of coal mined, as compared with 78 cents, which it was said, owners took in 1918 operations, and $1.40 per ton which it was estimated they took in 1922-23. The valuation plan was declared to be suitable "in a monopoly like anthracite," and to express the principle that "the anthracite industry should pay for its capital what it has to pay and no more."

"The law creating your commission provides for full investigation and report into the causes which induce strikes," the miners' statement said, "we know from bitter experience, that the main cause is the ever accelerating aims of the holders of anthracite securities. For every increase in national demand for coal, for every increase in technology and productivity, the investor demands the full increment, keeping prices at a maximum which the traffic can bear, and wages at the minimum upon which the mines can be made to exist. There is no solution of the economic problem of anthracite until this intolerable strip is relaxed; until the public service function of the industry is frankly recognized, and until the claims of investors are confined to reasonable limits, the standard of living of the miners permitted to grow with the productive expansion of the country."

RAILROAD TRAFFIC NOW AT MAXIMUM VOLUME

Washington, June 10.—Along with maximum volume of traffic now moving on railroads, an almost complete elimination of car shortage has been attained, it was announced today by the merican Railway association. For the week ending May 26, a total of 1,014,029 cars of revenue freight were loaded, and on May 31, unfilled orders for freight cars showed only 16,277 cars short of the full shippers' demand. During a week of October, 1922, when traffic volume was at nearly the same height, there was a shortage of 179,000 cars.

Seeking maximum cooperation between shippers and the Carriers' association also announced that a system of regional advisory boards, composed entirely of shippers and heads of shipping organizations, was being set up over the United States. The boards will associate and advise with the car service division of the association, cooperating in seeking the fullest utilization of railroad facilities and organizations in the service of transportation.

Organization of the boards in the south, east, northwest and middlewest, has been completed, officials of state regulating commissions have been named upon them in many cases and the boards have been divided up into committees in several territories so that the needs of each industry may be studied and supplied.

To Offer Austrian Bonds to Public Today

Syndicate of American Bankers to Offer $25,000,000 Twenty Year 7 Per Cent. Gold Bonds.

New York, June 10—Public offering of $25,000,000 Austrian government bonds, a part of an international loan of $126,000,000 to the Austrian republic, will be made in the United States tomorrow by a syndicate of bankers headed by J. P. Morgan & Co.

The issue, which consists of 20-year seven per cent. sinking fund gold bonds, will be offered at 90 to yield investors 8 per cent. The bonds are guaranteed as to principal, interest and redemption payments by the governments of Great Britain, France, Czecho-Slovakia, Italy, Belgium, Sweden, Denmark and Holland, and are secured by a first charge on the gross receipts of the Austrian customs and tobacco monopoly.

"The importance of the Austrian loan which is being issued Monday," J. P. Morgan, head of the banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., said, in announcing the offering "lies in the fact that the attitude of American investors to this loan will show they are interested in helping those nations of Europe which are prepared to help themselves toward the re-establishment of their credit.

"Last year at the bankers' conference, held in Paris, I stated that it was my opinion that if the security to be given was clearly good, and the investors of other lending nations would co-operate to the extent that they felt themselves able to do, I believed that the American market would participate, to an important extent in the rehabilitation of the European financial situation. At that time these conditions could not be satisfied. Now, however, for the first time a loan is offered which fulfills both conditions.

"The amount, while large, is not excessive, and every present indication justifies my confidence that we shall find the American investing public in accord with us in our belief that the new Austrian bonds are a good investment and that the extension of this credit is an important step on the road to peace and to normal trade."

The bonds will be issued in denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100. Principal and interest will be payable in New York at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., in United States gold coin, without deduction for any Austrian taxes, present or future.

Under the plan formulated by the league of nations for Austria's financial and economic rehabilitation, Dr. Alfred Zimmerman, formerly burgomaster of Rotterdam, was appointed commissioner-general of Austria. A protocol was signed by European governments directly interested, including the neighboring states of Italy and Czecho-Slovakia, insuring the economic and political independence of Austria.

The revenues hypothecated under the loan will pass directly into an account controlled by Commissioner-General Zimmerman, who will also control the expenditure of the proceeds of the loan.

TREASURY TO SEEK $18 MONTHS LOAN OF $150,000,000

Washington, June 10.—The treasury tonight announced it would seek a loan of $150,000,000 to round out its financing for the current fiscal year, ending June 30. The new certificates of indebtedness will mature in six months and, it is expected, will be retired largely by tax receipts in the next two quarterly payments. The interest rate will be four per cent, slightly lower than previous offerings of government securities have paid.

The new issue will enable the government to conclude the refunding of its short dated debt, begun in 1921, and no further financing will be necessary, it was stated officially, until the middle of September. Proceeds of the new certificate offer, which will be dated June 18, together with the June 15 payment of income and profits taxes, expected to amount to $360,000,000 or more, will take care of certificates of indebtedness maturing on that date and provide for the running expenses of the government until September 15. Maturing certificates must be cared for then and officials expected that some new financing will have to be done at that time.

About $75,000,000 in interest on the public debt falls due June 15 but that can be met promptly through the tax receipts as can the interest payments due in July and August. With the treasury carrying a cash balance of close to $300,000,000 officials declared today the government's financial position was better than the most optimistic supporters of the refinancing program had anticipated.

The new offering will result in a direct reduction in the volume of certificates mature June 15 and the probability that the treasury will be able to redeem them, make the interest payments on the public debt in June, July and August and care for the ordinary expenditures at the same time gives cause, it was declared, for general satisfaction as to the progress made in shaving down the great wartime debt which at one time approximated $25,000,000,000.

CHIEF FINANCIAL MARKETS SHOW STEADY UNDERTONE

New York, June 10—(By the A. P.)—In a week during which the weather and the season exercised a restricting effect, the chief financial markets displayed a steady undertone. Cotton prices rallied sharply, wheat held its own and stocks ruled rather consistently higher.

For one thing, the financial mind was impressed with a number of evidences that industrial activity is being continued at a remarkably high rate. Pig iron production during May, for example, averaged 124,500 tons a day in comparison with 118,300 tons in April, which was, incidentally, the previous high record for all time. The steel trade appears confident; that the present rate of operations will be continued for some time to come and that the present level of steel prices will be continued for some time to come and that the present level of steel prices will be supported by a revival of forward buying.

Another bullish factor during the past week was the excellent character of the reports on railroad loadings and earnings. The number of cars loaded with revenue freight in the week ended May 26 was 1,014,000. This performance has been exceeded in only two weeks in history, and both of these weeks came in the fall when traffic was swollen by the seasonal grain movement. On the earnings side, the American railway association announced that net income of the class 1 railroads during April amounted to $83,280,000, which is equivalent to a yearly rate of 6 1-2 per cent. on valuation.

In financial circles it was considered significant that this figure was attained at a time when operating expenses have been materially increased by liberal expenditures for maintenance of equipment. During the first four months of the year the earnings of these roads represented only 1-4 of one per cent. on valuation less than the fair return prescribed by the interstate commerce commission.

Cotton rallied strongly during the earlier part of the week, renewed activity and strength in the spot market at Liverpool being taken as indicating a better demand from British and continental spinners. This condition, combined with showery weather in the growing areas, prompted active short covering and resulted in gains of more than two cents a pound. Profit taking reduced the gains toward the end of the week but left them substantial. Better foreign buying of copper also was reported.

DEMAND REMOVAL OF TAFT AS CHIEF JUSTICE

New Haven, June 10.—A resolution demanding the removal of William Howard Taft as chief justice of the United States, was adopted by delegates to the annual convention of the Connecticut state socialist party here today. The basis of the demand was Mr. Taft's acceptance of a $10,000 annuity from the Carnegie foundation.

The resolution declared that the acceptance of the annuity was "not only unethical but a menace to the integrity of our courts and detrimental to the best interests of the American people." Copies of the resolution were sent to Mr. Taft and to President Harding.

A resolution calling for the freeing of all "political prisoners" was also adopted as was a third one asking for the recognition by the United States of soviet Russia and Mexico.

ONE-HALF HORSEPOWER MOTOR FOR AUXILIARY RUDDER

Brussa, June 10.—Ocean shipping may be revolutionized by a new power saving auxiliary rudder, the invention of which has just been announced. The device, which is known as the "Flettner" rudder, taking its name from its owner, Anton Flettner, has been found to save from 25 to 27 per cent. of the power now required for the operation of the usual main rudder.

The inventor contends that this rudder will eliminate the necessity of having a special steam or electric engine aboard the ship for the operation of the principal steering apparatus, which also needs a special member of the crew to look after it.

The device has been installed on the Hamburg-American liner Odenwald, a new motor-driven ship of 5098 gross tonnage, and operates in connection with the Anschuetz-Kreisel compass self steerer, which requires but a one-half horsepower motor.

SHIPPING BOARD REPORT BY CHAIRMAN LASKER

Washington, June 10.—Creation of eighteen subsidiary corporations, each to control one of the consolidated routes, was recommended to President Harding today by Albert D. Lasker, retiring chairman of the shipping board, as the basis of government operation of the federal merchant marine in case the efforts to transfer the ships to private operation finally fail. The government must assume complete control, Mr. Lasker declared, the system of operation agents having proven in his opinion a "vicious one," resulting in the placing of its "terminal facilities and the good will of its lines" in outside hands.

The chairman numbered among the material results of his administration: settlement of claims aggregating $360,000,000 for "twelve cents on the dollar" reduction of current deficit from $16,000,000 to $4,000,000 a month, and the "development of commerce through operation of American ships."

At the end of the fiscal year, he said, the board would have $125,000,000 on deposit in the treasury against $4,000,000 when he took office. This sum was believed to be sufficient for the board construction financing, the report said, if its use for that purpose was authorized by congress.

Mayor Clarence A. Whitmyre, in a letter made public last night, told Harry B. The mayor made a proposition for arbitration of the differences.

New York, June 10.—With their liquor stores sealed by customs officials, in observance of the new dry ship ruling, three large transatlantic steamships, the France, armania and Celtic, arrived in port today. The liquor was locked up outside the three mile limit, it was said, and the lockers were sealed by the customs authorities when the ships arrived at Quarantine.

Crews of the British ships who do not receive a liquor ration appeared indifferent to the new regulations, while it was said that the crew of the France did not protest when they did not receive their regular daily ration of wine.

Fifty prohibition agents to augment the present forces in Brooklyn will arrive from Washington next week, it was said today as forerunners of 500 who will be detailed to aid in enforcement work in New York state.

Chief of Police Daniel J. Kilkourey will be retired permanently from duty this (Monday) and will be placed on the Veterans' Reserve Corps of Police, at a weekly pension of $22.50. This action was taken Saturday night at a special meeting of Mayor Charles A. Gates, Corporation Counsel William A. King and the police committee comprising William E. Jackson, chairman, Aldermen Edgar W. Jacobs and Alderman Eugene Hickey. Chief Kilkourey was also present at the meeting, which was called by Chairman Jackson after Chief Kilkourey had presented him with his resignation, requesting that it be accepted forthwith and to go into effect Monday morning.

Due to Chief Kilkourey's long and faithful service as an officer and head of the police department, the common council a few months ago voted to place him on the Veterans' Reserve force on half pay, and after the chief's salary had been raised from $25 to $30 weekly at a previous meeting of the council. There was some delay, however, as to his retirement, and as no definite date had been set, the action of the mayor and police committee Saturday evening comes as a surprise to the public.

At the regular monthly meeting of the board of aldermen this (Monday) night the resignation of Chief Kilkourey will go into effect and Lieutenant Allan MacArthur will be named as acting chief of police until further appointments are made. Lieutenant MacArthur has an excellent record for the 21 years during which he has been connected with the police department.

The position of lieutenant was conferred upon him about five years ago and there is every indication that Mr. MacArthur will be appointed as head of the force.

Other appointments which will be made in the near future and which local citizens are keenly interested are those of captain and lieutenant, the latter position will be conferred upon some of the present officers in the advent of the promotion of Lieutenant MacArthur to chief.

It is also planned by the police committee to appoint a number of supernumerary officers to replace vacancies.

The meeting Saturday night was in charge of Mayor Charles A. Gates.

Alderman William E. Jackson announced that several improvements were to be made in the lighting of some of the city streets and the grading of streets. In a talk with a reporter Sunday he stated that new streets will be installed in a number of places where they are badly needed, especially at the top of Jillson's Hill on Windham road where the streets intersect at a dangerous place. The lower part of Mansfield avenue, opposite the Vanderman Foundry to Main street is to be graded over and the street elevated as high as eighteen inches in some parts. The change will be beneficial in many ways, as that part of the avenue has always been a veritable "mud-hole" and very rough. The initial cause of the grading over the street was to save a number of stately trees on the Phillips estate where a concrete sidewalk is being laid. It was found that if the sidewalks were laid at the present grading of the street it would be necessary to cut into the roots of the trees and thereby cause their destruction. The work of laying water mains on newly accepted streets is also progressing rapidly within a few weeks and residents of those streets will rest happily in the thought that they have water in their homes.

Up to the present time nothing has been done to overcome the serious matter of parking conditions on the principal streets of the city but it is expected that the present active board of councilmen will take some action in the near future, possibly at the meeting this (Monday) evening.

The cases to be heard before the local police court Saturday morning were disposed of in two minutes with Judge Frank H. Foss presiding in the morning and Deputy Judge Cutler Dean on the bench in the afternoon session. Raymond Desrosier was fined $50 and costs, totaling $64.15 when he was found guilty with violation of the liquor law. The defendant's counsel entered a demurrer but it was overruled by Judge Foss. The evidence, a half pint of moonshine, had been purchased by an agent of the state police.

John Cawley of Baltic was charged with failure to report an accident to the state motor vehicle department. The affair dates back to last December with the car which he was driving on the South Windham road struck and injured William Richmond and injured the latter. Conway stated that he did not think that it was necessary for him to send in a report. The accident was investigated by the state police and it was stated in court that a civil suit for damages is pending against Conway. The case was nolled on payment of costs of $5.15.

Louis Jackson, colored, of West Willington, was charged with reckless driving and Diedore Delage of this city was charged with reckless driving and operating an automobile without proper registration. Pleas of not guilty were entered in each case. The court proceedings were the result of an automobile collision between machines owned and driven by the defendants, on the North Windham road opposite the Willimantic Country club, May 30th. After hearing the evidence Jackson was fined $25 and costs, amounting to $32.19 on the charge of reckless driving. Delage was found not guilty of a similar charge, but was fined $2 and costs.

A continuance until Saturday, June 23 was granted in the case of Clifford Bailey, charged with assault on Miss Palmer of Windham Center on the evening of May 23 when it is alleged that Bailey threw a bucket of water at Mrs. Palmer.

When the court session was resumed in the afternoon, the case of Millen Rogers, charged with breaking and entering the home of Louis B. Wilson and assault of Mrs. Melissa Wilson, the aged mother of the plaintiff, was taken up. A plea of nolo contendere was entered for Rogers. After hearing the state testimony in the case the plea was changed, a demurrer being entered by the attorney, and which was overruled by Justice Dean. Rogers was bound over to the next term of the Windham County superior court under bonds of $300 which were furnished by David E. Lincoln.

LESSON FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES.

Too Much to Expect.

Amid pitchforkfuls that fly,
With Lizzy's rainbow colors trimmed,
Perhaps it might be well to try
A simple, unpretentious thought;
So here's a line for joyous youth
At work or mischief's toilsome prime,
Remember, too, this simple truth:
You can't be lucky all the time.

The wheels of fate as they go 'round
Must turn for loss as well as gain.
Some blame as well as praise must sound.
And great reforms prove oft in vain.
And so, when worrying is the stride,
Do not forget this homely rhyme,
Be brave and play the game of life;
You don't be lucky all the time.
—Philander Johnson in Washington Post.

WHEN MOTHER READS ALOUD.

When mother reads aloud, the part
Seems real as every day;
I hear the tramp of armies vast,
I see the spears and lances cast,
I join the thrilling fray;
Brave knights and ladies fair and proud
I meet, when mother reads aloud.

When mother reads aloud, far lands
Seem very near and true;
I cross the deserts gleaming sands
Or haunt the jungles prowling bands,
Or sail the ocean blue;
Far heights, whose peaks the cold mists shroud,
I scale, when mother reads aloud.

When mother reads aloud, I long
For noble deeds to do—
To help the right, redress the wrong:
It seems so easy to be strong.
So simple so easy to be true,
Oh, thick and fast the visions crowd
My eyes, when mother reads aloud!

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO WIDE-AWAKES.

Have you read the story of "Peter Pan" the boy who never grew up? Perhaps some one has read it to you, and in that case you will probably read it to yourself when you are old enough. "Peter Pan" has in it all that is fun for children, and the things that bring smiles and tears to grown-ups. It can be read over and over again, and, much as you enjoy it now, when you are grown men and women you will enjoy it more. But there is also something sad about "Peter Pan." The real little "Peter Pan," the boy about whom the story was made up, is dead. Poor fellow—he didn't grow up so very much—he only was 20 when he was drowned in the River Thames, in England, where he lived.

The story of "Peter Pan" was written by a great English author named Sir James M. Barrie. Years ago he was walking in a public garden, when he came upon a group of children playing. He played around with them and had a mighty good time and while playing the Man came to him for a story about a "Little White Bird," and a boy who never grew up. He took one of the little boys named Michael, for the hero of his tale, and wove a beautiful story around him—our "Peter Pan." It was Michael who was drowned. But, "Peter Pan" lives on in the story.

Sometimes children are impatient with their childhood; it seems so long to wait before they will be grown up. When they are grown up they think they can do as they please in all matters; they won't have to work when they want to play, and they won't have to mind what other people want. They do not know that the happiest folk are those who never grow up. They have never learned to live "Peter Pan," and it so happens that too many fail to travel themselves satisfactorily to avoid losing their lives by drowning before they have a chance to grow up.

We hope they will stay with us.

My Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: A few of the children in my school are getting books from you and I thought I would try to get one by writing about my pet dog.

He is about one year old. He is black and white and I call him Spot. I play with him nights when I get home from school, and in the morning he starts to follow me to school so I have to take him home. He likes to chase woodchucks and helps me drive the cows home nights. I hope all the children that write to you have a nice dog like I do.

EUGENE CLARKE, Age 8.

Saw Oriole and Blue Jay

Dear Uncle Jed: This time I am going to tell you about a letter we wrote to Miss Hurd the Audubon lady. We have organized our junior Audubon society. Several names were suggested but we chose the Eagle Eye Audubon society.

One day we saw an oriole outside of the school room on an elm tree and we all went to the window to see it. Another day there was a bluejay outside on a tree.

We were all sorry that you could not come and see us to tell us about the birds as you did last year. We have 23 members in our club out of 39. We hope that the others will join.

SHELDON ENNIS, Age 9.
Danielson.

A True Story

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first story to the Wide-Awakes and I hope they will enjoy it. It is about my dog whose name was Brownie. We called him Brownie, because he was all brown. Wherever my sister and I went he would come with us.

One day my sister and I went to the store and he came with us but he did not come back with us. At night we called him but he did not come, and he has not appeared since. We do not know if he was lost and somebody found him and kept him, or if he was killed. I hope the Wide-Awakes have enjoyed my story.

ALBINA PECHIE, Age 12.

Lost in the Woods

Dear Uncle Jed: It was a beautiful day in June. My classmate Alice and I went in the woods to pick huckleberries. There was a cross of about six different paths at the place we stopped. So Alice tied a blue handkerchief to a big oak tree as an indicator to our way home. After an hour or so of busy work, filling our pails to the brim we noticed that the wind had blown the handkerchief away. What was to be done? We began to cry at the idea of being lost and Alice was trembling with fear. Suddenly we saw a dog approaching. It was barking as if warning us to follow him so we did and by doing this the wise little animal led us to the opening of the road where we safely went home.

Formed Audubon Club

Dear Uncle Jed: This spring we have formed an Audubon society. We had many names given for it, but we have chosen Eagle Eye. So we call it the junior Eagle Eye Audubon society. We have now 23 members but hope to have more.

HAROLD KEECH, Age 8.

Breadfruit

Dear Uncle Jed: The bread-fruit is a native of Asia.

It is now grown in the West Indies, growing to a height of 40 to 50 feet with dark green leaves.

The fruit is round, about the size of a child's head. This fruit weighs from four to five pounds and is the main food of the natives of the South Sea Islands.

It is covered with a rough rind. When the fruit is ripe it is yellow and juicy. It is better when not fully ripe, for when baked is an even it is mealy and dry.

It has a sweet taste and when properly cooked it will keep several weeks.

The people of the South Sea islands, beat it into paste which when slightly fermented is a little sour, but it is a food they relish. The breadfruit tree will have two or three crops a year. The wood is used for furniture and to build houses.

JOHN SOBECK, Age 10.
Colombia.

An Old House.

Dear Uncle Jed: Near my home is an old house. It is all tumbled down except the fireplace. I can remember about four years ago when it was still standing. The first I remember of it was when my father climbed up some stairs and went in the upper rooms. I never went up there but I know that it had some hay in it. The only buildings that are now standing are the corn crib where my father keeps meadow hay and a wagon shed. It will not be many years before they will fall down, too.

Near the house a road runs which is now only a cart path where men after poles go and where the mailmen used to go years past.

On the eastern side is a large brown and white tree, a wagon shed, some brush and a road on the other side of a wall. On the southern side are old fashioned red and pink roses, purple lilacs, an apple tree and a little garden fenced off. It now has some roses, lilacs, tansy and some red currants growing in it. On the western side are some rose bushes and yellow lilies. Further away a brook is running. On the northern side is a corn crib, a well, a barberry bush, some apple trees, purple and red grape vines and some places still showing where other buildings used to stand.

In the summer when the house was standing we used to go down there often.

ESTELLA BRAND, Age 13.
Preston.

Memorial Day.

Dear Uncle Jed: Memorial day, on May 30th, is for the purpose of remembering the soldiers and sailors and to decorate their graves.

We do this in honor of the brave young men who fought for their country. There is no school on Memorial day and on the day before we sing songs and recite poems and after the exercises we carry bouquets to the little cemetery and place them on the soldiers' graves.

WILLIAM M'NAUGHT, Age 8.

Have Organized Society.

Dear Uncle Jed: This spring we have formed the Junior Audubon society. A boy in our grade suggested that the name of our club be the Eagle Eye Audubon society. The fourth grade have 22 members and hope the rest will belong to our Audubon society.

ALBERT NASH.
Danielson.

The Eagle Eye Club.

Dear Uncle Jed: This spring some of the boys and girls in the fourth grade have organized a Junior Audubon society. We all voted for the Eagle Eye club. There are 22 out of 39 who have joined. One morning when we were working in school Miss Woodworth had us get up to the windows to see a wonderful oriole.

During this spring I have seen a robin, bluebird, purple grackles and other birds besides an oriole. The stories which were sent to me were very interesting. Last year I belonged to an Audubon society and we had many meetings after school. This winter one of the girls in my room made a food tray for the birds and they came and ate the suet that we put in it.

DORIS ANDERSON, Age 10.
Danielson.

Treatment of Dumb Animals.

Dear Uncle Jed: Anyone who treats dumb animals kindly shows human sympathy and gentleness.

Any animal that is mistreated is a bad advertisement for the owner, because it shows that they are not only simple minded, hard of heart and cruel, but that they have no thoughts of any other person or thing but themselves.

Any animal that is mistreated should be promptly taken away from its owner. Also that person should receive some sort of a punishment.

Small children when they first begin to understand should be taught the kind treatment of animals. No animal, no matter how small it is, will repay you for kindness shown them.

If a person treats an animal kindly the animal will always show some appreciation. The most faithful of all animals are the dog and the horse.

VIOLA RILEY, Age 12.

An Outing Trip.

Dear Uncle Jed: One Saturday four girls beside myself went for an outing trip. The rules were everybody must [illegible] to have packed [illegible] must wear a sweater, knickers or bloomers. We had a wonderful time making coffee, soup and sandwiches. Then some boys came and broke our stove so we had to go home.

We planned for another trip but it rained and we couldn't go.

BERTHA KOLBOSE, Age 14.
Jewett City.

Decoration Day.

Dear Uncle Jed: On Decoration day we decorate the graves of the brave soldiers who died to save our country. These brave heroes saved us, and we should decorate their graves.

We should also try when we are little to be brave so when we grow up the boys will be brave soldiers and the girls brave women. I hope all the Wide-Awakes will like my story.

MARGARET GORMAN, Age 9.
Norwich.

Oranges.

Dear Uncle Jed: The oranges of the United States grow in Florida, the Mississippi regions, California and Arizona. Portions of Texas and New Mexico are the leading centers of cultivation. The orange was introduced into this country by the early Spanish explorers, who developed large wild groves in wide areas.

In some places where the branches of the trees are low, they are attacked by rot, blight or mould.

MICHAEL BOBECK, Age 12.
Columbia.

Frightened Away.

Dear Uncle Jed: Once while I was picking nuts behind a small hill on top of which were three or four walnut trees I heard a noise. I looked over the hill and saw two large hens coming toward me. I thought that they were the sons of the men who owned the field in which the trees were growing. I started to run away but the nuts in my pocket were too heavy and I spilled most of them on the ground, so I could run better. When I reached the fence that separated the field from the road I looked back, expecting to see them running toward me, but they were not. Then I knew that they did not own the field, but I was afraid to go there for about two weeks.

THE LITTLE JACK RABBIT FEATURE FOR COLUMBIA

Dear me, but it's a long time to wait from last week to this to learn what became of poor Timmy Meadowmouse, who, you remember had been caught up and borne away by Hungry Hawk while playing on the Sunny Meadow with little Jack Rabbit.

"What shall I do to save Timmy?" thought the poor little frightened rabbit, looking this way and that, and then, up at the speck in the blue sky, all that could be seen of the old robber bird.

Just then Little Jack Rabbit noticed another speck in the sky, only it was larger and of different shape.

"What is that?" he asked himself, hoping in his little heart it might be the good, kind American Eagle, who had once befriended him when in trouble.

But no, it was not. No, indeed, it was something very, very different. Oh, my yes, I should say so.

As there was nothing to be gained by standing still on the Sunny Meadow, the dis-con-so-late, (which means hopelessly unhappy, little readers) bunny boy rabbit hopped away until, all of a sudden, just like that, he almost bumped into the Farmer's Boy who was sitting beneath a tree holding on to a long string that went up and up into the air until it ended in a big speck that bobbed here and there, it's long tail swinging to and fro as Billy Breeze laughed and whistled across the wide-flecked meadows of the high, blue sky.

Yes, sir, Little Jack Rabbit almost bumped into the Farmer's Boy. You see, the little bunny boy was looking up into the sky as he hopped along and paid little attention to where his feet were taking him.

"Hello!" exclaimed the Farmer's Boy. "Your eyes are filled with tears. What's the matter, little rabbit?"

"Oh, dear, Oh, dear!" cried the little bunny. "Hungry Hawk has carried off Little Timmy Meadowmouse."

"Where to?" asked the Farmer's Boy, curiously.

Do you see that little speck?" asked the sorrowful little rabbit, pointing upward.

"Yes," answered the Farmer's Boy. "Just to the right of my kite. Yes, I see it."

"That's Hungry Hawk," sobbed the little bunny boy. "He has Timmy Meadowmouse in his claws."

"I'm sorry," answered the Farmer's Boy, and then, all of a sudden, he bounced to his feet and ran across the Sunny Meadow, pulling the kite string at the same time. For it seemed Little Jack Rabbit was too surprised to move. Then, away he hopped after the Farmer's Boy. You see, the little bunny boy was so sorrowful that he forgot all about being afraid of the Farmer's Boy. Yes, indeed, that's what sorrow does sometimes and maybe others. It makes the longest even the beautiful in life for a while.

By the time the little rabbit caught up to the Farmer's Boy, there was a great commotion going on way up in the big blue sky. Oh, my yes, I tell you what, that Farmer's Boy was a clever fellow. He hadn't been on a farm all his life and learned nothing. No, indeed. He had taught himself things which the old schoolmaster never dreamed of as he sat at his desk in the little red schoolhouse on the hill where the children's feet and Billy Breeze could never keep still.

"Within the Law" Secures Norma's Screen Leadership

"Within the Law," which began an engagement at the Broadway theatre last night, makes even more secure the leadership of Norma Talmadge as a dramatic star.

A classic of the American stage in which Jane Cowl made her historic hit, this Bayard Veiller play is now a classic of the silent drama, with Norma Talmadge wielding fresh laurels for love, romance and thrills combine to make it as fascinating and as exciting as a motion picture can be. Much credit, of course, must go to the genius of the director, Frank Lloyd, and to the splendid support of an unusually fine cast.

Norma Talmadge, in the role of Mary Turner, a department store girl railroaded to prison for a theft she did not commit, is a heart-stirring figure. On the completion of her prison term she vows to "get even" with the store owner who was responsible for this miscarriage of justice, but determine to stay always "within the law."

Thus does she become the head of an organized band of blackmailers and homebreakers and entraps Dick Gilder, the son of the merchant, only to learn that she herself loves the young man.

A stool pigeon endeavors to get Joe Garson, accomplice of Mary Turner, into a frameup to rob the Gilder home. Though Mary refuses to go into the affair on the grounds that it is "outside the law" Garson goes ahead with the plans.

She follows to prevent the robbery. The son, Dick Gilder, is horrified to see Mary whom he had secretly married, with these crooks. The stool pigeon becomes terrified and is about to blow his whistle for the police when Garson shoots him. Mary says on the scene with her husband, but the others flee. The police inspector doubts Mary's story that Dick did the shooting in defense of his own home. He has them taken into custody and also ferrets out Garson. When he accuses Mary of murder Garson confesses in order to save the woman he loves.

The tangled threads of the powerful plot are straightened out. Acquitted, Mary and Dick start home with a letter that removes the stigma of theft from Mary's past.

Jack Mulhall gives a fine performance as Dick Gilder and Lew Cody makes an admirable Joe Garson. Eileen Percy has a strong part as Aggie Lynch, a blackmailer befriended by Mary in prison. DeWitt Jennings distinguishes himself as Inspector Burke. Others who contribute their histrionic talents to this usual production are Joseph Kilgour, Archie S. Hull, Helen Ferguson, Joseph Prammer, Thomas Ricketts, Warde Crane and Catherine Murphy.

Lloyd Hamilton in Uneasy Feet, proved to be a riot. A news was also shown.

Charles Ray at the Bijou

If all the world loves a lover, a treat is in store for the patrons of the Bijou theatre today, Tuesday and Wednesday when Charles Ray's second United Artists production, "The Girl I Loved," will present that favorite star as one of the most ardent and dramatic swains that ever sought a woman's hand. Mr. Ray is said to reach acting heights in this picture never surpassed and seldom equalled on the screen.

The star began his stellar career in a very dramatic role seven years ago. In the years since his versatility in comedy has almost obscured his great ability as an actor of finer parts. In "The Girl I Loved" this ability comes out, it is said, with tremendous force before a picturesque background that is lively and gay.

The events occur among the hitherto rural people of Indiana from 1840 to 1860, and compose a panorama of typical American life that is new and rarely. Through this panorama moves the personal love story of the poet James Whitcomb Riley as he sang it in the verses from which the pictures takes its name.

Under his United Artists contract Charles Ray is now making only big feature productions, two a year, and this he regards as the greatest of his career. It is the tale of two men who sought a maiden's hand, one of them with tragic error. In the days Ray knew stories, but never a more perfect punch. The girl is Betty Bronson and it is predicted that the young actress' talents she displays in "The Girl I Loved" will make her a star forthwith.

Joseph De Grasse, who is responsible for Ray's previous United Artists picture, "A Tailor-Made Man," one of last year's big hits and directed his latest. The cast also includes Ramsay Wallace, one of the stage's actors of international celebrity.

The Pathe news and an Educational comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

NORWICH BEATS BRIDGEPORT TEAM IN LONG DRAWN-OUT CONTEST

In a long drawn out game which consumed a good three hours, the Norwich baseball team beat the West Ends of Bridgeport 11 to 7 at the Fairgrounds Sunday afternoon before the smallest crowd of the season. The game was a freak affair, with practically every conceivable play taking place, and the score see-sawed back and forth until the sixth inning, when the local team stepped out in front and took a lead which they held until the finish. Bridgeport fined two pitchers, both slow workers, who were very free with their passes, issuing 13 between them. Freddie Reiger pitched good ball and for the most part received good support although "Shorty" Faulkner mussed up three easy plays. Nap Liberty, the Jewett City star infielder, playing his first game for Norwich, showed up well, handling four hard chances with apparent ease. He also connected for two hits in four times at bat.

The first half of the first inning was the fastest session of the game, the first three men being thrown out by Liberty, Faulkner and Massey, respectively. From then on the game began to drag. The locals in their first frame pushed one run across when, after Liberty fanned, Eddie Hart was given a pass. Faulkner flied out to Paige and Hart stole second, scoring on Massey's drive to center field. Massey stole and Johnny Reiger was given a pass but was caught off first by the hidden ball trick.

The West Ends scored their first count when an error by Faulkner let Paige on. O'Connell was thrown out at first, Paige going to second. Bowden hit to right and Paige came tearing home. Mills made a perfect throw to the plate but Harkey overplayed the ball and then tossed it to Hart, who was covering the plate. Hart made a bungle of it and Paige was safe. This evened the score.

In the same frame the local team went out three runs in the lead by the courtesy of Herb, the Bridgeport hurler, who gave Edgar and Reiger free tickets. Edgar scored on Harkey's hit and Harkey scored on Liberty's drive to left field and Reiger scored on Hart's sacrifice fly.

The West Ends evened the score in their half of the third when Reiger passed W. Dorkin and Massey heaved a chance for a double play into left field. Reiger's wild pitch scored Dorkin and Bread's hit scored Reilly and Bread scored when Paige laced out a double.

Bridgeport after holding the local team scoreless in the third inning went into the lead in the fourth when they pushed a run across on three hits by Robertson, Herb and Reilly. Norwich promptly evened the score when with two down Liberty hit safely and Herb passed the next two men, filling the bags. He then proceeded to beat Massey, fanning in Liberty. Again in the fifth two hits and a sacrifice fly netted another run. Two more were added in the sixth and two in the seventh, and the final one coming in the ninth, all being due to the wildness of Holden, who gave seven passes and made one wild pitch.

Bridgeport's final score came in the eighth inning on Faulkner's error and Bread's hit. They also scored one run in the sixth on two hits. The score:

The J. R. Martin team took a loose game Sunday afternoon from the West Ends of Willimantic by a score of 15 to 5. WEST PITCHES BRILLIANT BALL FOR RIVERVIEW

The Riverview club handed the New London Independents an awful trimming Saturday afternoon at the hospital grounds by the score of 10 to 0. West held the hard hitting Whalers to one lonesome hit and fanned 13 of them. This boy is certainly going strong just now as he has struck out 43 batters in his last three games.

The Hospital boys had no trouble hitting Cranka, getting 14 hits in the six innings he was on the mound, seven of them being bunched in the third for six runs, and the game was never in doubt after that, Maginnis, who finished the game did better, but the boys were finding him, too, in the last inning. REDS WIN CLOSE GAME FROM THE PHILLIES

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 10.—Luque's effective pitching enabled the Reds to take the second game of the series from Philadelphia today, 3 to 1. Glazner also pitched well except in the third inning, when three hits and an error by Sand gave the home team its only runs. An error by Caveney, followed by two hits saved the visitors from a shutout in the fourth. It was the seventh victory for Luque out of eight starts this season. The score:

ALDRIDGE BEATS GENEWICH IN 3 TO 0 PITCHING DUEL

Chicago, June 10.—Vic Aldridge bested Joe Genewich in a pitching duel today and Chicago shut out Boston, 3 to 0. Genewich had one bad inning, the second when the locals bunched four of their six hits, which included two triples, and scored all their runs. New York, June 10.—The New York Americans broke their losing streak today by defeating Cleveland 8 to 7. Cleveland made four home runs off Hoyt in the early innings. But to offset this work at bat with four errors in the sixth inning. Hofmann cleaned the bases with a two bagger in the sixth. Smith, former Cleveland player, batted for Scott in the eighth and tied the score with a homer. The game was won by Wards single in the ninth following three passes. LEAGUE LEADERS LOST GROUND DURING PAST WEEK

New York, June 10.—Both the New York Americans and the New York Giants lost ground in the major league races during the week, the Americans dropping four games and winning but two, including the victory over Cleveland today, while the Giants won two and lost three.

The Yankees dropped two of a three-game series with the White Sox, were defeated once by Washington and once by Cleveland. The Chicago Cubs took three of four games from the Giants and the world champions lost one game and won one from the Pirates.

Washington and Chicago helped their averages in the American, the Senators with three victories in four games against the Tigers, and defeated New York and Philadelphia once each. The defeat of St. Louis by Washington today gave the Senators six games won out of their last eight. Chicago won a game from the Browns and two out of three from New York.

Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis were the winning teams in the National. After losing two to the Cubs, the Reds won three straight from Boston and defeated Philadelphia yesterday and today. The Cubs, in their victory over Boston today, increased their week's triumphs to six with but two games lost. St. Louis won four of its five games of the week, one from Pittsburgh, three from Philadelphia, and one to Brooklyn.

AMERICANS READY FOR TROON TOURNEY TODAY

Troon, Scotland, June 10.—(By the A. P.)—Cold winds were blowing in from sea upon the Ayrshire coast tonight, rattling the bedroom widows of two hundred and twenty-two golfers as they went to sleep, each with hope, faint or strong, that they play in which he will begin to participate tomorrow morning may carry him by Friday night to the glory of owning the title of British open champion.

Today being Sunday no one played golf at Troon; but being the eve of the first test for the championship, every one talked golf. From the wealth of words there came one distinct impression—the impression that Walter Hagen, one of the American contingent, still stands first among the favorites to win the honor. There was a feeling that if Hagen does not win, Gene Sarazen, another man from overseas will. There are other dreaded golf masters among the dozen American entrants; but it is these two the British feel their representatives must conquer if they are to win back the trophy which for the past two years has been taken away from them by visitors from the United States.

BATTLING SIKI COMES TO AMERICA THIS MONTH

Paris, June 10 (By the A. P.).—Battling Siki, the Senegalese fighter, announces his departure for New York June 22. He will fight Morelle in Paris June 16, but refuses to meet Marcel Nilles July 8, although articles for this fight were duly signed before the French Boxing Federation ten days ago. Siki claims that the man who acted in his behalf in signing this contest was not authorized to do so.

There are no less than five men now claiming to hold Siki's power of attorney to transact business for him. He suggests that they engage in a battle royal to decide who among them is best qualified to look after his affairs.

The French federation may force Siki to meet Nilles before the black man leaves for the United States.

BATTLING NELSON IN BOXING EXHIBITION

Los Angeles, Cal., June 10.—Oscar "Battling" Nelson, 41 years of age, terror of the ring before and after he wrested the lightweight championship of the world from Joe Gans, nearly two decades ago, shook hands with Ad Wolgast in the ring here last night for the first time since the latter took his title in a forty-round fight at Point Richmond, Calif., in 1910.

He also extended a glad right hand to Aurelio Herrera and Joe Rivers, two famous Mexican lightweights of years ago, both of whom came close to the coveted championship. Nelson appeared in an exhibition bout.

NEW ENGLAND TENNIS TOURNEY AT HARTFORD

Hartford, June 10.—The twenty-second annual New England Tennis championship tournament will be held on the courts of the Hartford Golf club beginning tomorrow and continuing through Saturday. William T. Tilden, 2nd, the champion, Manuel Alonzo, former Spanish title holder, and a number of strong Metropolitan tournament players have entered.

The feature matches on the schedule for the opening day will bring Alonzo against Dinwoodie, of California, and Tilden against Snow, or Springfield, Mass.

YALE OARSMEN TAKE YACHTING TRIP

Gales Ferry, Conn., June 10.—The racing course for the Yale-Harvard regatta, June 22, was staked out today and the crews in training here will probably work on it tomorrow.

The Yale squad spent the day on a cruise out to open sea on the "Cytherea" owned by E. H. Harkness, James Rogers, '98, acting as host. During the cruise, some of the men studied in preparation for tomorrow's examinations. The freshmen spent the day on the camp motorboats.

HARVARD CREWS GUESTS OF J. P. MORGAN ON CRUISE

Red Top, Conn., June 10.—The four Harvard crews in training here for the annual regatta with Yale, June 22, lay on their oars today and did no work. The crews were guests of J. P. Morgan on his yacht "Corsair" and enjoyed an all-day cruise in Long Island sound. On the way to Greenport, the yacht was anchored at Plum Island and the oarsmen went in swimming. They returned to quarters at 6 p. m.

BRASSCOS LONE RUN IN SEVENTH SEATS HARTFORD

Waterbury, Conn., June 10.—A base on balls and two successive singles in the seventh inning enabled Waterbury to score the only run made by either side in the game with Hartford here today. Donahue featured the game with three singles in as many times at bat, also taking ten chances without an error. Score by innings:

HYMAN'S PITCHING FEATURES NEW HAVEN'S CLOSE WIN

New Haven, June 10.—Hyman's pitching was the feature of New Haven's 3 to 2 victory over Springfield here this afternoon. The former Georgetown star allowed only six hits, striking out 11 batsmen. Gagnon hit timely, driving in two of the Profs' runs. Score by inning innings:

Havana, June 10.—(By The A. P.)—Luis Angel Firpo, the Argentine heavyweight, this afternoon knocked out "Italian Jack" Herman in the second round of what was to have been a fifteen round bout.

The fight, which was a very unequal one as regards the size of the men, lasted three minutes and nineteen seconds. Firpo was thirty pounds heavier.

Nineteen seconds after the second round had started, however, the Argentinian cut loose and sent his opponent to the canvas for the full count.

It was a right to the jaw that did the work.

Firpo simply toyed with his lighter opponent. From the time the gong rang until Herman was counted out the result was only a question of time. More than five thousand spectators sweltered under the glass roof of the Nuevo Fronton to witness the but. Firpo's weight was announced at 217 3-4 and Herman's was 182 and 3-4 pounds.

Notwithstanding the fact that he was outweighed by 35 pounds, the game little Italian-American fighter swapped blow for blow with the big Argentinian as long as he was on his feet. The blow that ended the bout apparently was not intended by Firpo to land on a vital spot for Forpo looked amazed when Herman fell to the floor in a neutral corner.

In the first round both missed light blows. Firpo had his usual grim look on his face. Herman landed a left to the neck and chased Firpo around the ring. Firpo missed two hard swings. Firpo hurt Herman with a hard right to the head in free arm fighting during a clinch. When they broke Firpo punished the little man with blows to the head, and the bell found Herman standing dazed in a neutral corner.

ALBANY HITS HILLIES' PITCHERS HARD AND OFTEN

Albany, June 10.—Albany hit two pitchers hard and often today and won from Pittsfield, 10 to 3. Home runs by Emmer and M. Wilson and a catch by Long were features. Emmer's circuit smash was his tenth of the season. Score:

Albany . . . . . 5 2 0 0 0 1 3 0 0—10

FORT WRIGHT TEAM FAILS TO APPEAR AT BALTIC

The Fort Wright baseball team that was scheduled to play at Baltic on Sunday afternoon did not show up, disappointing the largest crowd of the season. Manager Collins called the commander at the fort, but was told that the team had left for Baltic. The soldiers apparently became lost on the road, for they did not put in an appearance.

Columbia Crews Rest.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 10.—The tinkling of piano keys, the rustling of newspapers and siestas spelled a day of rest for the Columbia crews at Crumb Elbow today. Abiding by an old rule of Coach Jim Rice, no drills are scheduled for Sunday.

The coming week-end will probably witness the arrival of the Pennsylvania crews. Until then the Blue and White oarsmen will be in sole possession of the course in their training for the intercollegiates on June 28.

French Races.

Chantilly, France, June 10. — Le Chapucin, ridden by F. Williams, today won the Jockey Club prize, known as the French Derby. Niceas was second and Sir Gallahad, with McGee, the American jockey, in the saddle, was third.

Again today there was much lamenting of the fact that Fashion was submerged by "mere people who desired to see the race." It was common talk that no one dresses any more for Chantilly, where formerly the spring fashions were launched.

Red Sox Win Exhibition.

Hartford, Conn., June 10.—The Boston Red Sox won an easy victory over the Dixie semi-pro club of this city this afternoon, 12 to 1. The game was played for the benefit of local disabled veterans. Score:

Boston Red Sox	12	13	2
Dixies	1	5	5

THE COMING CITY MEETING.

Taxpayers and citizens should not be unmindful of the fact that it rests with them to a large degree as to what the cost of running the city during the coming year is going to be. It is possible to display the attitude of going the limit so far as expenditures are concerned or it is possible to give opposition to the demand for keeping down the taxes. Whichever is the course should be made manifest at the city meeting Tuesday evening.

There are certain appropriations that must be made and appropriations for them authorized. There are other items about which it remains for the citizens to say whether they shall be approved at this time or not. If there is no limit to the amount of taxation they might as well be discontinued now as at any other time. If there is a desire for a reduction instead of an increase in taxation the time to make it known is at the city meeting.

At the last annual city meeting there was appropriated the sum of $1,349,654.51, which included extras to the amount of $37,750, and called for a tax of 20 9-4 mills.

This year by the estimates approved by the council there are appropriations of $1,389,290.51 sought, in addition to which there are extras petitioned for, which if approved by the city meeting call for $50,600 additional.

It was necessary to raise by tax last year $734,350, making a tax of 20 9-4 mills on the grand list at that time necessary.

If only the recommended estimates are approved this year it will be necessary to raise $822,267 by taxation or a tax of 20 1-2 mills on the increased grand list. This is within 11.063 of the amount raised by taxation last year after all extras had been voted.

If in addition to that, the extras are approved it will call for an additional tax of over four mills, making a city tax about of nearly 25 mills, or a total city and town tax for the city taxpayers of nearly 46 mills.

There is food for thought in the situation that confronts the taxpayers. It remains for them to say whether they believe all the recommended appropriations as asked for are necessary or desirable.

It likewise rests with them as to whether the extras should be provided for at this time.

But it should not be overlooked that it is at the city meeting Tuesday night that the decision is going to be rendered. It is therefore a meeting that ought not to be neglected.

SUPERINTENDENT HOUGH.

Norwich, and all other towns having business with the office, cannot fail to be highly pleased with the selection that has been made by Labor Commissioner Mackenzie in appointing Dwight H. Hough as superintendent of the Norwich state employment bureau.

Mr. Hough is thoroughly acquainted with this territory. He is one of the city's best known citizens and from his varied experience in various lines is thoroughly qualified to administer the duties of the office to the credit of the state and himself. There is no question but what he will give patient and conscientious consideration to all those who seek the assistance of this bureau at all times. Those who are in search of employment as well as those who seek help have good reason to feel gratified at his appointment. This clearing house for labor in this part of the state handles much business in the course of a year and is of inestimable benefit to the worker on the employer. It is desirable that it should be kept at the peak of efficiency and that seems assured by the new appointment.

Superintendent Hough follows in the footsteps of one who devoted a number of years to the upbuilding of this bureau, and there is every reason for believing that the same active and successful administration will be continued.

FIGHTING THE MOTHS.

Extension of the federal quarantine for the control of any particular pest means that that pest is making headway in spite of much opposition as it is encountering.

There was a time when the gypsy and the brown-tail moths were to be found in only a small area in eastern New England. It was then of course that the most effective fight against them was possible. But regardless of the opposition the moths have encountered they have been able to extend the scope of their activity and new towns are added each year to the quarantined area by the federal government. It is gratifying to note in this connection that there are towns from which the quarantine is lifted from time to time. They do not remain those that are added but they do show that a substantial fight the destruction which they cause and the inconvenience that is caused by the quarantine should be sufficient to awaken a more effective opposition. Give them free rein and they take full advantage of it. They are even persistent in their opposition but it is remarkably much easier to prevent their spread during the early stages of an invasion or to prevent them from extending their activities than it is to get them after they become firmly established.

Whatever the cost may be, the best results are gained from a persistent resistance. Crying over spilt milk that has been spilled accomplishes nothing. The great need is for those efforts that are required to prevent it being spilled.

It is an untold amount of attention that is required to effect the activities of the various pests as they come from time to time. It is necessary, however, for the preservation of vegetation in its various forms, and where everyone enters the fight the task is made much easier. Leaving it for the other fellow to do is a delusion.

LASKER'S RECOMMENDATIONS.

By the report which Chairman Lasker of the shipping board submits to the president in anticipation of his retirement it is evident that he is opposed to the idea of government ownership, that he is able to appreciate the disadvantages and that the idea of the government in whatever course it follows henceforth should be to get rid of the ships as soon as possible.

Chairman Lasker has found the job all that he had anticipated he would. It presented big problems. Some of them have been solved and others remain for his successor. He hasn't made the merchant marine show a profit but it is to his credit that he has reduced its monthly deficit from $10,000,000 to $4,000,000 and that the board will show $135,000,000 on deposit at the end of the year as against $4,000,000 when he took office.

Careful study must be given to the recommendations which the chairman makes. The effort to dispose of the ships by sale is a failure. Inasmuch as no bids that could be considered have been received it remains for the government to make the best use possible of the ships. It is plain they must be operated, and to do that to the best advantage of the government and commerce the idea of organizing subsidiary corporations to control the various routes deserves study. The plan of operating agents has been tried and found wanting, but by the government keeping control of these subsidiary corporations benefits should accrue to the country rather than to [illegible].

The report indicates that the difficulties of the board are by no means over and at the same time prepares the country for the probable breaking up of many of the ships which are unfit for peacetime use and the fitting of others with more economical motive power.

Though he has rendered valuable service on a most difficult job, Chairman Lasker leaves plenty for his successor to do.

FRESH AIR FUNDS.

We are getting to that season of the year when there are many appeals made in behalf of fresh air funds. There are instances where many of those to whom such appeals are directed are fully conscious of the need of much relief work. To a great many little is known about the conditions from which there is need of removing the children. It is therefore not a matter that can be turned aside without consideration if there is a desire on the part of the many, more or less well endowed with advantages, to give assistance to those who require it.

In the larger city the need is much more acute than in the smaller ones. Fresh air, like the flowers and the green fields, becomes a stranger to many people in proportion to the size of the city they insist in living in. What a week, a fortnight or a month can do for the thousands in the tenement house districts is not a conjecture. It has been too plainly shown by experience to need any further test.

The appeals which are therefore made in behalf of the large number who are worthy of such aid are well directed. They have gotten recognition in the past and they should of course this year. It provides an opportunity for giving some real help.

While Norwich has not the same reasons for raising a fresh air fund that some other cities have, there are nevertheless many of the hard working and worthy women and plenty of children who are deserving of the outings which are provided during the summer season by the welfare department of the United Workers. Norwich should take pride in seeing that this relief is made possible.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A tablespoonful of corn or rice starch mixed with the salt will make it flow easily from cellars in damp weather.

By placing chopped parsley in a clean cloth, dipping it in cold water and then wringing and squeezing tightly, it can be rendered brilliant and fresh green.

Put the lamp chimneys and tumblers in the dishwater sideways as cold mornings and they are not so liable to crack.

Whipped cream will go much further if the white of an egg is added to the cream before whipping. Allow one white to half a pint of cream.

A vegetable grater should be used for the suet for puddings and mincemeat; it takes less time than chopping; or put the suet through the mincer.

Sand is the cheapest cleanser to use when scrubbing wooden tables and floors. If the boards are very soiled mix the sand with equal parts of soft soap and whitening.

To prevent casters from dropping out of chairs or tables fill the hole with melted paraffin and quickly insert the caster. It will be held firmly in place.

White furniture is best treated with a little whitening dissolved in warm water. Rub this on with a cloth and it will restore the whiteness and help to preserve the enamel.

Beat your rugs over a set of bedsprings if you want to remove all the dust.

If a household plant seems to be dying, often a little castor oil applied at the root will revive and save it.

THE CANNING OUTFIT

Canning and preserving begin with the first green things of spring and last until the late quinces and pears are disposed of. Therefore the housekeeper makes sure her canning outfit is in working order as soon as the warm days begin to suggest spring housecleaning. She will have, of course, a large enameled ware preserving kettle; this for work on a big scale. Then a second size kettle in which to can the berries and smaller fruits. It will be a comfort if she will furnish herself with a saucepan holding from two quarts to five pints which shall be kept exclusively for the canning work. There are no many times when some extra syrup needs boiling down and the extra saucepan will be most useful. The other adjuncts should never be omitted, a colander, skimmer and spoon.

HOW TO MAKE IRON RUST PROOF

To make ironwork proof against rust, heat it until it is almost red hot and then brush it over with linseed oil. This makes a varnish which unlike ordinary paint or enamel, does not chip off.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Take a piece of emery board and go over the nails each day, quickly filing each one into shape. The day's growth is scarcely perceptible; you do not have to file the nail shorter, you merely give it a fresh clean edge.

As a general thing the waist should be 10 inches less than the hips. If it is 12 inches less it is still in good proportion. Any greater difference than that is apt to make the waist ridiculously small or the hips to heavily large.

If your arms are not perfect, or at least as perfect as you would like, the only way you can make them so is by exercise. This is assuming that you weigh neither too much nor too little, for if the arm consists of rolls of flesh you must diet before you exercise, and if the arm is merely skin and bone you must somehow increase your weight. The arm, by the way, is always an indication of your weight and grains or loses in proportion to the rest of the body.

To remove all traces of tears. You simply use tea, bathing the lids with the hot liquid and then dipping a handkerchief or bit of old muslin into the tea and holding it as a compress for about ten minutes over the closed lids. This does away with the redness and strained, swollen feeling that makes the eyes hurt so after crying. And, by the way, a cup of good tea taken internally is an excellent thing to take if you have been crying; it is soothing to tired nerves and at the same time a little stimulating.

CUTTING THE HAIR

The best authorities on the hair say that a child's hair should not be cut until it is 4 or 5 years of age. It should be trimmed at the tips, however, or burned off monthly to keep it even and the hairs from splitting at the end.

Do not wash the hair too often unless it is very oily. In that case wash it often to remove the excess oil. Dry hair, that is inclined to come out, should be kept clean by daily use of the brush applied vigorously to the scalp.

REST BETWEEN TIMES

If you would carry through successfully a long or arduous piece of work, an authority advises that you don't wait until the work is done to rest. When tired try to snatch at least five minutes to lie down and relax. You will thus accomplish more work and avoid overfatigue.

Short and frequent rests have been found to be far more effective in maintaining efficiency than a long period of rest taken at one time.

Scientists have proved by most thorough practical tests that the greatest possible amount of work in a day can be accomplished when the worker rests fifteen minutes in every hour, working diligently the remainder of the time.

FOR THE ROMPERS

Chambray, cotton crepe, striped batiste and English print are some of the materials from which the very young lady's romper frocks are made. For dress-up she has, this season, a dainty little gown or organdie, dotted swiss or printed crepe de chine.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Butterflies remain in favor as an ornamental detail. They are used in enameled buckles and slides for leather belts.

Shoe buckles are made of jet beads mounted on finely pleated black silk.

Jet bandeaux for the hair are effective ornaments for the evening.

Veils are made with bands of embroidered flowers at one side. The veils are placed on the hats so that the band of flowers goes around the crown.

LAUNDRY HINTS

A solution of ammonia and water or soda and water will clean hair brushes without softening the bristles.

If white goods turn yellow put a few drops of turpentine in the rinsing water and place in strong sunshine.

When ironing a round table cloth or centerpiece, be careful to iron from center toward edge. After ironing, roll cloth instead of folding.

Add a few drops of bluing to the soapy water in which glassware is to be washed. The glass will come out sparkling.

Wool blankets will retain their usual length and width if dried on certain stretchers.

A good way to press delicate fabrics is to dampen a paper and lay it over the material. Then press with a hot iron.

A small ironing board especially for embroideries, laces and strips of buttons may be made by covering a board fourteen by twenty inches with four thicknesses of Turkish toweling and an outside cover of muslin.

REMOVING STAINS

Ink stains may be removed from white materials when fresh by sprinkling salt over the stains, then rubbing with a cut lemon; rinse and wash immediately. Ink stains on colored materials should be removed immediately.

Dip the stained part in warm milk and rub lightly with the finger. As the milk becomes inky, change it, and continue rubbing until the stain fades; rinse, dry, and smooth the part with a warm iron, unless the whole garment is to be washed.

Dry ink stains can only be removed from white fabrics with safety. Spread the stained part over a shallow dish half-full of boiling water. Moisten the spots with water, and place a tiny pinch of salts of lemon over the stain. Let it remain for about a minute and then pour a thin stream of boiling water over. If the stain still remains, repeat the treatment. Rinse off all trace of the acid immediately.

SILKS AND CREPES

While silks are being purchased to a great extent for jacquettes, shoppers are making extensive purchases for dresses in sports styles, and also for afternoon gowns.

Among the most called for silk is the Roshanara type in printed Egyptian designs. This is considered to be the most popular jacquette number. Printed radiums and crepe de chine are also used for jacquettes.

Satin surface silk with raised motifs, in the spring shades, and crepe foundations, in matelasse effects in broken designs, are also considered as very popular numbers. Printed georgettes and chiffons sell well in vivid patterns.

CONCERNING WOMEN

In Belgium the trade union restrictions on apprenticeship bar women from the hairdressing and printing trades.

Only a few months over 21 years of age, a London girl is believed to be the youngest owner and manager of a chemist's shop in England.

MARKING HANDKERCHIEFS

Starch your handkerchiefs before you mark them with indelible ink. They will be stiff so you can use a very small identification mark and the ink will not spread.

LEFT-OVER COFFEE

Use left-over coffee for mixing gingerbread or for gelatin desserts. Never warm it up for a beverage as the flavor of coffee lies in a volatile oil which soon goes after the coffee is made.

RECIPES

Rhubarb Savarioce—Soften 1-3 package of granulated gelatin in one cup of cold water and dissolve in one and one-half cups of hot cooked rhubarb, add two tablespoons of orange marmalade and stir over crushed ice until the mixture begins to thicken, then fold in one and one-half cups of triple cream beaten until stiff. Line a mold with small lady fingers, turn in the mixture and set aside in a cold place until thoroughly chilled. Unmold on serving platter and surround with billows of whipped cream.

Cooked Rhubarb for Savarioce—Wash pink tender rhubarb and cut in one-half inch slices. To one pound of prepared rhubarb allow one pound of sugar; mix well and bake in a slow oven (without water) until soft. Use as directed.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Defiance of Law in Norwich.

Mr. Editor: In the attack made on men who were quietly working in Maplewood cemetery on last Monday and Tuesday there are some things which ought to make all good citizens sit up and consider what the end may be, not only in Norwich, but in all of these United States if permitted to continue. In some other parts of the country men may be beaten on jobs of various kinds, but Norwich has the distinction of having men beaten because they were trying to make an honest living by working in a cemetery. (Of course we would be entirely wrong to expect any respect for the dead from men who beat the living over their graves).

On June 4th men who went from the city of Norwich in automobiles, put them off the job who were building a new road in the cemetery.

The first selectman being told of the situation sent a town constable who I understand stayed a part or all of the night at the cemetery as a watchman and was there on Tuesday when a truckload of men from the city about 9.30 a. m. said to be 19 or 20 in number, got off the truck on the highway at the main entrance to the cemetery and went on what might be called "double quick march" towards the job.

When about 75 to 100 feet from where the men were working they were met by the town constable, the superintendent of the cemetery and a representative of the cemetery association who warned them not to interfere with the men at work. The attacking party did not pay the slightest heed to the constable or those who represented the cemetery but went straight to where the six men were working, dragged three of the men who were Italians and one Swiss off the work, beat the two Americans over the head and other parts of the body, in defiance of the town of Norwich as represented by its constable. Are lawless men like these desirable citizens?

Now as to the two Americans who were beaten up. Mr. Stapleton is a good citizen and resident of the city, about 70 years old, and is able and willing (if allowed to work in the land of his birth) to give more value in work for the wages he receives than the men who clubbed him. Mr. Ramage whose lip was split, arm and side bruised, is a highly respected citizen of the town of Montville. A veteran of the Spanish and World wars. By his good morals and the sacrifices he has made for his country he stands in the front rank of what we call good American citizens.

The government of the town has been defied and ignored. Discrimination was shown in the beating up of the Americans, so that it can be truthfully said, simply judging these men by their acts they have no respect for American law and less for the American people.

REMARKABLE CASE OF RAPID RECOVERY AFTER SERIOUS BREAKDOWN

Woman Had Grown Weaker and Weaker Under Treatment Care of Physicians

"I had a severe bronchial cough, I could neither eat nor sleep and I can truthfully say that I did not touch any solid food in four weeks. I had no appetite and the sight of food sickened me. I was constantly under the Doctor's care and there was not the slightest change in my condition. I grew weaker and weaker. I saw your advertisement in the paper one day and purchased a bottle. I felt the first effects in getting a good night's sleep and then gradually my appetite returned and after taking three bottles I again felt as well as ever. I always recommend Wincarnis to my friends."

CLERK'S ARRIVAL SCARES BURGLAR AT QUINN & DESMOND'S STORE

The work of a burglar at the men's furnishing store of Quinn & Desmond, 248 Main street, was interrupted Sunday night about 10 o'clock by the arrival of Harold Desmond, a clerk in the store, who stopped to see why the light was out. As Mr. Desmond opened the front door, he caught a glimpse of a man climbing out a window at the rear end of the store, but the distance and the darkness together made it impossible for him to get any description of the burglar.

The police and the proprietors were at once notified, and a hasty check-up of goods in the store determined that probably five men's suits had been stolen. Parts of one of the suits were found later by Officer Hugh McAvoy hidden behind a pile of ties in the New Haven railroad yard.

Two of the suits that are missing are of worsted, two of blue serge, unfinished, and the other a special suit of blue. The trousers and vest of the last named suit were recovered.

Investigation by the police disclosed that the burglar had got into the store by a window at the rear. He climbed to a roof from which he could reach the window and kick in the glass close to the catch. This made it possible to raise the window and make entrance into the store where he was at work when the clerk arrived.

DRIVERS MUST USE CARE AT R. R. GRADE CROSSINGS

General Manager C. E. Bardo of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company has forwarded the following letter to J. R. McMahon, chief of the company's police service:

"The careless attitude and indifference to the efforts and signals of our crossing tenders by many of the automobile travelers make apparent the necessity for some effective control of highway traffic at our grade crossings.

"To impress the traveling public with a realization of their obligation to take at least ordinary precautions for their own protection and to compel a reasonable regard for the crossing tender's signals and instructions it has been deemed advisable to detail a uniformed police officer, from your department to be assigned temporarily to various crossings where his services are most needed, which Division Superintendents will determine, perhaps two or three days at a time.

"Will you kindly instruct your Captains to assign details accordingly; one man to each Division for as much time as they can be spared between June and October 1st.

"Officers assigned to this duty should maintain a respectful and courteous attitude toward the public but at the same time be firm enough in their admonitions and warnings to impress the highway traveler with the fact that the Railroad Company is not solely responsible for his safety and that it is his duty to exercise all due diligence for his own protection at such points."

General Manager Bardo's letter to Chief McMahon reflects the latest efforts of the company to impress the public with the sense of their responsibility to take reasonable steps for their protection.

At the graduation exercises Howard Eaton was the essayist from the Center school, reading his paper on The Controversy Between France and Germany, which was an excellent schoolboy production. Pupils from the Center school also assisted in the music with the songs given at the exercises Tuesday.

Kenneth Little was another who added to the fun of the evening with local jokes. The soloists were Lawrence Dunnian, Alfred Dodd, Mrs. Harold James, Miss Frances Travis, Mrs. Willis Hemer, Amy Hawkins. Miss Davis and Ruth Oden were also heard in a quartet. DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Notice appears officially elsewhere in this issue of The Bulletin of a special town meeting called for next Saturday afternoon, June 16, to see what action the town will take with regard to constructing an addition to the present school building at Goodyear, and to make the necessary appropriation.

This is the revival of a proposition that was turned down at a town meeting a year ago; but again forces itself up for consideration because of the congested conditions in the Goodyear school building, which is not at all adequate to the needs it is expected to meet.

The proposal is that a sum of money be made available for building out each side of the present structure so as to enlarge the four school rooms and increase their seating capacity from 72 to about 48. This done, nearly double the number of pupils could be cared for with no increase in the teaching force, and a room now maintained as an adjunct of the school in the basement of the church at Goodyear could be abolished and one teacher eliminated.

When the proposal was last before the town for consideration it was shown that the work of addition could be accomplished within an appropriation of $4,200. It is likely that the present cost might be slightly above that figure, but not materially so.

The point is that Goodyear, an important center of the town of Killingly, is without adequate school facilities, and the move now under way is intended to overcome that condition before another school year opens in September.

There are quite a large number of children in Goodyear and it is well within the realms of reason to predict that the number will be materially larger within another year or two. The proposed addition, however, likely would take care of the increase for several years to come.

At his home on Broad street Saturday at noon funeral services for George S. Browne were conducted by Rev. Walter B. Williams of the Westfield Congregational church, with relatives and many friends attending. During the service Miss Davis, soloist of the First Baptist church, Providence, sang Abide With Me and Lead, Kindly Light. The body was taken to Providence for interment in the North Burial ground. The bearers were Herman M. Coulter, Ira A. McDaniel, George H. Call and James H. Sayles. Rev. Mr. Williams conducted the committal service at the burial ground. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Deeds now recorded here show that the Exchange block has passed into the possession of The Church company, operating stores here, in Putnam, at Williamntic and at Hartford. Impending notice of a transfer of ownership of this property came nearly two weeks ago when Irving W. Davis of Broad street obtained a bond for a deed from Abraham Herman, a Californian and a brother of Henry Herman of this place.

This is the second largest real estate transaction of the year in Danielson and involves a three-story brick structure situated in the very heart of the borough. The building is occupied on the street level floor by Armington's store, Gaston A. Maindon and the Burroughs Drug company. The second floor is given over to offices and club rooms and the third floor is entirely occupied by Masonic organizations. The building has frontage on three streets and is splendidly suited for business purposes.

Mrs. Harriet C. Loftus, 64, wife of Thomas F. Loftus, is dead at her home in Providence, having passed away Saturday. The body is to be brought to Danielson for burial. Mrs. Loftus formerly lived in Danielson, her home being at the property now owned by Eli J. Dagenais on Railroad square. She has been resident in Providence for a long period of years.

Warden W. A. Burrows and members of the court of burgesses are to meet in regular weekly session tomorrow (Tuesday) evening. Members of Quinebaug lodge of Odd Fellows held their annual Memorial Sunday services for deceased members of the lodge Sunday when they assembled at their hall in the town hall building and, escorted by St. James' band, marched to Westfield cemetery, where impressive exercises were held. This is an annual custom of the lodge and is practiced by the order throughout the country.

Picnic parties dotted hillsides all through this territory Sunday—a June day such as poets write about. The motor traffic was up to the heavy volume now regarded as regular on Sundays, but up to late afternoon it may be recorded as a happy feature of the day no accidents had been reported hereabouts.

Effort is being exerted to interest pupils in the schools of Brooklyn and Killingly in the worth of the courses offered at the State Trade school in Putnam. It is of interest to mention that pupils do not have to pay to attend this school, courses being open to residents of Connecticut. The school offers fine opportunity to become skilled in trades.

THE PILL HOLD-UP

The drug clerk was just about to close up. It was getting late. The last policeman to rub his nose against the plate glass window, was far down the avenue when the clerk switched off the electric lights and turned the lock. Then it all happened.

A man rushed up to the door. "Say, man, I want a box of Beecham's Pills. Simply must have them!" he exclaimed. "Store's closed for the day," remarked the clerk as he pocketed the key. "Like thunder it is!" shouted the late comer. "I've got to have a box of Beecham's Pills tonight." The altercation grew heated. There was an exchange of blows.

Then the clerk took off his broken glasses, unlocked the door and handed out a 50 cent box of Beecham's Pills.

Can you beat it?

PUTNAM

Three cases were tried by Justice of the Peace Charles M. Perrin at a juvenile session of a justice court at North Woodstock, Friday afternoon. Two boys were charged with throwing stones at a horse which was owned by Joseph Potter of Putnam. The horse was in pasture and, according to the evidence, over twenty stones were thrown at it.

The horse was found with a broken leg and it had to be shot. Sidney Evans, one of the boys, was bound over to the superior court in bonds of $100 for cruelty to animals and the case against a younger boy was nolled. It is thought that in its fright the horse slipped or fell which caused the fracture of its leg. The third boy was found guilty of operating a motor vehicle without a proper license and paid a small fine.

Members of Israel Putnam lodge, I. O. O. F., observed its annual Memorial Day, Sunday. Members met at the lodge rooms at half past three and marched to Grove street cemetery where there were memorial exercises including singing by a quartette and prayer and an address by Rev. In the city court Saturday morning Omer Desautels of Smith street was fined $300 and ordered to pay costs of $27.54 on a charge of keeping intoxicating liquor with intent to sell. Through his attorney, A. S. Macdonald, he entered a demurrer which was overruled and sentence imposed.

Prosecuting Attorney J. F. Carpenter, told the court that police officers went to the Desautels home and found a quantity of home brew, moonshine and mash but no still. On Desautels' behalf it was stated that this was the first time he had ever been in any trouble and that he had learned a lesson and appeared in a repentant mood and assured the court that he would not continue the illegal business. All claims and rights in the liquors and containers seized were waived by the defendant and they will be destroyed by the police.

Under instructions from the common council, Fire Chief Ralph E. Thurston is investigating the advisability, cost and all data pertaining to the proposition of having a man on duty at fire headquarters every night, a man capable of taking care of the motor-driven fire apparatus and keeping it in proper condition. He will make his report to the next meeting of the council.

The subject came up when a request from members of the department, for an increase in pay, was received by the council and tabled until its July meeting. The increase asked for is a hundred per cent in some instances. Foremen ask for $100 a year where now they receive $50; hosemen $60 a year, now receiving $40; drivers, $150 a year, now receiving $115, assistant chiefs $200, now receiving $100. No increase is asked for by the chief or superintendent of the fire alarm system.

Chief Thurston was present at the meeting and asked to make remarks on the subject pointed out that the department is made up of volunteers who are on call twenty-four hours a day and who often suffer loss by having wearing apparel ruined when called from business to fight a fire. On the other hand the chief stated that the men have other vocations and their work in the department is in a measure their contribution to the welfare of the city. The chief also stated that there was a need of a man on duty at fire headquarters at all times.

Spencer Voorhees has tendered his resignation as pastor of the Pomfret Congregational church to take effect September 1st, at which time he will have completed a pastorate of the church of four years. JEWETT CITY

The children's day service at the Congregational church was held in the place of the Sunday morning service. Mrs. L. G. Buckingham and Mrs. Carle Munn were in charge of the program. The success of the chorus music was largely due to the faithful and efficient work of Miss Irene Stewart, who cheerfully gave her time outside of her school work, to accompanying the children and choir. Assisted by Misses Flora Littlefield and Doris Bliss, she also decorated the church. The children were seated on and in front of the platform, before a background of flowers which extended the length of the choir loft.

Supt. William McNicol announced the programme. He also presented the Bibles to four children, who are entitled to them under the rules of the H. L. Reade bequest. They were Janet Wilcox, Frederick Albertine, Helen Geer and Raymond Symington. The collection was received by Donald Buckingham, Howard Richardson, Janet Wilcox and Ruth Munn. Solos were sung by Ethelie Parkhurst who was accompanist by Ethel Thompson and Ruth Balbu whose accompanist was Mrs. Alex McNicol. There was a piano solo by William Stebbins. The Greeting was given by Russell Carpenter. There were recitations by Janet Wilcox, Eunice Webster, Martha Munn, Donald McNicol, Charlotte Albertine, Ruth Murrer, Marjorie Webster, Edith Munn, Allen Wholley, Raymond Symington and Edward Richardson. The song Sweet Little Robin was sung by Raymond Symington, Edith Munn, Janet Wilcox, Ruth Munn and Doald Buckingham. I have a Little Shadow was sung by Ruth and Janet Wilcox. There was an exercise by Ruth Munn and Eunice Symington, Olga Zegeer, Charlotte Albertine, Donald McNicol, Sarah Munn and Howard Stebbins. Daisies was sung by Eunice Wegner, Olga Zegeer, Edith Munn and Charlotte Albertine. Walker Richardson, Spencer Johnson, Frederick Albertine and William Stebbins gave an exercise. After a steady three days' storm Sunday in the borough was an exact duplicate of Memorial day. With the same even moderate temperature, bright sunlight, and cloudless skies. The automobile traffic over the state road during the afternoon averaged well over 200 machines an hour. Small trips, short walks or long auto rides were in order. In each case, there were plenty of nature's beauties on every hand to attract the discerning eye.

In case one visited the right place Sunday, the beautiful lady's slipper or pink moccasin flower was the reward of diligent search.

This, and its yellow sister, even rarer still, are easily this section's fairest orchids. Touched with the spirit of the deep woods its charm never wanes.

Not many years ago these handsome cypripediums were not considered as rare in local woods and swamps, although they never were, and never will be a roadside flower. Today, if some returning visitor to the woods has much of a bouquet of lady's slipper, it is a sure indication that they discovered a place not generally known. One lady says it seems to have a great fondness for decaying wood and I have seen a whole row perched like birds along a crumbling log.

The small yellow lady's slipper or whip-poor-wills shoe is only to be found in Griswold in the big cedar swamp on the eastern border of Tadpole pond. Few ever venture to its secluded habitat to find it. Two local flower lovers in their last attempt were rewarded with six, but they were fairly lost, and only for the level head of the older of the two, they might have been there yet. They declare that on the next visit to this famous swamp they shall carry a compass.

In connection with the proposed installation of a new boiler at the Jewett City creamery the other day certain excavations were found necessary. Considerably below the foundations of the building, the pick of one of the workmen encountered a hard substance that gave out a peculiar hollow sound. The superintendent and others came to investigate, the gravel was cleared away, when a tunel of brick and cemented stone was exposed to view. No one present knew of its existence, and there was a little flurry of excitement among the excavators their minds. The tunnel led away under the main building for some little distance, then came the evidence of long disuse by its caving walls with some piles of fallen bricks. No treasure chest was unearthed, but there was an old paper and an old catalogue showing a date of 40 years ago of dairy utensiles, published by a firm still doing business in Vermont.

Now it is known that the various brickings were built in connection with plans for draining and handling the butter milk. It first ran off beside the road, later into a greater cistern, from whence it was raised by a chain pump.

In this cistern it came to be a fine old product, especially in hot weather. And the story is well remembered with its touching details of how two [illegible] then to get rid of the buttermilk. Charles E. Coon of Williamntic visited in Westerly on Sunday.

Sunday, June 10th, was generally observed by the churches of Westerly as Children's day, when the programs were supplied by the younger members of the Bible schools. The pleasant weather was a contributing cause for a much larger than average attendance. A fitting subject for the sermon at Christ Episcopal church, Rev. G. E. Tobin, rector, at the Sunday morning service was My Lambs. An appropriate musical program was given by the choir. The subject of the evening sermon was Jesus in Relation to Social Life. On Thursday evening, June 14th, the church guild will have a meeting in the church vestry.

The Children's day subject of Rev. R. U. Hatfield, pastor of the First Baptist church, was Be Yourself. The electrical workers of Westerly are anticipating a change in their wage scale. Conditions as to time and wages have been similar to those which existed with the carpenters. When a year ago the carpenters' scale was cut from 85c to 80c an hour, many of the local electrical workers had the same cut. Now that a new bill has been signed between the master and journeymen carpenters whereby the wage was raised from 80c to 90c, the journeymen electricians consider this to be a just scale for them. When organization was effected by the electrical workers a few years ago they were affiliated with the Norwich branch but meetings were held by local members at the Central Labor Union rooms on Main street. It is thought that agreement can be reached between the contracting dealers and the workers in a short time as the number involved is not great. Many of the former workers are now engaged in contracting electrical work for themselves and this may have an influence on local conditions.

Sunday morning the eastbound Federal express ran from Stonington to Bradford on the westbound track, due to a long freight train obstructing the regular eastbound track. Friday morning the wrecker from Midway was called to make repairs caused by a burned-out journal on a freight car, which also necessitated the use of the westbound track for a short time.

CHELSEA SAVINGS BANK.

At a special meeting of the Directors of the Chelsea Savings Bank, held Saturday morning, June 9, 1923, the following minute and resolution was unanimously adopted regarding the death of our President, Thomas Dana Coit:—

Mr. Coit came to this town on Nov. 20, 1906, from the old Merchants National Bank as clerk, shortly after the death of his father, one of our former Treasurers, Hon. James Dana Coit.

On April 11, 1907, he was elected Assistant Secretary and Assistant Treasurer, to which office he has been re-elected annually ever since. He was made a member of the Corporation of this Bank in 1917.

He brought to each position a pleasant disposition, a hearty good will, and gave his time to attend to the business of this Bank to the people of Norwich and vicinity. These qualities, together with his genial, sympathetic, warm-hearted nature, endeared him to all and through them, for the bank, scores of loyal, firm friends.

TAFTVILLE

The annual children's service was held Sunday morning at the Taftville Congregational church instead of the usual service. The church was decorated with flowers and ferns in observance of the day, green foliage and flowering shrubs being banked on both sides of the altar, on which were placed baskets of flowers and a large floral cross. The chancel was decorated lavishly with roses, iris, pinks and snowballs, as well as wild flowers. Above the altar hung Fleckenstein's picture, Christ Blessing Little Children.

Over a hundred participated in the procession, which moved through the main aisles of the church, led by a patrol of Boy Scouts in uniform. Each of the smaller children carried baskets of flowers which were placed on the altar as the procession passed in front of the church. The processional hymn was sung by the choir, who also walked in the procession. The prelude was played by Miss Nellie Howie, organist; Miss Dorothy Wood, pianiste; and Miss Alma Fenton, violinist, who also played the Processional.

During the ceremony several children were baptized by Rev. Edwin Bordon Crowell, pastor of the church, and Mrs. James A. Bidwell, soprano, sang, "I Heard the Friend of Children." The impressive service came to a close with the recessional, The Summer Days Are Come Again, after which the pastor pronounced the benediction.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bechard and small daughter of Hunter's avenue, were visitors in Jewett City Sunday.

Harold H. Pingree, of Goodyear, passed the week end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Pingree of North Third avenue.

The pupils in the Taftville Congregational church Sunday school who are taught by Misses Mathilde Stapfer, Mabel Hodgkinson and Nyra A. Yerrington, contributed twenty dollars for the church organ fund last Sunday. The gift came as a great surprise to the entire congregation, who appreciate what the youngest members of the Sunday school took the lead in doing.

Because of unfavorable weather, the game between the Taftville A. A. and Sterling, which was to have taken place last Saturday, was postponed.

Miss Hannah Hadfield of Pawtucket, R. I., has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sidebottom of North A street.

The annual meeting of the Taftville Congregational Sunday school took place Sunday, and the following officers were elected to serve for the coming year: Superintendent, Fred Knowles; assistant superintendent, Victor H. Davis; secretary, Miss Mildred C. Klose; treasurer, Miss Elizabeth Houston; librarian, Thomas L. Sharples; superintendent of the home department, Mrs. Fred Ince; superintendent of the Cradle Roll, Mrs. Parks M. Wood. The question of the annual Sunday school picnic was referred to a committee, as it is understood that the rates on special cars this year are very high, and there was some question as to whether the Sunday school could afford to charter them.

Tuesday, being Near East Relief Picnic Day, the Congregational church will be open in the afternoon for the receiving of bundles of clothing and shoes.

BELL ALARM FOR BLAZE IN BALES OF COTTON WASTE NEAR FALLS AVENUE

Box 114 at the Industrial building on Falls avenue was pulled in about 6.15 o'clock Sunday evening when the fire in the huge pile of bales of cotton waste on the river bank owned by the Max Gordon Corp., which has been smouldering for the past two weeks, broke out again.

As the box is a private one most of the department in the central part of the city responded. As soon as the firemen arrived and the nature of the fire was learned all but one piece of apparatus, Squad A, went back to their stations.

Some of the firemen remained on duty with a line of hose during the evening. The fire started two weeks ago Sunday afternoon when the shed housing the waste cotton was burned. The fire has been smouldering since that time and the department has answered a number of telephone calls since that time as the fire has been breaking out every day or so.

Fire on Preston Bridge

At 3.57 o'clock Sunday afternoon Squad A, and the deputy chief responded to a telephone call for a small fire in the planking of Preston bridge. Three gallons of chemical were used.

It is thought that the fire was started by a spark from a passing locomotive.

ART EXHIBIT OPENED AT CONNECTICUT COLLEGE

The fifth annual art exhibit at Connecticut College opened Friday evening with a reception and a private view of the recent painting of Gertrude Fiske, A. N. A., of Boston. This is in keeping with the policy of the Department of Fine Arts of the college established some years ago of showing each year, at commencement, a group of pictures by a contemporary American artist of note.

For the most part the paintings of Miss Fiske now on view are figure paintings, though there are several successful landscapes, particular "The Meeting House" and a group of altogether delightful sketches. The small pictures are very fine in color and the spirited and informal composition contribute in no small degree to their success.

The most important picture of the group is perhaps the portrait of the well known artist, Charles H. Woodbury. It is much more than a good likeness, it has so much of the man's character. The painting of the sensitive hand holding the cigarette is remarkable. The portrait is a real achievement.

Very different and yet extremely successful is the large portrait of Miss Hope Gray, the difficult problem of the red dress having been treated in a very interesting way. The whole picture is very handsome in color. In fact, in all her most recent things which include such a picture as "The Client" there is evident a growing breadth and beauty in the color.

Lack of space prevents the mention of more of this fine group of paintings which comprised 17 pictures and 16 sketches. The exhibition opened to the public Saturday morning and will continue until June 13th from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m., in the college gymnasium.

At the same time the annual exhibition of work by the students in the Department of Fine Arts is in view in New London hall. This exhibit contains work in drawing from the antique, painting, design, interior decoration and pottery.

FINE FOR STOPPING AUTOS ON HIGHWAYS

The State of Connecticut has just passed a law, which becomes effective on July 1st, that prohibits any person from signalling or stopping a motorist on the public highways for the purpose of soliciting alms, a contribution or subscription or soliciting the purchase of a ticket of admission to any game, entertainment or public gathering. Any person violating this law shall be fined not more than $50.

Last season numerous complaints of the activities of officers in holding up motorists and requesting them to purchase tickets for all manner of public gatherings, reached The Automobilist the official A. L. A. magazine.

Motorists are law abiding citizens and are paying heavy taxes for the privilege of using the public highways and should not be subjected to the petty annoyances that have been their lot in the past.

Connecticut has once more come to the fore with progressive legislation and it is to be hoped that every state in the Union will adopt a law similar to that passed by the Connecticut Legislature.

TRINITY METHODIST WOMEN ELECT MISSIONARY OFFICERS

The annual meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church was held Friday, at the residence of Mrs. Ernest J. Jones, of Bliss Place with a good attendance. Reports for the year were given showing that the society had had a successful year and had raised about two hundred dollars.

Officers elected were as follows: President, Mrs. J. Harlow Graham; vice presidents, Mrs. Louis H. Geer, Mrs. J. C. Macpherson; secretary, Miss Charlotte C. Barbour; treasurer, Miss Edith A. Fellows; corresponding secretary, Miss Emma G. Bliss; thank offerings, Mrs. Ernest J. Jones; mite boxes, Mrs. Vincent Welsh; stewardship, Mrs. Frank J. King; home guards and mothers' jewels, Mrs. Alex Durie, Queen Esthers, Mrs. W. H. Bath.

At the conclusion of the meeting a fine supper was served by the hostess.

JUDGE WALLER RESERVES DECISION IN TWO CASES

Judge Charles B. Waller tried two cases in the court of common pleas in New London Saturday. The first was the case of Joseph Perino of East Lyme, administrator of the estate of his father, John W. Lord, for foreclosure of a mortgage. The plaintiff bought from the Union bank of New London two notes secured by mortgages on property in East Lyme for which he paid $400 and he brings suit to recover that sum.

The second case was the suit of John J. Murphy against Edward I. Raymond and May E. Raymond husband and wife, all of New London for the construction of a cement cellar to a house in Lenox street.

Judge Waller reserved decision in both cases.

CECIL HENSHEL WINS MARBLE SHOOT CHAMPIONSHIP

The marble tournament conducted by the Y. M. C. A. to determine the city's champion marble shooter came to a close Saturday with Cecil Henshel of Main Street winning the honor of being the first champion of the city. He was awarded a medal to remind him of his achievement, and will in the future stand ready to meet any other "contenders" for the title. Second honors went to John MacCorquodale. A quoits tournament for boys under 18 is being organized and will be started the latter part of this week. The tourney is open to all boys of the city who call at the Y. M. C. A. to enroll and the games will be conducted on the playground back of the "Y" building.

NORWICH TOWN

Children's Day exercises were successfully carried out at the First Congregational church on Sunday morning, before an unusually large congregation that filled the church auditorium.

The Sunday school comprising its many classes, each class being accompanied by the teacher, formed on either side of the church, and at the conclusion of the organ prelude by Organist Herbert L. Yerrington, marched in and took seats in the center of the church. The pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, and Dwight W. Avery, superintendent of the Sunday school, led the older classes, while the primary class was escorted by the leader, Miss Marion L. Bailey and her sister, Miss Lucile D. Bailey.

Under the supervision of the Misses Bailey, the several songs and exercises by the 86 children of the primary department, as well as other classes in the Sunday school, displayed careful training throughout the programme.

An impressive part of the service was the baptism of two infants by Rev. Mr. Bailey, Natalie Balfour Browning, little daughter of Deacon and Mrs. John L. Browning, and Natalie Beatrice Santo, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Santo. Each was presented a pink pot house rose by a little girl who is very fond of children. The remainder of the roses, a basket full having been contributed by a friend, were sent to the sick children in the Backus hospital.

The platform was artistically decorated with a profusion of lilies, snowballs, daisies, ferns, etc., making a pretty setting for the children in their dainty little dresses and frocks. Miss Ruth Beebe and Miss Ida Beebe were in charge of the decorations.

There will be a Near East bundle day in Norwich Town Thursday, June 14, at the Congregational chapel on the Green. Those unable to leave clothing there Thursday, may leave parcels at Mrs. Sarah Chapin's on Town street, Tuesday, June 12.—Those wishing to send parcels who have no way of getting them there may telephone Miss M. M. Bacheler and Boy Scouts will call at the places designated Wednesday afternoon.

The Near East Problem is still a big one. There are those who are suffering from lack of clothing and who have little if any means of supplying their needs. Great has been the relief afforded by the contributions on Bundle day in previous years, and the same excellent service can be continued with gratifying results at this time. It will mean the utilization of material that is now doing no one any good and in view of the destitution that has existed and that which still prevails, there can be no question of the need for all that can be contributed in this manner to the comfort and happiness of refugees and persecuted. Norwich has not been disposed to turn a deaf ear to the cries of distress. It has donated liberally in all causes that have been directed toward the relief of humanity and there are good reasons for believing that it will at this time display the same generous disposition. It is a chance to make your old clothes go far and do much good.

Every Ready Circle of the King's Daughters will meet this (Monday) evening, at the home of Miss J. G. Bonner of Harland road.

There will be a Near East bundle day in Norwich Town Thursday, June 14 at the Congregational chapel on the Green. Those unable to leave clothing there Thursday, may leave parcels at Mrs. Chapin's on Town street Tuesday. Those wishing to send parcels who have no way of getting them there may telephone Miss M. M. Bacheler and Boy Scouts will call at the places designated Wednesday afternoon.

STATE MARKSMEN TO SHOOT AT CAMP PERRY

The Adjutant General, Brig. General George M. Cole has called the attention of all members of the National Guard and civilian rifle units of the State to the national rifle and pistol matches to be held at Camp Perry, Ohio, and at which will be selected members of the various teams to represent the United States in the international competition.

Although the Camp Perry matches will not come for some months, General Cole said that the range at East Haven is now open, and recommended to all members of the National Guard and accredited civilian outfits that they report at the range at every available opportunity. Connecticut always has been represented by a team at the National Matches, and the desire this year is to send to Camp Perry a team representing this State composed of the best group of marksmen ever.

Brig. General Morris B. Payne, Quartermaster General, has personally supervised the work about the range this year, with the result that the East Haven Rifle Range was seldom, if ever, in better condition than it is at present. Men going there will find that the sanitary facilities have been much improved, and have also the camping facilities. There are now shower baths and running water about the quarters, while the quarters also will be found most satisfactory. On the range there are new firing points throughout.

Colonel Harry B. Bissell, Asst. Quartermaster General, and Major Robert F. Gadd, Ordnance Department, are looking after the general arrangements, with Major Gadd as executive officer in charge.

Out of the ranks of the 1,053,000 organized riflemen of the country, General Cole said, it would be difficult to select three more capable men to lead the American teams than those who already have accepted these appointments.

SEVERAL AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS IN NEW LONDON OVER THE WEEK END

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, June 10.—No trace of Alice Curran, the 12 year old girl who disappeared from her home at No. 33 Potter street last Tuesday, and who it is believed departed with a sailor from the submarine base, has been found. She was not located by the police of Riverside, R. I., to which city it was believed she departed with a carnival, and today Samuel Curran, father of the girl, went to that city in a further endeavor to find his daughter. Like the police, he was unsuccessful. From what can be ascertained, as has been stated before, she left New London and was joined in Norwich by the sailor, Byrnes by name, and recently discharged from the submarine base, but who re-enlisted and who is absent on a three weeks' furlough. Where the couple went from Norwich no one knows, but it is believed that when Byrnes' furlough has been concluded that the whereabouts of the girl will become known.

There is no change in the situation of the striking journeymen plumbers, who have been on strike a week because of the refusal of the masters to sign the new working agreement because of the journeymen insisting on the incorporation in it of clause 4. Clause 4 calls for the masters to notify the journeymen the night before any day that their services are not required or by 11 a. m. of any day that the services of the men are not needed in the afternoon. However, if any of the journeymen report for work and begin their labors that they are to be compensated for a half day's work. It is because of this clause that the masters refuse to sign.

About a dozen of the 33 yachts that will start from New London Tuesday forenoon in the race for Bermuda have arrived in port today, where the finishing touches for the starting of the 600 mile race were made. Tarbox was arrested and held in bonds of $25 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow morning, charged with operating an automobile while not being possessed of a license. Tarbox never did have a license and although one of his three companions had a license at one time, that license had expired.

Mrs. Bowers of Norwich rendered two vocal selections appropriate to the occasion. The exercises were attended by a large number of railroad employes and members of their families, together by representations of the two auxiliaries of the organizations, Harbor division, No. 250, and Riverview lodge, No. 362.

SUCCESSFUL MEETING AT THE Y. M. C. A.

The parlors were well filled at the service at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon. The opening exercises included the singing of several well known hymns, scripture reading and prayer.

Hugh Kinder officiated at the piano and rendered pleasing vocal solos.

Moving pictures were shown including three reels on bird life and one reel on "The Ruins of Egypt". All the pictures were interesting and instructive and the audience was well pleased.

Between the reels Secretary Hill gave a brief talk and among other things said: "We can gain many helpful lessons from the life and habits of the birds. First of all we all agree that unlike the human being the bird seems to live in harmony with nature and with natures God. Their songs are always pleasing, their notes are sweet. Then the Mother bird, by song in the pictures gives special attention to the care of her children, and when the baby bird is unable to get back to the home nest after its first venture out, the parent bird cries because of the young one lost. So God cares for us; He is indeed our Shepard and because He is we shall not want. He wonderfully provides for our needs, and he is personally interested in each of us; you remember that we are told in the scripture that "Not a sparrow falls without the Heavenly Father's notice" and that "we are of more value than many sparrows". Speaking of the sweet notes of the birds, I am reminded of one voice that is sweeter, and that is the "Master's" voice; "He speaks, and the sound of His voice, is so sweet that the birds hush their singing". Let us all live a life in harmony with Jesus Christ, and let us do all we can to pilot those about us to Him.

Ralph Marsh operated the moving picture machine and Emmett J. Fritz acted as usher.

LAW CREATING THE KANSAS INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS COURT IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Supreme Court Decision Delivered by Chief Justice Taft Declares That the Law is in Conflict With the Fourteenth Amendment—Decision Rendered in Case Brought by the Charles Wolff Packing Company—Court Finds That the Statute Curtailed the Right of the Employer on the One Hand and of the Employe on the Other to Contract About Their Affairs.

Washington, June 11.—The Kansas law creating a state industrial relations court was declared today unconstitutional by the supreme court so far as it attempted to fix wages in packing houses. Chief Justice Taft, delivering the decision in a case brought by the Charles Wolff Packing company of Topeka, said the law in that respect was in conflict with the fourteenth amendment, and deprived the company of its property and liberty of contract without due process of law.

"It has never been supposed since the adoption of the constitution," the court declared, "that the business of the butcher or the baker, the tailor, the woodchopper, the mining operator or the miner was clothed with such a public interest that the price of his product or his wages could be fixed by state regulation. . . . Since the adoption of our constitution, one does not devote one's property or business to the public use, or clothe it with a public interest merely because one makes commodities for, and sells to, the public in the common callings of which those above mentioned are instances.

"An ordinary producer, manufacturer or shopkeeper may sell or not sell as he likes, and while this feature does not necessarily exclude businesses from the less clothed with a public interest, it usually distinguishes private from quasi-public occupations."

The industrial court act was aimed to compel arbitration through a state board, whose decision was to be final, in all essential industries, and thus insure continuity of production. Pointing out that the law permitted the employer who was dissatisfied with the decision of the court to go out of business, and the dissatisfied workman to quit, provided he did not agree with his fellows to do so or conspire with others to induce them to quit, Chief Justice Taft said the essence of the statute curtailed the right of the employer on the one hand and of the employe on the other to contract about their affairs.

Chief Justice Taft, in delivering the opinion, placed emphasis upon the importance of the freedom of contract between employer and employes, and declared it could only be impaired by a legislature who nthe business is affected with a public interest.

"It is very difficult under the cases," the chief justice said, "to lay down a working rule by which readily to determine when a business has become 'clothed with a public interest.' All business is subject to some kind of public regulation, but when the public becomes so peculiarly dependent upon a particular business that one engaging therein subjects himself to a more intimate public regulation is only to be determined by the process of exclusion and inclusion, and to gradual establishment of a line of distinction.

"To say that a business is clothed with a public interest is not to determine whether regulation may be permissible in view of the private rights of the owner. It depends on the nature of the business on the feature which touches the public and on the abuses reasonably to be feared.

"To say that a business is clothed with a public interest is not to import that the public may take over its entire management and run it at the expense of the owner. The extent to which regulation may reasonably go varies with different kinds of business. The regulation of rates to avoid monopoly is one thing. The regulation of wages is another. A business may be of such character that only the first is permissible, while another may involve such a possible danger of monopoly on the one hand and such disaster from stoppage on the other that both come within the public concern and power of regulation.

"If so, in effect, contended by counsel for the state, the common callings are clothed with a public interest by a mere legislative declaration, which necessarily authorizes full and comprehensive regulation within legislative discretion, there must be a revolution in th relation of government to general business. This will be running the public interest argument into the grounds."

COURT DEFINES POWER OF FEDERAL RESERVE BANKS

Washington, June 11.—The supreme court today, in cases brought by state banks of Georgia and North Carolina, defined the power of federal reserve banks to insist upon par clearance and collection of checks. It held that the methods used by the Atlanta Reserve bank were lawful but that a state could modify by legislation, as had North Carolina, the common law rule which requires payment of checks in cash to provide that banks could use exchange in paying checks drawn upon them.

It was contended by the American Bank and Trust company and others of Georgia that the Atlanta Reserve bank had intended to accumulate large quantities of checks drawn upon banks which made a collection or clearance charge, and to present them at the paying teller's window with a demand for par payment in cash. This and other methods which the Georgia banks not belonging to the federal reserve system asserted had been decided upon by the federal reserve board in its par clearance campaign would have the effect, they contended, of driving them out of business.

With regard to the charge that large quantities of checks were being accumulated for presentation with demands for cash, the evidence, Justice Brandeis, who delivered the opinion, asserted did not sustain the allegation. The Atlanta bank had disclaimed any intention, he said, of demanding payment in cash when presenting checks of the banks, but was willing to accept payment in drafts collectable at par, drawn on any solvent bank. "No adequate reason is shown," Justice Brandeis added, "why the conclusions of the lower courts should not be accepted by us. That the action contemplated by the federal reserve bank will subject the country banks to certain losses is clear."

RACING MAN TESTIFIES IN THE CROKER WILL CASE

Dublin, June 11.—(By The A. P.)—The cross-examination of Richard Croker, Jr., in his suit contesting the will of his father was concluded today without any noteworthy effect on the case.

The next witness was T. J. Fleming, well known Dublin racing man, one of the witnesses of his last will. His evidence, he said, was given reluctantly.

He testified that he was rarely able to see Mr. Croker alone after the latter's second marriage, as his wife was "always there." While the old man sat by the fireside, looking sad, she frequently volunteered condemnation of his children's gratitude and said his son, Richard, Jr., had cheated him out of property, stocks and bonds in America.

On cross-examination the witness strengthened this statement by declaring that the wife's constant references to the Croker children were "perfectly disgusting," and formed the main reason for his ceasing to visit Glencairn the Croker residence. The witness admitted having spent last Sunday yaching with Howard Croker in Dublin Bay.

Howard, when examined and cross-examined, added nothing new to the case when counsel suggested that if Marone had been married to Mrs. Croker he would long ago have made this known to Croker, Howard replied: "I don't know that he has not."

$2,000,000 Fire Loss In Trainshed in Phila

Between 800 and 1,000 Trunks Were Damaged by Fire in Penn. Baggage Rooms.

Philadelphia, June 11—The arched, glass-covered trainshed of the Pennsylvania railroad's Broad Street station, once proudly known as the "portals of Philadelphia," lay tonight in its own ashes, the result of a spectacular early morning fire. The tangled mass of steel and iron, above which stands the stark, skeleton-like framework of the trainshed, was isolated from the main arteries of traffic.

The main station building, housing the administration offices, the waiting rooms, and ticket booths were saved from the flames. The total loss is still problematical but officials indicate that it will approximate $2,000,000. This amount included between 800 and 1000 trunks which were damaged by fire in the baggage rooms, beneath the trainshed.

The actual building destruction was fixed at a $1,000,000 by the insurance department of the railroad. In addition three locomotives, eight steel coaches and three electric cars were damaged by the fire.

Starting about one o'clock, the blaze at first a tiny spark that worked its way upward through the planking near the tracks, soon disclosed a raging furnace beneath. For four hours, the flames raged the length of the shed, until an augmented force of firemen, recruited from all parts of the city, managed to gain control of the fire.

Throughout the day the firemen continued their battle with the flames. In the arches below the charred train shed were stored large quantities of inflammables, torpedoes, and ammunition.

Once or twice during the day, destruction threatened to brake out anew. Sparks leaped across market street and ignited the wooden moulds being used in the construction of the Fox Theatre building, causing a loss said to total $300,000. A light rain fell in the afternoon and with the clouds of black smoke that overhung the central part of the city combined to effect the laying of a shroud over the charred ruins of the long trainshed.

There was no loss of life. Thirty persons were injured, though none of them seriously.

Within the cavern-like train shed were 2500 baby chicks in paste-board cartons that had been shipped from New Jersey. The chicks were forgotten in the confusion that attended. They all perished.

STONEHAM AIDED FULLER AT THE REQUEST OF FOLEY

New York, June 11.—Testimony that he had gone out on the stock brokerage firm of H. H. Fuller & company, which failed for $6,000,000, at the request of Thomas F. Foley, Tammany official, when the concern had "a run on," was given by Charles A. Stoneham, part owner of the New York Giants, at a bankruptcy hearing before Referee Harold P. Coffin today.

Foley followed Stoneham on the stand and said McGee's former wife had asked him to help her husband. In April, 1922, Foley said both McGee and Fuller had appeal to him for financial support, saying that they had paid out $2,100,000, and were pressed for cash. He gave them $15,000 at that time, he continued, and a few days later they returned and suggested he approach Stoneham regarding a loan. McGee had offered to give him a note for the amounts, he said, but he had refused to accept one.

"If you save yourself, you will pay me back, and if you don't, it's a bad bet, that's all," Foley said he had told McGee.

Foley admitted he had not endorsed his name to checks he had received from Stoneham and said he had had three stock transactions with the Fuller company, making $20,000 in one but losing all of it later. The firm owed him between $2,000 and $5,000 when it crashed, he said.

He said none of the checks Stoneham advanced had passed through his hands and, referring to McGee and Fuller, he said: "They worked that money out of me in five minutes' talk." Stoneham did not reproach him when the firm crashed, he said, and he denied that Fuller and McGee had attempted to obtain more money from him since the firm failed.

"Didn't you know they were running a bucketshop?" he was asked.

"I don't know the difference between a bucketshop and a big exchange," Foley retorted.

FISHING BOAT ASHORE WITH HELMSMAN ASLEEP

(Special to the Bulletin)

Westerly, June 11—The services of Coast Guard station, No. 58, Watch Hill, were required at 11.15 Monday morning when the 27 foot steam trawler owned by Marrion Pont of Stonington came ashore on the east side of Watch Hill Point. The lookout from the station tower sighted the fishing boat washing in with a single occupant, apparently asleep at the helm, and before the warning of the coast guard men could be heeded the boat was ashore on the only sandy strip of beach, as for some distance in each direction the shore is lined with rocks and boulders.

Boatswain Mate James Fletcher put off in the station boat with a small crew and with the assistance of other members on the beach the stranded boat was pulled off shore and taken around the point. The fisherman reported that he had trouble with a leak in his stuffing block but no trouble was found there by the guardsmen.

The assistance afforded by the station men was timely. As there was a rolling swell it would have been but a short time before the fishing craft would have been completely wrecked.

CASE AGAINST ECKART BREWERY DISMISSED

The case has been pending for a year and Judge Thomas held that further delay would be unjustifiable.

Escaped From Tombs Court Prison Pen

Two Prisoners Who Were Held in Connection With a $22,000 Silk Robbery Walked Out.

New York, June 11—Henry Libera and William Schneider, who were arraigned in Tombs court as fugitives from Hudson County, N. J., in connection with a $22,000 silk robbery, escaped from the prison pen of the court late today. James Comerford, a laborer, who shot Albert Letz, chief inspector of the bureau of weights and measures in the municipal building last Thursday, prevented five other prisoners from escaping from the cell.

Keeper William Reynolds locked the men in a detention cell after they had been arraigned and held without bail for examination tomorrow. He returned fifteen minutes later and found Comerford standing guard outside the cell, holding firmly to the door, against which other prisoners were pushing.

Comerford said he had seen Libera and Schneider rattling the door a minute after Reynolds had locked them in. Suddenly, it burst open and the pair fled down the hall and escaped. Comerford immediately closed the door and held it until the keeper arrived. An investigation showed that in locking the cell, part of the key had been broken off which prevented the complete fastening of the lock.

After leaving the cell the prisoners turned a key in a passageway door and escaped to the street.

STRIKE OF N. Y. NEWSPAPER PRESSMEN STILL PROBABLE

New York, June 11.—Officers and directors of the International Printing Pressmen & Assistants' Union of North America today took under advisement a request for sanction of a strike which the local organization, the New York Newspaper Web Printing Pressmen's Union, No. 25, voted yesterday to call in 48 hours unless publishers agreed to negotiate at once a 3-year wage contract. Action was promised tomorrow.

Although the union numbering 1,900, had delivered an ultimatum to the publishers, actual calling of the strike was withheld until it could be passed upon by the international, in accordance with the charter of the local.

The question on which the national union was bailed to act was in the form of a resolution, empowering the local's officers to notify the publishers that the pressmen would walk out within a time to be set by the officers unless an immediate wage settlement was entered with the union. David Simmons, president, and other officers of the local, inserted the 48-hour clause in the ultimatum.

BERNHARDT'S STAGE JEWELS SOLD AT AUCTION

A total of 96,780 francs was paid for stage trinkets whose intrinsic value experts said, amounted to less than one-tenth of that figure.

So spirited was the competition for the various pieces that many Americans who had instructed their agents to bid certain articles up to specific prices will be disappointed and few of the jewels that adorned Sarah in her favorite roles played in the United States, will revert either to American collectors or museums.

Sarah Guitry, the playwright and author of the piece in the rehearsal of which Mme. Bernhardt was stricken, was one of the heaviest buyers.

Uniformed Marchers Were Estimated at 20,000—Procession Was Viewed by 125,000 Persons—Business Was Literally Suspended—34th Yearly Conclave of the Mystic Order of Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm.

Cleveland, O., June 11.—A parade in which it is estimated that 20,000 uniformed marchers of 120 grottoes participated, featured today's program of the thirty-fourth yearly conclave of the Mystic Order of Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm—"the playground" of Blue Lodge Masonry.

Business was literally suspended during the procession. Police estimate that it was viewed by 125,000 persons who jammed the curbs along the line of march or saw it from office buildings.

The conclave opened formally this morning with a meeting of the supreme council which was addressed by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis and Supreme Grand Monarch M. Craig Pelouze, of Richmond, Va.

Secretary Davis approved the plan and urged that a home be established for aged men and women in a climate where they could be out of doors at all seasons of the year.

THREE PERSONS INJURED IN A FIRE IN BROOKLYN

New York, June 11.—Three persons were injured tonight in a fire that burned out a Brooklyn lumber yard, destroyed a factory building next door and threatened for a time to demolish several nearby tenement houses. All fire apparatus in the borough was called, while police reserves from half a dozen precincts were on the scene to keep back a crowd that collected to watch the spectacular blaze.

The fire started in the lumber yard and quickly spread to adjoining buildings.

More than 100 families were driven from their homes by the fire. Damage was estimated at more than $500,000. Ten minutes after the flames were discovered the entire lumber yard was ablaze and in another ten minutes the factory building was burning. As the walls of the latter building fell bricks were hurled many feet and it was feared a large number of the spectators would be hit.

The injuries, however, were confined to two firemen and one onlooker, all of whom were struck by falling glass. None was hurt seriously.

Angell, presiding at Troy, made permanent two restraining injunctions obtained by the company hotly after the general strike began.

Declaring that the state railway laws are kindred, Justice Angell gave his decisions at once, nullifying enforcement of the city's ordinance prohibiting the operation of cars by crews having less than two years' experience in the streets of this city and making void the order of Mayor C. A. Whitmyre that no cars leave the barns while a strike is in progress.

No answer was received today from the company to Mayor Whitmyre's suggestion of Saturday that company and striking employes arbitrate wages and working conditions, conducting the negotiations through newly elected officers.

Russell Elmer Smith died at an early hour Monday morning at the home of his parents, at 112 Bridge street. He was born February 12, 1923, a son of Milton L. and Jessie (Shaver) Smith, and one sister, Ruth M. Smith.

The funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock at his late home. Rev. Henry S. McCready officiated. Burial was in the Willimantic cemetery. Funeral arrangements were in charge of Avery and Van Zandt.

The last services for Edwin W. Miller were held Monday afternoon at two o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Louise Babcock of 259 Ash street and were conducted by Rev. Henry S. McCready. Burial was in the Mansfield Center cemetery. The bearers were Frank Hall, Ernest Allen, Harry Fisher and Louis Babcock. Arrangements were in charge of the J. C. Lincoln company.

The narrow bridge which spans the Willimantic river on the South Coventry road was the scene of a mishap a few nights ago when a Jewett touring car, owned by Maurice Rice of Wethersfield, was badly damaged when it collided with one side of the structure. Upon approaching the bridge, Mr. Rice noticed a Ford machine coming from the opposite direction and realizing that there was not room for two cars he jammed on his brakes, causing the car to slide to one side and strike against the supports of the bridge. The right side of machine was totally demolished. A local garage hauled the wreck to this city, the loss being covered by insurance.

TWENTY-ONE YACHTS WILL START NEW LONDON-BERMUDA RACE TODAY

New London, Conn., June 11—More than 100 yachtsmen and one woman in 21 small boats in a quest of high adventure will leave here tomorrow in a 663-mile race across the tempestuous Gulf Stream to Bermuda. It will be the largest ocean race ever held in the world and a logical outcome of the modern tendency for staunch rather than speed craft for pleasure service.

The boats will represent half a score of yacht clubs on the Atlantic coast and two from Bermuda, but a majority of the American craft will fly or will be entitled to fly the white pennant with its blue wave of the Cruising Club of America emblematical of the owner's "off sounding" experience. This flag is coveted by many yachtsmen who have been following the cruising rather than the racing sport.

The yachts will be divided into two classes with several sub-divisions and a number of private matches, while the chief incentives for the race, other than a desire to visit the famous isles and accept its well known hospitality, are prizes by several enthusiastic followers including Herbert L. Stone, editor of "Yachting" and commodore of the Cruising Club of America, who organized the contest.

Start at 10 o'clock

The start will be at 10 a. m., eastern standard time, from the mouth of the Thames and the course, after running out of Long Island sound and rounding Montauk Point, will be straight away, south, southeast, 640 miles with the finish at St. David's Head, off St. Georges, Bermuda.

The regatta committee of the New Rochelle Yacht club will start the boats and similar officials of the Royal Bermuda Yacht club will be at the finish and decide the winners.

Engines Are Sealed

All the yachts will carry day and night signals and will display them at the finish, and if need be, to any ship that may come within hail. As nearly all the boats are equipped with power, the race committee today visited each craft and sealed their propeller shafts, besides giving each boat a rigid inspection as to her general qualifications for meeting off shore conditions.

With favorable weather the yachts are expected to cover the course inside of five days, while the larger boats may make it in four days. All the boats will sail under a nine allowance figured on their over all length.

One Woman in Fleet

The woman in the fleet is Miss Elizabeth Dingle, of Hamilton, Bermuda, who is serving with her brother, Alfred E. Dingle, on the Ketch, "Gauntlett" of the Hamilton Dinghy club. Miss Dingle is an experienced sailor, having been off the Island in small boats in a number of cruises and has ridden out many hard gales. She arrived in New York a few days ago and joined the "Gauntlett" yesterday coming down the sound late today just in time to join the others in securing their health certificates.

The weather tonight was favorable for a quick run out of the sound tomorrow and into open water, probably before a light westerly breeze.

Several Match Races

A match race was arranged between the two Massachusetts boats, the schooner "Cadona" and the schooner "Isabel". The sloop "Flying Cloud" to be distinguished from the schooner of the same name, was matched against the yawl "Memory" and several other private contests were also arranged at a dinner which the yachtsmen attended tonight. The next meeting of all hands will be at the Royal Bermuda Yacht club when the prizes will be awarded.

The Starters

The yachts were divided into two divisions, class "A", including schooners and yawls up to 50 feet over all, and class "B", between 50 and 70 feet over all.

RICE PLEASED WITH COLUMBIA'S SHOWING

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 11.—Form that brought words of approval from Coach Jim Rice was shown in morning and afternoon drills on the Hudson by the Columbia varsity today. While the freshmen performed irregularly and the junior varsity boat was not up to the standard desired, the varsity gave "a nice bit of rowing" in the words of praise megaphoned to the crew by Coach Jim Rice.

For an hour and a half the mentor had the crews on the course this morning. Hitting 32 to 35 strokes a minute, the three eights sped down the river until within an eighth of a mile of the Poughkeepsie bridge. There Rice gave the word for a sprint and the varsity outstripped the junior boat and passed the freshmen, who had a handicap.

LIGHT WORK FOR YALE CREWS YESTERDAY

Gales Ferry, Conn., June 11—Today was a light day at Yale crew quarters, the crews getting back into form after their week-end rest. The freshmen crew went out early this afternoon, rowing to the three mile mark at an easy stroke. The combination and the junior varsity crews went to the four mile mark. On the way back the combination took a few racing starts and rowed the last 2 miles at a racing speed. The varsity went to the three mile mark and back, taking it easy.

The waiters in the dining halls at the Yale and Harvard quarters have formed crews and it is expected that they will have a "non-combatant" race sometime next week.

BRITISH GOLFERS TAKE LEAD OVER AMERICANS FOR BRITISH OPEN TITLE

Troon, Scotland, June 11.—(By the A. P.)—Age, personal and national, put youth behind today in the first half of the struggle of 312 golfers to qualify for participation in the British open championship.

Old Jim Braid led the field, his score of 72 was considerably under that of the younger Hagen. Hagen took 82 today and, unless he does much better tomorrow, is likely to find himself among the spectators when the championship gets under way, as only eighty players plus those, if any, who tie for the eightieth place can appear in the grand finals.

Today an even hundred players slipped in cards of 79 or under, while altogether 136 men did better than Hagen. The best any of the Yankees could do was 76, and this was accomplished by Gene Sarazen, American open champion, and MacDonald Smith of California. Between them and the leader stood the names of eight golfers.

Four other Americans, Leo Diegel, Tommy Armour, Charles Hoffner and Frank Clarke, were among the hundred whose cards were in the seventies, while the figure eighty was shared by George Aulbach, Jim Barnes and Johnny Farrell.

Sandy Herd, who acquired the title of British champion many years ago, scored 79 today. Roger Wethered, who won the British amateur golf title at Deal last month, probably will not qualify at all, as he took 88 in the eighteen hole round.

Joe Kirkwood's low-flying drives and brassies stood him in good stead in the prevailing winds; his score was 76. George Duncan and Abe Mitchell, the leaders of Great Britain's sturdiest set of golfers—the men of middle age—have only to play as steadily tomorrow as they did today to assure success in the qualifying series. Mitchell's count was 77 and Duncan's 78.

Mother Got the Letter.

One time when I was going to grammar school I was in love with a boy—who was much older than I. One time he wrote me a letter in school, saying he loved me. Of course I cherished that letter; so I put it in my pocket. Next day was wash day. My mother found the letter and told my dad. Well, you know the rest.—Chicago Journal.
